NO TRIAL FOR BRITISH WRITER GERMANS HOLD

Embassy's Protest Eases Lot of Noel Panter, London Correspondent, in Munich Jail; Diplomatic Circles Predict Case Will Be Settled Without Recourse to Courts

German Suspicion Of Espionage Voiced

Canadian Press and Associated Press
Munich, Oct. 28.—Facing a charge of high treason, for which the extreme penalty is death, Noel Panter, British newspaperman, was spending his fifth day of detention at police headquarters in good health and relative comfort to-day.

Though somewhat worried, Panter, Munich correspondent of The London Daily Telegraph, was confident that with the aid of the British Embassy and Foreign Office at London, he would be out soon.

On the vigorous protest of the British Embassy at Berlin, the consul-general here was permitted to see Panter for the first time yesterday. Since then, the Reuters news agency correspondent has been permitted to visit Panter regularly—taking him cigarettes, soap, linen and food.

While the Bavarian government stated Panter would be arraigned before the Supreme Court at Leipzig, that statement was made before central authorities at Berlin knew details of the case.

Diplomatic circles feel confident the case never will come to trial. A communique of the Wolff news agency charges Panter "made himself suspicious of attempting in an unpermissible manner to secure news of a military character."

The communique continued: "He had relations with a German subject living in Munich who is under suspicion of espionage and launching atrocity news abroad."

Panter is a correspondent of The London Daily Telegraph.

FOUR CHARGED AFTER FIGHT

Assault on Chief and Constable Alleged at Eviction Proceedings

Lone Constable Attending Forced to Calm in Handling Crowd

Four men appeared before Magistrate George Jay in the City Police Court this morning following the clash between police officers and a group of unemployed who attempted to prevent eviction of a family at 1136 Caledonia Avenue yesterday afternoon.

They all pleaded not guilty, and were remanded to Monday.

James Beynon, charged with assaulting Chief of Police Thomas Heatley in execution of his duty.
William Bragg, charged with assaulting Constable David Donaldson in execution of his duty.
Fred McEwen and Eric Linden, charged with wilfully obstructing police officers in execution of their duty.

The courtroom was crowded for the brief hearing, but there was no demonstration.

Beynon asked for bail, and it was fixed at $200.

PHONES BLOCKED

The police were trying to keep order for sheriff's officers who started to carry out an eviction order at the house. Constable David Donaldson attended at first, but a group of about forty unemployed, while allowing the constable free passage, barred the way to the sheriff's men. Constable Donaldson went to telephone for aid, and because of the persistence of the demonstrators on neighboring residents, he was forced to go to a Cook Street store to secure a telephone.

Restoration of Grant Wanted By Hospitals

Vital Question Will Come Before B.C. Hospitals' Convention Here November 8

Hospitals Have Received No Benefit From Meal Tax Now Inoperative

Restoration of the original government grant for hospitals will be sought by the B.C. Hospitals' Association, which will meet in convention at the Empress Hotel here on November 8 and the two succeeding days.

Registrations are already being received for the convention and it is expected that upwards of 100 delegates will attend from Vancouver and the interior of British Columbia as far east as Kamloops and the Okanagan, as well as Vancouver Island.

It is generally accepted in hospital circles that discussion will centre about the provincial government grant which was reduced from 70 cents to 40 cents a patient a day when the Hospitals Aid Act was substituted to provide revenue for the hospitals through the medium of the meal tax. The courts have since ruled the meal tax ultra vires and pending a ruling on the government appeal the tax is inoperative. The Victoria hospitals, it is understood, have not received any benefit from the meal tax since it was placed on the statute.

Various other matters of importance to hospitals will come before the conference here. The hospitals convention last year was held in Vancouver.

B.C. HEN FALTERS NEAR RECORD

Canadian Press
Agassiz, B.C., Oct. 28.—Hope that "Dauntless Doreen," white leghorn pullet, would set a world egg-laying record was dimmed to-day when H. H. Hicks, superintendent of the Dominion Experimental Farm here, said the hen might not lay to-day.

Previous failing—against the pullet was that Friday's egg weighed more than average, scaling twenty-seven ounces to the dozen, and was laid later in the day than usual.

To date Doreen 10-1, owned by M. H. Rutledge of Bertha, has laid 354 eggs in 361 days. The record she is near to breaking 347-357 eggs in 365 days. But she has to lay 12 eggs to better it.

Chatham Island Where "Caddy" Is Reported To Have His Home

The above picture gives a very interesting idea of the southeastern end of Chatham Island, where Cadboro's has been seen by a number of people. There is a narrow channel between Chatham and Discovery Islands through which the tide runs rapidly and the bottom of which is strewn with huge boulders. A party which visited the islands last week-end made a search for some signs of "Caddy" and obtained pictures. The tip of the island presents a rather weird picture with its strange formation of rocks and its wind-swept trees.

Opponents of Nazi System Are Thrown Into Prison Camps

Strange "Resurgence" Grips Nation Which Seems Spell-bound Now

Marching Soldiers and Appeal of Mass Demonstration Having Effect

By M. H. HALTON
Copyright, 1933

Berlin, Oct. 28.—The German nation has seen a vision.
Germans I talked to in far-off days before the revolution used to sigh: "If only we had somehow managed to win that war! Germany would have been mistress of the world."
That was their vision then. The dream they dream to-day is of a united German "folk"—a union of all men of Aryan blood—that will prove forever irresistible. Already they have woven this dream into the creed of their churches: To-day German churches: "God has made me a German. Germanism is the gift of God. God wishes that I should fight for my Germanism."

Whether or not you shudder at this as a piece of crude and barbarous religion, you must at least note that creed has been the trumpet call to the resurgence of the German people.

TWO WORDS MUCH USED

There are two words which to-day are on the lips of every German: "Resurgence" and "Gleichschaltung." The first is the revival of the national pride. The second, Gleichschaltung, means "coming into line," and it is the most important word in the new German political vocabulary.

I sat in an office in the Wilhelmstrasse talking to a Nazi official. "Our aim should be to hear the cheer of the world," he said. "The most important word in the new German political vocabulary. I sat in an office in the Wilhelmstrasse talking to a Nazi official. "Our aim should be to hear the cheer of the world," he said. "The most important word in the new German political vocabulary. I sat in an office in the Wilhelmstrasse talking to a Nazi official. "Our aim should be to hear the cheer of the world," he said. "The most important word in the new German political vocabulary."

FLAGS AND CHEERS

This resurgence has taken Germany by storm. You should see the flag. You should hear the cheer. You should talk to the people! You should see men, women and children—old men and women, middle-aged men and women, young men and women—children running down the streets alongside the marching soldiers! You should see Germans spring to attention when they hear the first faint, distant, screaming of the siren!

There are 65,000,000 people in Germany. Six hundred thousand of them are Jews, and they feel no resurgence.

TROUBLES IN FAMILY FIRM

Two Groups Air Views at Spooner Oil Meeting at Calgary

Calgary, Oct. 28.—Friction appeared to-day at the annual meeting of Spooner Oil Limited when sale of the Bell Refinery, property of the company, was discussed.
Mrs. Catherine Spooner, large shareholder, had obtained an injunction against the company disposing of the refinery, claiming it is a breach of an agreement. In reply to this charge the defendants declare the sale was approved by the company and Mrs. Spooner's move is an effort to secure complete control of the firm.

"I object to control being in the hands of one family," Hiram Spooner, another shareholder and brother of A. G. Spooner, president, said. "It is not up to the Spooner family to decide whether the Bell refinery is to be sold, but it is up to you shareholders."
"This is a deplorable thing and more than I can stand," A. G. Spooner said. "Outsiders are coming between my mother and brother." Mrs. Catherine Spooner is the mother of A. G. and Hiram Spooner.

Hiram Spooner seeks to have his brother removed as president, charging he dismissed A. G. Barber as secretary-treasurer and gave the position to his son, Robert.

ISLANDS' FIGHT GROWS BITTER

Rival Candidate Mounts Platform at Sidney and Heated Words Fly

Major J. B. Hardinge and Col. W. W. Foster in Open Conflict

Bitterness erupted into the provincial election battle for the Gulf Islands yesterday evening when for the second time since the campaign started rival candidates clashed at a Sidney meeting, and charges and counter charges were hurled.

When Major J. B. Hardinge, the Non-partisan candidate, made reference to Col. W. W. Foster at the Sidney meeting yesterday evening, the latter stepped into the fray. Heated words were exchanged and the audience joined in the debate.

Major Hardinge threw questions at Col. Foster, relating to his connection with firms handling government contracts. Col. Foster mounted the platform to reply and was cross-examined by the Non-partisan candidate regarding firms and contracts. The colonel's position as an independent while president of the B.C. Conservative Association also entered into the discussion.

A similar instance occurred earlier in the campaign when Col. Foster was holding a meeting at Sidney. On that occasion a reference to the Liberal candidate and there in the field by the chairman brought Russ Humber, independent candidate, to his feet voicing a protest at outside candidates seeking votes on the island.

Mr. Humber championed the cause of Mr. McDonald, the Liberal candidate as a pioneer, who was born in the district of pioneer parents and had played an important part in building it up. Mr. McDonald was a farmer whose interests were linked with the constituency he sought to represent, and had the respect of all who knew him. Mr. Humber said in hotly resented (Turn to Page 2, Col. 4)

UNIVERSITY TO PAY $56,860

Judge in Edmonton Rules Alberta College Authorities Negligent in Allowing A. Powlett to Be Injured

Canadian Press
Edmonton, Oct. 28.—Award of $56,860 with costs was made by Mr. Justice Ives in the Alberta Supreme Court to-day to C. H. A. Powlett and Armand Powlett of Calgary in their damage action against the University of Alberta. Powlett sued the university on an allegation his son, Armand, had become insane as a result of the university's 1932 infections.

"There should be compensation (for the boy) as far as money can, commensurate with the damage done to him in his judgment. He observed: "I am not unmindful of the doubtful state of the recovery of young Powlett."

The judgment did not differentiate between the university, the board of governors or the senate of the uni-

Mrs. Mollison has been in a hospital for some time and underwent a slight operation recently.

JAPAN TO AID DISARMAMENT

Geneva, Oct. 28.—Ambassador Naitake, Japanese representative, was following in Germany's footsteps and gradually withdrawing from the Disarmament Conference.

He also declared: "I have no hesitation whatever in finding, as I do find, the mental illness of the plaintiff was limited."

Mr. Justice Ives found Armand was limited. The first issue before us is to determine the direct cause of the mental breakdown," he said. "To do this I must rely almost wholly on the evidence of the very able and experienced psychiatrist. At the same time in weighing the balance of probabilities emerging from that evidence, I do not propose to exclude such common sense as I may possess as a layman."

Many Honor Memory Of W. J. Bowser At Vancouver Funeral

Premier Tolmie and Cabinet Members Among Those Who Attended Last Rites To-day; Ashes Will Be Given Resting Place in Victoria

Vancouver, Oct. 27.—British Columbia paid its last respects to-day to W. J. Bowser, K.C., former Premier, one of its most colorful and robust political figures for some forty years.

The election campaign into which he plunged after six years' retirement, must go on without him. He died from a heart attack Wednesday as the days grew shorter which would tell the fate of the Independent Non-partisan movement in which he was a prime mover.

A leaden sky poured rain on the city this afternoon as mourners from far and near flocked to St. Andrew's-Wesley Church, inside whose grey stone walls the church's last rites were conducted for the one-time Conservative Premier and Attorney-General.

PREMIER ATTENDS

Premier S. P. Tolmie, Hon. W. M. Dennis, Hon. William Savage, Hon. R. L. Maitland, K.C., and prominent leaders of other political parties attended the funeral service, which started at 2 p.m.

The body lay in state from 1 o'clock until 1:30 p.m. and throngs filed past the bier to behold for the last time the face of the veteran campaigner. The service was conducted by Rev. Willard Brewster, D.D., and Rev. J. S. Henderson, D.D., delivered the funeral address.

Mr. Bowser was a Mason of high standing and the service to-day was under the auspices of his old lodge, Mount Hermon No. 7, A.F. and A.M. THE FAREWELLERS

Three Rivers, Que.—International Paper Company is speeding up operations here. It is now using seven of the plant's eight machines.

Ottawa—Employment in the woollen industry shows a 32.6 per cent increase since May, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reports.

Announcement Follows Successful Conferences in Montreal in Which C.P.R. and C.N.R. Joined With Workers' Spokesmen; Second Ten Per Cent Proposal Reduced to Five Per Cent Reduction

Oct. 31 Next to See Partial Restoration

Canadian Press
Montreal, Oct. 28.—A 5 per cent compromise to-day was agreed on by the railways of Canada and the running trades in settlement of the dispute over a second 10 per cent cut in basic wage rates.

The wage reduction from the high point a few years ago will now stand at 15 per cent.

A formal statement issued jointly by the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways and leaders of the running trades unions read as follows: "It was announced to-day on behalf of the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific railways and their engineers, firemen, conductors, trainmen and telegraphers that an agreement had been reached with reference to the wage adjustment controversy."

"The agreement provides for a 15 per cent deduction from November 1, 1933, in lieu of the 20 per cent deduction which has been in effect since May 1 last."

CHANGE IN 1934

"This is to continue for one year, or until October 31, 1934, when the deduction will drop to 10 per cent, with the provision that after September 1, 1934, either party may serve notice of desire to change this percentage."

"Both parties expressed themselves as pleased at having been able to reach common ground."

"The agreements will be signed by the railways' officers and by the twenty general chairmen and approved by the boards of the five organizations in Canada."

STRIKE VOTE

The dispute arose over a second 10 per cent cut in wage scales made effective May 1. The men declined to accept the second cut and a strike vote was taken which empowered the heads of the running trades unions to call a strike.

Premier R. B. Bennett intervened and following conferences between him and the disputants further negotiations were undertaken.

For several days rumors had been circulating the main question had been tentatively settled and details were being worked out. The final point of difficulty, it is understood, was in the amount of the amounts already deducted from pay envelopes since May 1.

ARBITRATION BOARDS

In the meantime conciliation boards are meeting in parallel disputes between the railways and their clerical staffs. It is believed by those watching the situation these difficulties may be settled on the same basis as those of the running trades.

Three in Calgary's Chief Polls Test

Calgary, Oct. 28.—A three-cornered fight for the mayoralty is promised in the Calgary civic election during November. Besides Mayor Andy Anderson, Alderman A. S. Lawrence and Thomas Betttridge have entered the fray.

Mr. Betttridge declares he will run as a Communist. He received a six-month suspended sentence for taking part in the jobless disturbances here in June last year.

CAR LOADINGS

Ottawa, Oct. 28.—Car loadings in Canada for the week ended October 21 amounted to 51,703 cars. This was an increase of 1,402 over the previous week, which contained a holiday, and an increase of 1,830 over the corresponding week last year.

Light grain loadings in the western division and decreases in coal, coke, pulp and paper and merchandise more than made up for the increase in automobiles.

than offset increases of 343 cars of miscellaneous freight, 275 of ore, 436 of other forest products, 177 of lumber and 207 of livestock, and the total of 20,708 was 231 cars less than in

GAINS IN EAST

being 2,061 over the total for the corresponding week in 1932.

In the eastern division seven of the eleven commodities listed showed increases for the forty-second week over last year's loadings.

In the western division, livestock, lumber, pulpwood, pulp and paper and other forest products have passed last year's records, but large decreases are shown for grain, merchandise and miscellaneous freight.

Compared with 1931 loadings for the forty-two weeks, coal is the only commodity which has been heavier in 1933.

AUTO BUSINESS
Ottawa, Oct. 28.—Canadian automobile manufacturing plants have,
perhaps more than any other, large increases in production, and the auto industry shows the most active sign of recovery in the last few months, according to the Department of Trade and Commerce.

"Employment in this industry at the beginning of October stood at 65.9 on the government employment index, as compared with 46 a year ago and 59.9
in October, 1931," the department reports.

"Production for the first nine months of the current year—totalled 56,889 automobiles, trucks and buses, as compared with 53,537 units in the corresponding period last year, but was below the 1931 total. Sale figures indicate purchases of new passenger cars increased from 25,881 in the first nine months of 1932 to 36,173 this year to date, although sales of trucks and buses were lower.

"It is in exports, however, that Canadian automobile manufacturers have expanded most this year. Exports of automobiles and trucks for the first nine months of 1933 totalled 14,141
units, valued at $8,012,506, compared with 7,942 units valued at $3,238,130
in the corresponding period last year."

RUSSIA AND GERMANY
The correspondents then put questions regarding Russo-German relations.

"I am to see Von Neurath (German Foreign Minister) to-day," M. Litvinoff said. "I always am him when he is passing through Germany."

"The conflict regarding newspaper correspondents will, I expect, be straightened out shortly."

spondents recently were dismissed from papermen in Moscow.)

Premier Says Canada's Prison System Efficient

Bennett, Writing in Answer to London, Ont., Pastors' Protest on Conditions, Says Justice Tempered With Mercy

Canadian Press
London, Ont., Oct. 28.—Prime Minister R. B. Bennett is satisfied with Canadian prison conditions, believing justice is being administered under a policy that tends to reform the criminal.

In a personal reply to a resolution forwarded to him by the London Ministerial Association, the Prime Minister has made his views known. He invites representatives of the interested bodies to visit the penitentiaries at any time, without notice, and see conditions for themselves.

Mr. Bennett's letter was sent in reply to a resolution which protested against investigation and reform.

COST IS GREAT
"We have spent many millions of dollars on our penal institutions," said Mr. Bennett's letter. "Organized society, through appropriate legislation, has declared certain actions constitute criminal offenses, and for such offenses punishment is awarded."

"Society has a threefold purpose in providing penitentiaries:
(1) The punishment of the convict, (2) to deter others from committing similar offenses and (3) the reformation of the convict through affording him opportunities to acquire useful knowledge so that on the termination of his punishment he may be able to take his place as a member of society."

"The very fact that the penitentiary is provided for the punishment of the convict indicates it is not a charitable institution," said Mr. Bennett's letter.
"On the other hand, humanitarianism demands that the confinement should be in quarters properly constructed and sanitary, and that the convict is provided with suitable food and exercise in the form of work."

KINGSTON CONDITIONS
Mr. Bennett dealt with the situation at Kingston, and added:
"It has been suggested the discipline enforced in the penitentiary is out of keeping with modern tendencies—in other words, that the punitive factor in the punishment awarded is too apparent."

"In considering the situation it must be remembered that in the penitentiaries are hundreds of men who have been convicted by due process of law.
There may be many instances where criminal records are known by nicknames indicative of their criminal tendencies. The fact that many of them have criminal records in other countries indicates also that the efforts to ward their reformation in penal institutions in other lands have failed. It follows that these men must be subject to stern discipline than is the case of those whose offenses are of a more trifling character and who possess no previous criminal records."

JUSTICE AND MERCY
"I feel certain the great body of Canadian sentiment will be satisfied that our penal institutions are being administered for the purposes for which they were created and that justice, tempered with mercy, has been the policy that has guided successive governments in the difficult task of administration."

Compared with 1931 loadings for the forty-two weeks, coal is the only commodity which has been heavier in 1933.

Ottawa, Oct. 28.—Canadian automobile manufacturing plants have,
perhaps more than any other, large
increases in production, and the auto industry shows the most active
sign of recovery in the last few months,
according to the Department of Trade
and Commerce.

"Employment in this industry at the beginning of October stood at 65.9 on the government employment index, as compared with 46 a year ago and 59.9
in October, 1931," the department reports.

"Production for the first nine months of the current year—totalled 56,889 automobiles, trucks and buses,
as compared with 53,537 units in the corresponding period last year, but was below the 1931 total. Sale figures indicate purchases of new passenger cars
increased from 25,881 in the first nine months of 1932 to 36,173 this year to date, although sales of trucks and buses were lower.

"It is in exports, however, that Canadian automobile manufacturers have expanded most this year. Exports of automobiles and trucks for the first
nine months of 1933 totalled 14,141
units, valued at $8,012,506, compared with 7,942 units valued at $3,238,130
in the corresponding period last year."

RUSSIA AND GERMANY
The correspondents then put questions regarding Russo-German relations.

"I am to see Von Neurath (German Foreign Minister) to-day," M. Litvinoff said. "I always am him when he is
passing through Germany."

"The conflict regarding newspaper
correspondents will, I expect, be straightened out shortly."

spondents recently were dismissed from Germany, the Soviet government retaliated in kind against German newspapermen in Moscow.)

some degree effect the relations of all other countries."

To a specific question as to whether,
for example, there would be a new distribution of Russian orders for goods,
M. Litvinoff said: "That is something to be decided later."

M. Litvinoff expressed the opinion one week in the United States ought to be enough to accomplish his mission.

ing the criticism of those who are known in the constituency as the "outside candidates."

While Major Hardinge and Col. W.
W. Foster were in open conflict at Sidney yesterday, Alex. McDonald, the Liberal candidate, was addressing an enthusiastic audience at James Island emphasizing that a resident of the district was better able to represent it than the outside candidates who had been brought in.

The "outside candidates" feature of the fight was also emphasized at the meeting at James Island by Alan Chambers, Mayor Guy Boyer, and A.
P. Dave, who pointed out Mr. McDonald's life-time connection with the constituency, that he was president of the pioneers' association and several other organizations and a farmer and resident in touch with the electors needs.

CALL MORE AID
Chief Healey and Constable Thomas Stevenson, who were in the station at the time, responded. When they joined forces with Constable Donaldson the trouble started. The officers were at first jostled by the crowd, and were round to the back of the hall.
The crowd then entered by the rear.
The officers, and when Chief Healey drew his baton, several men grasped it and dragged the chief to the ground, someone kicking him in the shin at the same time. Constable Donaldson was knocked off the back veranda by a blow to the chin.

In the meantime, Inspector J. T.
Boulton, Sergeant James Florence, Detective Henry Jarvis and a number of constables arrived, and after a short struggle the four men were arrested and taken to headquarters. The eviction proceeded.

FIGHT GONG LIMITED TALK

Mayor Barsby Had Busy Time Keeping Election Candidates in Order at Nanaimo

Canadian Press
Nanaimo, Oct. 28.—Four candidates seeking seats in the British Columbia elections addressed a crowd of 1,400 electors who jammed Pygmy Pavilion here last night on "the immediate needs of the unemployed" and "a constructive programme for unemployment."

The meeting was staged at the invitation of Nanaimo City Married Unemployed Association and a sum of money was collected to aid the Na-naimo Special Needs Association.

Aspirants for political honors in this riding, George S. Pearson, Liberal; Dr.
G. A. Hall, Independent; Dr. Lyle
Telford, C.C.F., and Alexander Cramb, United Front, spoke for half an hour apiece. The names were placed in a hat to determine who should lead off a group habitually used for fights provided a "warning after each had spoken for twenty-five minutes."

Dr. R. B. Hall, Independent, was not present, but a letter of regret from him was read. Mayor J. Barsby stopped two candidates for not adhering to the rule of the "free-for-all," which forbade mention of other parties or discussion of topics other than those announced.

He interrupted Dr. Telford for mentioning a "hunger march" to Victoria and Dr. Telford for attacking the Liberals and the Independent non-Partisan candidate declined to take the advantages of unemployed insurance. Dr. Hall suggested a table conference with the government of B.C. Municipalities with a view to obtaining full co-operation. Dr.
Telford's cure was prescribed as "continuing employment, and (4) a permanent policy."

Mr. Pearson attacked the problem from four angles: (1) Immediate relief, (2) reformation of relief programme, (3) increasing employment, and (4) a permanent policy.

"I have done my part," said Dr.
Thompson, former M.P. for the Yukon.
"The onus for not arriving at an agreement is on those who refused to negotiate. I might point out I never stated Non-Partisan group candidates approached me, but their supporters did and that was why I took action."

As matters stood to-day, there appeared to be little likelihood of any further movement in the direction of an understanding.

FINNS ARREST BRITISH WOMAN
Canadian Press and Associated Press
Helsinki, Finland, Oct. 28.—May Martin, reported to be a Briton, but carrying a Canadian passport, was one of ten persons arrested here yesterday in connection with alleged espionage activity. She was taken into custody following a raid on her apartment while she was entertaining a party including several prominent society figures. Police said they had seized correspondence.

caused by proceedings of initiation to which he was subjected.

CONTRACT BROKEN
"Clearly, I think the contractual relationship has been established and the contract broken by the university and board of governors. With equal clarity there emerges negligence on the part of the defendants who, being aware of the institution of initiation, gave it tacit approval and permitted it to be carried on without any proper supervision. That there were risks attendant on some of its practices must have been fully known to the defendants because a freshman had been severely injured in the initiation of the previous year. Yet the very reasonable precaution of acquainting themselves with the practices of initiation were neglected."

The judgment was made up of $50-00 to Armand Powell, and two sums of $4,000 and $2,860 to the parent plaintiff.

DISORDERS AT ACRE
Trouble also threatened at Acre, across Acre Bay from Haifa. The Iraq Petroleum Company here placed several trucks at the disposal of the government and they were manned with troops.

The Arab strike, which began on the Moslem holiday Friday, was carried over into to-day's Jewish Sabbath, with all Arab shops closed. The feeling was particularly tense at Jaffa, where funerals were being held for those slain yesterday.

patrolled Nabulus, where one was killed in yesterday's clashes. Troops were called out to aid police in Jerusalem.

Washington, Oct. 28.—Diplomatic circles, as much puzzled as foreign exchanges by the Roosevelt gold policy, are buzzing with speculations over whether Russian gold will figure in the forthcoming Roosevelt-Litvinoff converported to be large, though the Mos-

NO UNION TO FOLLOW DEATH

Attempts to Join Tolmie Unionists and Non-Partisan Admitted Unsuccessful

Canadian Press
Vancouver, Oct. 28.—Negotiations between supporters of Tolmie Unionist candidates and those of the Non-Partisan group, started following the sudden death of W. J. Bowser, K.C., prime mover in the latter group, apparently have failed.

Dr. Alfred Thompson, who was chosen as a mediator by men of both factions, stated to-day that as far as he was concerned there would be no further action.

"I have done my part," said Dr.
Thompson, former M.P. for the Yukon.
"The onus for not arriving at an agree-

ARSENAL WINS

In the second division, however, Bolton Wanderers managed to get on level terms with Port Vale at the top of the group, the latter being held to a scoreless tie at Preston North End while the Wanderers at home were trimming Fulham 3 to 1.

Three teams went over the heads of Queen's Park Rangers to knot up the tenship in the southern section of the third division. They were Norwich City, Crystal Palace and Charlton Athletic, the latter blanking Torquay Athletic 6 to 0. The Rangers were beaten 3 to 2 at Bournemouth.

Winning their eleventh match in league starts, Chesterfield easily kept on top of the northern section, race, defeating New Brighton 4 to 0 to remain five points in front of Tramere Rovers.

Glasgow, Oct. 28.—Motherwell maintained their unbeaten record through fifteen matches to-day, including two drawn games, when they trounced Par-tick Thistle 4 to 1 to keep a safe lead in the first division of the Scottish Football League.

The Glasgow Rangers, league champions, kept within four points of Motherwell, however, by trimming Kilmarnock 3 to 1 on the latter's grounds.

Kilmarnock's defeat and the 2 to 1 loss inflicted on Aberdeen by Hamilton knocked the latter Kilmarnock and Aberdeen out of third place, which was occupied by Ayr United. The latter traveled to Cowdenbeath for a 2 to 2 draw.

Stenhousemuir pulled into undisputed lead in the second division, coming on top in a free-scoring battle with Ayr United, the score being 5 to 3. Dunfermline, who has been sharing the upper berth with Stenhousemuir, were pulled down by Dundee United, who won 4 to 0.

SNOWSTORMS IN MANITOBA

Winnipeg, Oct. 28.—The prairies presented a varied weather map to-day, ranging from rain in Saskatchewan to the first real winter snow of the year in Manitoba.

Bringing welcome relief to Alberta's ranchers, heavy snows of the past week were fast disappearing, putting an end to fears of feeding problems.

Rain visited Saskatchewan overnight and continued in many districts to-day. Temperatures tended higher, but the rain was freezing as it fell and turning to sleet.

Manitoba was swept by the first snowstorm of winter, proportionately blustery winds brought a generous fall of snow, and dry snow had all the appearances of having come to stay.

MAKING THE MOIRANE

A moraine is a very useful where some of the more difficult alpine areas are to be cultivated. To make a moraine, remove the soil to a depth of two feet and place several layers of large stones in the bottom. These should be covered with smaller stones, and the hole should be filled up to within one foot of the surface with rough material. Then put in a layer about six inches thick of a mixture of good loam, leaf mould and small stones, and fill up to the surface with stone chips, to which has been added a very small percentage of soil. Two or three large stones may be embedded in such a way as to suggest that they were left there by nature. There should be some smaller flat stones so placed that the gardener may reach all parts of the moraine without treading upon the plants.

Following is a small selection of plants for various aspects:

Trailing plants for sunny position: Alyssum saxatile, Arenaria montana, Arabis, Aubretia, Dianthus, Saponaria, "cymoides" and Helianthemum.

Upright plants for sunny positions: Dianthus caesus, all the cruciferous Saxifrage, all the dwarf sedum, Silene alpestris and Viola gracilis.

Plants for shade: Anemones, Cyclamen, Lysimachia, many Primulas and many Saxifrage.

Plants suitable for moraine: Aethionema, Androsace, Dianthus alpinus, Dianthus neglectus, Erodium, Alpine poppy, Silene, and Tundra Saxifrage.

Ferns suitable for a shady wall: Hart's tongue, common polypody, soft-shield fern, and all the spiceworts.

Plants suitable for cracks in stone paths and other odd spots. All the dwarf thymes, Veronica repens, Spergula, Erinus alpinus, some of the dwarf campanulas and many others.

If a rock garden or rock border is

The soil, which should be of a light, gritty nature, should be well packed behind and between the stones, in order that there may be no air spaces for the roots to invade. At the top of the wall a narrow border may be made in which dwarf shrubs should be planted.

CHOOSING THE PLANTS

The wall's aspect will determine what plants are most suitable. If it faces south we must choose plants such as the cruciferous Saxifrage, sedum, etc. A northern aspect gives us a smaller selection. Ferns and all kinds of mosses are quite happy, and there are a number of rock plants, such as the mossy Saxifrage and some of the anemones that will do quite well in shade. Don't try to grow too many kinds of plants. It is better to have drifts of some size of one variety, as by this means you get an effect that cannot be obtained by planting single specimens.

If a rock garden or rock border is

THREE-WHEELED AUTO WRECKED

Chicago, Oct. 28.—A three-wheeled automobile of radical streamline design swerved suddenly on the South Shore Drive yesterday and rolled over twice, crushing its driver and severely injuring two distinguished foreign guests.

P. C. Turner of Birmingham, Ala., and Pittsburgh, died as his wife rushed here by chartered plane from the southern city. His face was crushed and skull fractured.

His two passengers, who had come here on the Graf Zeppelin and intended to return on the airship from Akron, Ohio, were expected to live, it was said to-day.

One is Hon. William Francis Forbes-Sempill, eldest son of Baron Sempill of the Scottish peerage, and so titled the Master of Sempill. A noted authority on civil aviation, he was a wartime member of the Royal Air Force.

The other is Charles Dollfus of Paris, attached to the French Air Ministry and son of a French manufacturer of the family of Mulhouse, France.

The car, of teardrop shape, was designed and built by two Bridgeport, Conn., inventors, and was nineteen feet long, weighing 3,200 pounds, mounted on aero-dynamic principles to reduce wind pressure. Two front wheels derived their motive power from an engine at the rear of the machine, while the single rear wheel was geared for steering.

Scottish Settlers For This Country

Calgary, Oct. 28.—In England there might not be sufficient people of pioneer stock to develop into good settlers. Scottish residents would be more suitable, according to G. L. C. Touche, son of Sir George Touche, head of the chartered accountancy firm of this name.

Mr. Touche, visiting here, said he believed the present generation in England had become too industrialized, which was not to be considered in their disfavor, however. Scottish immigrants, he thought, would be able to master conditions to be encountered here.

Last Grand Jury Sits In England

London, Oct. 28.—The grand jury system—picturesque but costly feature of the English legal ceremonial—has been abolished by the Administration of Justice (Miscellaneous Provisions) Act, 1933, and twenty-three good men and true, who have been assisting the recorder of Hereford have been informed that they are actually the last grand jury to sit in England.

None the less, in a certain rare type of case the grand jury may yet remain a case in which an official of the crown is charged with certain offences or breaches of duty when on service within the empire or abroad. Such cases have been and will continue to be considered by Middlesex juries.

The passing of the grand jury marks one of the most important changes in jurisprudence for years and the inns of court have been buzzing with controversy for weeks past.

Here are a few opinions of legal experts on the grand jury:

"Futile and expensive."—The Recorder of Liverpool.

"The grand jury is an essential part of the administration of justice."—The Recorder of London (Sir Ernest Wild).

"They have survived their time."—Lord Dunsing.

Geneva Committee To Meet Nov. 3

Geneva, Oct. 28.—A communique yesterday evening revealed that Hon. Arthur Henderson, president of the Disarmament Conference, had called a meeting of the steering committee for November 3, instead of November 9, as previously arranged.

The steering committee was called to meet November 9, when the full conference last Thursday voted to adjourn until December 4.

The communique added that Mr. Henderson had taken this step under a general mandate given by the committee that if any useful purpose could be served by holding a meeting before November 9 he could arrange it.

WAGES RAISED BY TIP TOP TAILORS

Toronto, Oct. 28.—Even though the Blue Eagle is an unknown bird in Canada, many Canadian firms, conscious of improving conditions, are taking the initiative and increasing wages of their employees. Among the firms taking this step is Tip Top Tailors Limited, the general manager of which, H. R. MacKechnie, recently announced a wage increase for all workers.

"Conditions are already vastly improved," said Mr. MacKechnie in announcing the new wage schedule. "At our Toronto plant we are working at full capacity in an effort to keep up with current orders. From present indications, the fall season seems as if it will be one of the best in our history. Demand is exceptionally large in both suits and overcoats, and orders coming in from over 2,000 stores and agents indicate that people as a whole are experiencing a fresh access of hope and confidence which is bringing them at once into the market."

"With this brighter outlook, with work in hand that promises to keep us for months on steady full-time operation, we are following our usual policy of increasing wages wherever possible and the new increase will be effective from October 24."

SAYS HITLERISM IS ALTERNATIVE

C.C.F. Speaker Declares Change in Economic Struc- ture Imperative

Hitlerism, rioting and possible revolution were the alternatives offered by W. W. Lefaux, C.C.F. candidate in Vancouver, at a meeting yesterday evening. If a change is not made in the present economic system.

Mr. Lefaux spoke in support of W. E. Pearce, the party's candidate in Saanich, at Marigold Hall.

He attacked both the Liberal and Unionist parties, declaring the Liberal platform was impracticable and warning against a "Tommie sympathy vote."

The C.C.F., he said, was willing to work with any party that realized the necessity of changing the present economic structure of the world.

The reason the party had no leader was because if a crisis arose any one of several men would be used for the position, and would serve the people as "servants and agents."

Touching upon the bonded indebtedness, he declared the only solution open to the two major parties was repudiation, and they were both against such procedure. He believed the Liberals had a tendency toward inflation.

Mr. Lefaux branded statements of the Rev. Michael Billeter regarding Russia as absolutely false, stating conditions there were not as bad as represented. He also took up the cudgels on behalf of W. A. Pritchard in reference to the statement made in 1919 that he was "running against the late lamented Mr. Christ," and expressed Mr. Pritchard's regrets in this regard.

T. Guy Sheppard acted as chairman.

Montreal, Oct. 28.—The Roman Catholic community of the province of Quebec yesterday suffered its seventh major fire disaster in the last twelve months.

Damage estimated at approximately $60,000 was caused by a blaze which broke out near the belfry of the Church of the Immaculate Conception here and burned its way between the ceiling and the roof to the centre of the building. First estimates placed the damage at $200,000, but this was later revised after a check of the premises.

SUN EXPLOSION VIEW DOUBTED

Obliteration of All Life on World in Few Hours Not Probable

Dr. J. A. Pearce Is Speaker at Meeting of Astronomical Society

The possibility of the sun exploding with tremendous suddenness, and obliterating all life on the world in a few hours, was discounted by Dr. J. A. Pearce in his lecture on New Stars at the Y.W.C.A. yesterday evening before the Victoria Branch of the Royal Astronomical Society.

Novae, the new stars, Dr. Pearce explained, were stars which, for some reason not fully known to man, detonated suddenly, and threw out a cloud of matter which travelled twice the distance between the earth and the sun in a single day, and which went on travelling at a uniform speed. The two most plausible causes of this explosion, he said, were that the star had entered a cloud of dark matter floating in space and become heated by friction, or that it had reached a point in its cooling process when the outer skin could no longer hold the internal pressure, and the whole sphere blew up.

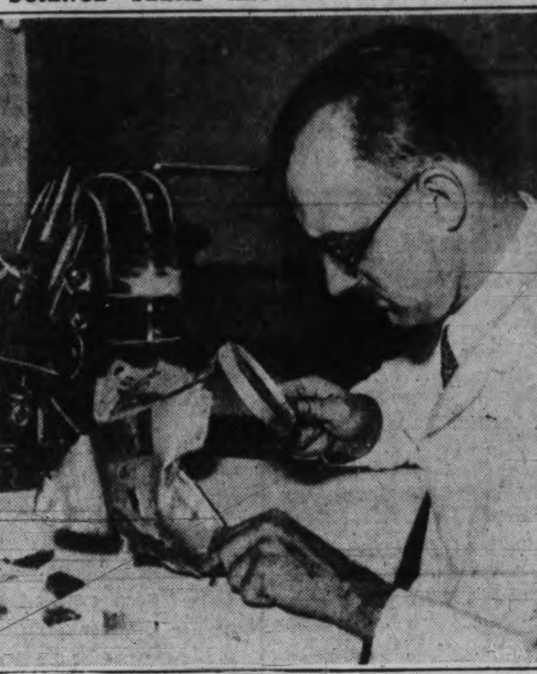

Fortunately the sun is in no danger of suffering from either of these causes, for there are no dark nebulae, or clouds of matter, near it, and it is not of the magnitude at which the explosion most commonly occurs.

Most striking of the examples of new stars given by Dr. Pearce was that known as Nova Aquilae, which in the space of nine hours from November 7 and 8, 1918, was seen to increase in actual brilliance from six to 400,000 times the brightness of the sun, and to send out a wave of matter from its surface at a speed of 100,000 miles per day. The actual explosion took place in the eighth century of this era, but the distance of the star is such that the light which left the star then only reached the earth 1,300 years later.

The first nova to be accurately observed was that seen in 1572 by Tycho Brahe, Danish nobleman, who made a wonderfully accurate estimate of its general distance with elementary instruments, but who saw in it a second star of Bethlehem, and a portent of strange happenings. There were many earlier records, said Dr. Pearce, especially from China, but none give any accurate details.

An interesting point commented on by Dr. Pearce was that the majority of novae stars in the stellar system of which the sun is a member are found in the central part of the system, and to an observer from this planet seem to come below the equator of this galactic system, suggesting that the sun is above that equator. Observations show that the mass of novae in other nebulous system are also in the centre.

Dr. Pearce also showed spectra of novae showing at the time of their explosion distinct marks of metals, which faded subsequently, and give place to hydrogen, which in turn is displaced by traces of helium.

Two other short addresses were given in addition to Dr. Pearce's lecture. H. E. Moore spoke at the beginning of the meeting on the life and work of Herschel, who fled from Hanover to England to escape war, and in March 1781 discovered the planet Uranus. He was an indefatigable worker, whose discoveries included the satellites of Saturn, and Venus, and the constitution and number of nebulae.

W. B. Brydon addressed the society on the subject of the nova R. S. Ophiuchi, which he personally observed during its sudden increase in brilliance in August of this year. "This star had already done the same thing in June 1898, and is one of the few novae which do not conform to the rules."

It was announced that the next meeting will be in three weeks time, and the subject of discussion, meteors.

WINTER RELIEF SCALE IS FIXED

City Closes to Resume Former Allowances at Beginning of November

The winter scale of relief allowances for Victoria will go into effect at the beginning of November, the City Council decided yesterday afternoon, on recommendation of the relief committee.

This makes provision for restoration of the $2.50 a month per family which was cut off by the city at the beginning of the summer. It leaves the city allowance several dollars higher than the Jones scale.

Meeting as a public works committee yesterday afternoon, the council had expected a delegation from the "Relief Conference Committee," which sought a twenty-five per cent increase in relief, but the delegation did not appear, although sending a notice that it would see the council next Monday night.

The council previously had notified the committee that it did not meet delegations on Monday, but was willing to see the delegation on Friday. This position will again be outlined to the organization.

PYTHIAN HEAD TO VISIT CITY

Supreme Prelate of Order Coming to Victoria to Speak Next Saturday

The Supreme Prelate, Fred S. Attwood, of the Knights of Pythias will visit Victoria November 4. An open meeting will be held on that date at 8 p.m. in the K.P. Hall, 1418 Broad Street. Mayor Leeming will be present and in addition to the addresses a musical programme will be presented.

Supreme Prelate Attwood lived in British Columbia from 1902 to 1904 and has since visited Victoria on several occasions. He was born in Reading, England, on March 30, 1876, and he was educated in the English public schools, coming to Winnipeg in April, 1892. He worked as shoe clerk for two years in Winnipeg, then answering the call of the church, entered the Baptist Home Mission Field as student pastor in 1895. He attended Manitoba College during the fall and winter terms of 1896-97, working his way through. He served as missionary pastor in Manitoba from 1895 to 1902. Recognizing the immense field for service in fraternal work he selected the Order of the Knights of Pythias as his first love. He was initiated into Stanley Lodge No. 17 at Morden, Manitoba, November 30, 1899. In September, 1904, he moved to Minneapolis, Minn., where he was engaged in Pythian field work until January, 1905, when, by reason of loss of sight, he was compelled to abandon this work. From 1906 to 1909 he served as pastor of the Congregational Church of Lambert and Walnut Grove, Minnesota.

Bro. Attwood's most successful and beneficial work in the order has been in the physical blindness entombed him. He now comes as the leading lecturer in this great international order founded on good fellowship and genuine friendship, and dedicated to the ideals of unselfish service.

He will address Maple Lodge No. 5 at Duncan on Friday, November 3, and Far West No. 1 at Victoria on November 4.

The Knights of Pythias of Victoria extend a hearty invitation to all to hear this great speaker.

A "Royale Windsor" Birthday Cake

Celebrating the Sixtieth Year of Progressive Business by David Spencer Ltd.

This magnificent cake, weighing a hundred and eighty-six pounds some ounces, its six layers and sixty candles was all mixed, baked and iced by McLean's Bakery from the exclusive recipe "Royale Windsor."

It was the centre of attraction on October 26, when the staff of David Spencer Limited were hosts at a banquet held in the firm's dining-rooms to the pioneers of Victoria. The cake won much favor for its delicious and appetizing flavor.

McLean's Bakery appreciates this tribute to its achievement, having always maintained quality in all its products. Orders for Christmas or Wedding Cakes or any of your pastry needs may be placed with either store.

ORIENT TRADE UNDULY SHRUNK

Macfarlane Tells of Objections to Buying From Canada, But Sees Hope

Since 1930 Canadian trade with the Far East, which had increased tremendously between 1920 and 1929, has shrunk even more than our trade as a whole, A. D. Macfarlane, K.C., Canadian delegate to the recent Institute of Pacific Relations Conference, pointed out to members of the Credit Granters' Association at their luncheon meeting in Spencer's dining-room.

"Trade depends not only on having goods to sell but upon the willingness of the Orient to take our Canadian goods," Mr. Macfarlane said. "Whether or not the Orient wants our goods is the question."

It is at this point that the problem of friendly relations arises and the Pacific Relations Conference has been attempting to determine the causes of ill-feeling and the possibilities of its removal.

CHINESE OBJECTIONS

As for the Chinese, it was found they had two major objections against Canada. One was over immigration, their feeling being that they were treated unfairly in comparison with Japanese and were not allowed to bring their wives into the country. The other objection arose out of the feeling that Britain had not supported China properly in dealing with the Manchurian question at the League of Nations and Canada in their minds was linked up with the British attitude, sharing responsibility for it. "Perhaps the thing we most fear however, is the thing in which perhaps may lie our greatest hope—the industrialization of these great Oriental countries," Mr. Macfarlane went on. "If this industrialization is accompanied by a rise in the standard of living of the people of the Orient, then I see in it no menace but a source of hope. We cannot stop the development of the Orient, but it may be well that in the building up of the industries of the people of China and Japan, their wealth will be increased. With growing wealth there will be a constantly increasing importation of the products of other countries, which mean an increase in international trade."

CANADIAN PLANT IS ESTABLISHED

One of the largest producers of pet foods and medicines in the United States, the Justine Company of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, yesterday announced the establishment of a Canadian subsidiary to be known as Justine Pet Foods Limited, located at 40 Hanna Avenue, Toronto, Ont.

Mr. J. E. Hunn, President of both the Milwaukee and the new Canadian

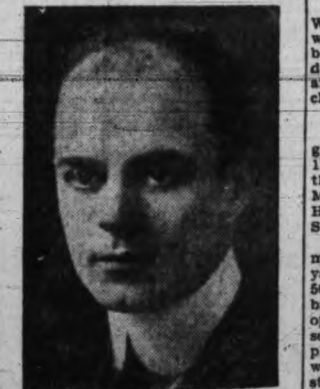

J. E. HUNN

Company, stated on his visit here that the Canadian business had grown to such an extent that it necessitated the establishment of this new unit in its chain of factories which are located in Milwaukee, Jersey City and Los Angeles.

Mr. Hunn expressed every confidence in Canada's future and added that they also intend to develop the company's export business throughout the British Empire from the Canadian plant.

Mr. A. A. Henry, formerly of London, Ont., who has been the Canadian rep-representative for the past nine months, is now General Manager and a Director of the Company.

When interviewed, he stated that the company's products have been exceptionally well received by the larger retail outlets and with the establishment of a substantial growth in new business.

WOULD IMPROVE ROAD TO KAPOOR

Steps to have the road between Goldstream and Kapoor Lumber Mill improved in order that business from the mill may be diverted to Victoria will be taken by the executive of the city public works committee, on a motion proposed by Alderman W. D. Todd at yesterday afternoon's meeting.

Alderman Todd said he understood there were only about four miles of the road in bad shape at the present time, and he suggested the government be approached.

The committee instructed the executive to take up the matter with the Department of Public Works.

WAR SCARE SENDS AUSTRIAN TROOPS TO GUARD FRONTIERS

In the grip of a war scare because of Germany's withdrawal from the League of Nations and Disarmament Conference, Austria, fearing a repetition of 1914, is hurriedly strengthening her frontier defenses by stringing barbed wire along the frontier and sending soldiers to exposed outposts. In this picture Austrian guards are shown questioning a traveler on the frontier.

High School Notes

At Tuesday morning's assembly Principal Ira Dilworth expressed regret at the passing of Major Barnett Harvey, a former member of the staff. Mr. Harvey served as the school athletic instructor during the early part of the Great War, but he obtained leave of absence to serve overseas.

Principal Dilworth congratulated all students who took part in the gala held by the Victoria Amateur Swimming Club last Saturday evening. Several awards were won by the school and Mr. Dilworth presented the prizes to the senior relay team, made up of William Moir, Kenneth Billingsley, Iver Puller and Beverly Honor; to Iver Puller, winner of the fifty yards open freestyle, and to Kenneth Billingsley, who won second place in the diving competition.

The Blacks basketball team won a hard-fought practice game from the Chinese Students on Saturday morning.

The four High School Feden Cup basketball teams have announced their final lineups and four strong quintettes are the result. The teams are as follows: Blacks—H. Hudson, D. Murphy, A. Webster, F. P. D. Chis, A. Korkbride, M. Dennstedt, C. Coates and A. Jackson. Nuggetts—L. MacGregor, L. Lowe, K. Noakes, M. Macgregor, W. Smith, J. Phillips, P. Jo, D. Adams, C. McHaffie and W. Frier. Cardinals—G. Andrews, W. Wallis, R. Taylor, A. Barbu, C. Guelpa, D. Hadson, H. Smith, S. Ashurst, D. Walker and C. Stevens. Shamrocks—B. MacMurdie, D. Tuck, R. Shepherd, P. Minnie, J. Kirk, S. Gaunt, G. Lowe, C. Lee, W. Parfitt, F. Watson, J. Hehida and J. Fields.

The first game of the season will take place on Tuesday, October 31, in the High School gymnasium, between the Shamrocks and the Nuggetts.

The regular meeting of the Portia Debating Society for girls took place Wednesday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock. A debate, "Resolved that ill rules of etiquette should be abolished," was held, with Ellen Curves, Noreen Grevelman and Carol Boyer upholding the affirmative and Judy Peate, Peggy Mulliner and Hope Large taking the negative. Miss Clay acted as judge and gave the decision as a draw.

All boys under seventeen years of age and under 150 pounds, are asked to turn out on the rugby pitch on Monday afternoon to try for positions on the Howard Russell Cup rugby team. This team will meet the Oak Bay squad in the near future for the traditional Howard Russell Cup.

Coach W. A. Roper announced on Wednesday that the wrestling club will meet on Mondays and Fridays, the boxing club on Tuesdays and Thursdays, and the gym class on Tuesdays and Thursdays. All of the above classes will meet at 3.30 o'clock.

The annual High School swimming gala will be held on Friday, November 17. Some of the serious threats for the championship are Iver Puller, Molly and Kewpie Unsworth, Bev. Honor, Ken. Billingsley and Gay Stewart.

The events are as follows: 40 yards medley, open; 50 yards, under 15; 50 yards, under 16; 50 yards, under 18; 50 yards backstroke, open; 50 yards, breaststroke, open; 100 yards freestyle, open; plunge for distance; diving (two sets and two optional); diving for plates; inter-year relay; pigeon race; water polo (A and B teams); ex-students (boys); ex-students (girls).

All entries must be made to Miss Mona Miller or Mr. W. A. Roper by Thursday, November 9.

Displaying superior form, the University fifteen defeated a High School squad on Thursday afternoon on the Fernwood campus with a score of 18 to 3. A. McPherson of the University School was definitely the most outstanding star of the game, scoring two tries, both on beautiful long runs. W. Murray and D. Adams, with a try each, and C. Ose with convert points accounted for the remainder of the school's score. High School's only try was scored by Vic Painter in the second half after a spirited rally of his team.

The line-ups are as follows: University—Peden, Adams, Swarder, Brand, Cremin, Gordon, Galloway, Prall, Bonor, Gee, Dowery, Tegal, Smith, McPherson and Murray.

High School—S. Ross, V. Painter, G. Langdon, J. Cosier, T. Maboe, T. Patt, B. Winsby, J. Mason, B. Simpson, H. Howlands, B. Moffat, D. Chisholm, A. Gonason, V. Woodward and J. Langsan.

The girls' tennis championship doubles was won on Monday by Eleanor Trotter and Jean Wilson, when they took two out of three sets from G.

Hehden and E. Hinks. The champions dropped the first set 6-2, but came back strong in the second and third sets with scores of 6-2, and 6-1.

The High School orchestra and choir will hold a concert in the school auditorium on November 17. No admission will be charged and a large crowd is expected.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

To the Editor:—One of the worthy aldermen appears to be agitated in regard to what I said in my address at my organization meeting relative to the Department of Agriculture. I accept the challenge to substantiate what I said, and furthermore I reiterate every word that I uttered. Obviously it will be conceded that the aim and object to be achieved is to balance the budget. The problem, therefore, is one of dollars and cents. Consequently we should increase our revenue where possible without increasing hardship on the individual taxpayer and reduce expenditures without impairing efficiency.

Increasing revenue will be difficult; reduction of expenditure not so difficult. The sole and only motive of my remarks should not be construed as a constructive proposal. The alderman, if he read the whole of my address as published in both local papers—and I take it as a compliment to myself that he did, then will be fair enough to admit that he overlooked what I said further on in my address and that in arguing that "my objection to the Provincial Department" seemed to be "because of personal aversion to assisting struggling farmers in pioneer districts of the province," he misconceived my purpose.

I would refer him to my utterances surrounding land settlement and soil survey, etc. I contend that what I did suggest should be construed as a constructive proposal. The alderman has approached the interpretation of my address with suspicion and assuming that everyone is entitled to put his own construction on the words of another, I respectfully submit the construction should be a fair and reasonable one. If my friend will turn to the public accounts of 1932 (the latest published) he will find on page KKV, that the revenue for the year ending March 31, 1932, for the Department of Agriculture, was $30,655.12 and the expenditure (see pages K3 to K15, votes five to forty-six inclusive) were $410,387.01. Included in this extravagant sum, we find "Minister's Office" entailed a cost of $13,046.00. Here the axe could be wielded by abolishing the cabinet status and having one minister for the Departments of Lands and Agriculture. In my opinion, five ministers would suffice for the cabinet.

The minister himself received $7,125 for salary, $1,401.56 for traveling expenses and $2,000 indemnity as one of the forty-eight members.

The remedy is reduce the representation substantially; cut out the minister; apportion the traveling expenses between the two departments referred to and the axe will have worked to good advantage.

I concede it would not be advisable to attempt a saving in the office staff. Competent and efficient executive officials are required to see that overlapping in duties of officials (and there is overlapping) does not take place, and to see that there is co-ordination and co-operation and furthermore to see that outside influences calculated to interfere with the efficiency could not prevail.

Space will not permit to point out other wastes of money in one department but reference to the votes above referred to will satisfy any reasonable sane man that a big saving could be made so that over $400,000 would not be required in one year to run this department.

My friend touches upon the value of the commodities produced. Who benefited by the value he speaks of? Certainly not the taxpayer, and certainly not the struggling farmers.

MOOSE BIRTHDAY DANCE SUCCESS

Gay Affair at Foresters' Hall Commemorates Order's Founding

Friday, October 27, is always a red letter day for all the Moose members, and yesterday marked the twentieth anniversary of the founding of Mooseheart, the local Loyal Order of Moose Lodge No. 1390, Maple Leaf Legion No. 53, and Woman of the Moose, Chapter No. 25, celebrated this notable occasion on Thursday evening by a well-attended dance in the Foresters' Hall.

This occasion is celebrated by over 1,700 lodges and their auxiliaries scattered to the four corners of the world. A lifetime of service and good work has been accomplished and built the fraternity to its present greatness, influence and strength by the studies of active co-operation of its members working together. Neither could Mooseheart, the world's greatest child city, have been built to its present size and set standards now accepted by all other child welfare organizations if it had not been for the combined efforts of members of lodges and their auxiliaries in working and striving together for the one great aim, the reward being the establishment of Mooseheart, the child city, Moosehaven, the Old Folks' Home, and put the Order of the Moose on the map of the world. The present day, the unbreakable defending circle forming a wide world link.

The Foresters' Hall was prettily decorated and the dancing enjoyed to the strains of Reg. Wood's orchestra, including in the programme some old time rhythms. Supper was served during the evening downstairs, the tables looking very gay with vase of autumn flowers. The successful evening reflected the hard work of the committee who were: Mesdames C. Spouse, E. Elsenmore, M. Pearce, Messrs. J. Johnston, T. Spouse, W. Fawcett, F. Molton and H. Duffield. Those helping the committee to serve supper were: Mesdames L. Quaintance, J. Morrie, M. Morrie, E. Humber and M. Pearce.

DENTAL SURGERY PRIZE FOR GIRL

London, Oct. 28.—For the first time the most coveted award of the London School of Dental Surgery—where the prizes were presented by Sir Holburt Waring, president of the Royal College of Surgeons—has gone to a girl.

The award is the Saunders Scholarship, the holder of which is regarded as the senior student in the final year of the course, and the winner is Miss E. L. B. Stamper of Brampton Road, Willesden.

Miss Stamper also took prizes in bacteriology, dental surgery, and dental diseases in children, and a certificate of honor in radiology.

The six girls now taking the course will be the last, as the school has now been closed to further women students.

HITLERITES HAIL NEW MAGDALEN

Brown shirts of the Nazi regime have replaced the patriarchal robes of Oberammergau, scene of the Passion Play, and the Hitler salute is the greeting to visitors in the far-flung Bavarian town. But the "new day" means little to Klara Mayr, above, for her thoughts are centred on her portrayal of the role of Mary Magdalen in the next Passion Play. In the recent election, she was chosen again for the part which she played in 1930.

Jubilee Junior W.A. Are Popular Hostesses

Nearly 300 Guests at Delightful Dance at Empress Hotel

Proceeds Will Carry on Work Among Needy Patients

Dances are invariably popular forms of entertainment and when the occasion is allied with philanthropy and the hostesses have as enviable a reputation as the members of the Junior Women's Auxiliary to the Jubilee Hospital, then the success of the affair is doubly assured. Yesterday evening at the Empress Hotel, nearly 300 guests danced with evident enjoyment under the auspices of this energetic young group, and as a result the needy patients at the Jubilee Hospital, whom the Junior W.A. makes its special care, will be the beneficiaries.

Mrs. K. R. F. Denniston, the president, and members of the committee, Mrs. H. S. Beckton, Miss Ines Carey and Miss Mary-Lou Ross, welcomed the guests. The ballroom looked most attractive with its small tables ranged round the walls, attractively decorated with chrysanthemums in shades of rose and bronze, and in the Elizabethan room were several tables of bridge for those who did not dance.

The bridge players were Mrs. Sutherland Brown, Mrs. David Doig, Mrs. R. H. B. Ker, Mrs. D. R. Ker, Mrs. W. G. Colquhoun, Dr. J. A. Stewart, Mrs. G. Gillespie, Mrs. J. The golden notes of Miss Mona Chapman Wood, above, southern California heiress, and Richard Bonnett, famous baritone of the Metropolitan Opera Company, have been blended in a matrimonial duet. The ceremony was performed at Riverside, Cal.

A former Victoria girl was the bride at the marriage in Holy Trinity Church, Hollywood, on October 21, of Miss Emily Peters Hannington, daughter of Mrs. H. C. Hannington, and the grand-daughter of the late Hon. Mr. Justice Hannington of the Supreme Court of New Brunswick, to Mr. Leslie Starks, M.A., of San Francisco.

The altar and church were beautifully decorated with yellow and white blooms. The bride entered the church on the arm of her brother, Mr. Ernest Hannington of Glendora City, and was preceded by two little flower girls, her nieces, Misses Heidi Ann and Lelita Hannington.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of Mr. Karl Hamerstein and Mrs. Hamerstein, after which Mr. and Mrs. Starks left by motor for San Francisco, where they will make their home.

MRS. E. MURPHY

MUCH MOURNED

Premier Bennett's "Greatly Beloved Friend"; Funeral Monday

Canadian Press
Edmonton, Oct. 28.—Funeral services for the late Mrs. Emily Murphy, long prominent in women's affairs, and for many years police magistrate here, will be held Monday afternoon in Holy Trinity church.

Bishop Burgett of the Anglican Diocese of Edmonton will officiate, assisted by Rev. Capt. G. Reynolds, rector of the church.

The death of Mrs. Murphy occurred at midnight, Thursday, as the result of a stroke.

Telegrams of condolences poured in to the family of Mrs. Murphy. Prime Minister R. B. Bennett sent the following: "Please accept my deepest sympathy in the great bereavement which has overtaken you and your family, and which removes from my ken a greatly beloved friend."

Other condolences were received from G. Howard Ferguson, Canadian High Commissioner in London; J. F. E. Liversy, general manager of the Canadian Press at Toronto, and Napier Moore, editor of McLean's Magazine.

Edmonton, Oct. 28 (Canadian Press).—All Canada mourns the loss of one of its foremost women, Mrs. Emily Murphy, perhaps better known under her pen name of "Janey Canuck." This city which she served as police magistrate, the first woman magistrate in the British Empire, and in many other ways, mourns her loss particularly, for here she was known personally and loved.

SUN BATHS COMPLEMENT COD LIVER OIL

While we try to squeeze the arid of the mother who bakes and broils and roasts her young infant in the withering sun, our attitude toward winter sun baths is that children get too few of them. The winter sun is mild but surprisingly warm even on bleak days. It is indisputable that even with sufficient cod liver oil children profit immensely from being treated to sun baths on face and hands and even on bare legs.

START EARLY

The time to begin sun baths is in the early fall when the air is soft and mild. If the baby grows accustomed to this exposure, it may be continued all winter without harmful results. If mothers are interested in "How to Give Winter Sun Baths," they may obtain a copy of this leaflet by sending a self-addressed stamped envelope. Mention the leaflet by title.

The action of the sunlight is similar to the action of cod liver oil. The sun activates the oil of the base skin to a production of vitamin D. When vitamin D circulates in the system, either because it is given internally or is manufactured by the sun's rays on the skin, it helps the body to make better use of the minerals in the diet. During the winter children are exceedingly susceptible to diseases caused by a deficiency of minerals in bones and teeth and tissues. Even if we provide a diet rich in minerals, vitamin D is essential to store them in the body.

WHAT TO EXPOSE

While most of us, because of climate, are compelled to depend on cod liver oil for our chief supply of vitamin D, there are days all through the coldest weather when children can be aired outdoors or indoors with the sun's rays directly on their bare skin. How much of the body may be exposed depends on the child and the temperature, but cheeks, first one and then the other, hands as far back as the sleeves can be pushed and occasionally the rosy legs may be bared to the rays.

Take babies outdoors with the expectation of giving them not only air but sun, and do not hide them under shrouding carriage hoods or cover them to their noses with blankets. The sun has no beneficial effect through closed windows or muffled clothes. It can only be active when it strikes the uncovered body.

To End a Cough In a Hurry, Mix This at Home

Saves Big Dollars! No Cooking!

Millions of housewives have found that, by mixing their own cough medicine, they get a purer, more effective remedy. They use a recipe which costs only one-fourth as much as ready-made medicine, but which really has no equal for breaking up obstinate coughs. From any drugist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a 16 oz. bottle, and add granulated sugar syrup to fill this big bottle. The syrup is easily made with 2 cups sugar and one cup water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. It's no trouble at all, and makes the most effective remedy that money could buy. Keeps perfectly, and children love its taste.

It's quick action in loosening the phlegm, clearing the air passages, and soothing away the inflammation, has caused it to be used in more homes than any other cough remedy.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, famous for its healing effect on throat membranes. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

WIDOW OF HENRY IRVING HAS TRAGIC MEMORIES

Lady Irving, Now Ninety, Was Deserted by Famous Actor After Short Married Life

London, Oct. 28.—Sir Henry Irving has been dead long enough to become a legend for biographers. But the Irish Miss O'Callaghan whom he married sixty-four years ago is still living—a tragic figure in that tangle of famous people of the theatre who came together towards the end of the last century and emotionally made and unmade each other's lives.

Lady Irving is ninety and lives alone. "Alone," she says, "after all these years and childless in my old age."

The sitting room walls in her little house here are hung with portraits of her dead and brilliant sons—Laurence and H. B. Irving.

There is no portrait of their famous father. He left her after two and a half years of marriage, when Laurence was a baby four months old, and she has not forgiven him.

"I should never have married an actor, though you know I was fond of the theatre and dazzled by Irving, and, of course, we were in love in the beginning. But it doesn't last, you know, it doesn't last."

Years of sorrow and regret have not entirely robbed this alert Irishwoman of the brilliance and charm with which Irving fell in love.

She has lively grey-blue eyes—"put in with a sooty finger"—and they have a startling way of blazing that you do not expect from people who inform you casually "I was ninety last July."

Her smile is still charming. She has the slim hands and neat feet of an aristocrat.

FAMILY OPPOSITION

Her father, a distinguished army surgeon, who had done fine service in India and had also been in the navy, watched his attractive daughter with an apprehensive eye. Her first seasons in London passed with no sign of settling down.

Then, to her family's annoyance, she fell in with what her father undoubtedly called "a rascally actor fellow." Worse still, she married him.

Father and daughter quarrelled passionately at the time and he died before they could make it up. The O'Callaghans, tracing their blood to a tenth century King of Munster, were as proud as only Irish families can be, and actors, at that time were considered pleasant freaks but socially impossible.

"IF THEY HAD LIVED"

Then she and Irving parted. Lady Irving devoted herself to bringing up her clever handsome sons. She educated H. B. for the bar and Laurence for the diplomatic service, but their father's blood was in them as well as hers and both threw over careers of certain distinction for the stage.

"If only they had lived," she says, "I would never have minded anything."

Laurence was drowned in 1914 struggling to save his wife when the Empress of Ireland went down in the St. Lawrence River. Harry Irving—"H. B."—died a few years later of a melancholy wasting disease.

CHANGED WITH MARTIN HARVEY

"Speaking of Martin Harvey," Lady Irving said, discussing his biography of her husband, "I must tell you a tragic coincidence."

"Laurence and he were both in America in 1914, and as war had been declared Laurence was very anxious to get home. All the boats were crowded, but as he knew Martin Harvey was in no particular hurry he begged him to give him his berth in the Empress of Ireland."

"Martin Harvey consented and turned over his reservation to my son." Her eyes filled with sudden tears.

Lady Irving has lived in Folkestone for nearly thirty years. Now she frankly waits for the end of what she calls her "terrible longevity," for with her quick mind and memory unimpaired by age she finds loneliness and childlessness both hard to bear.

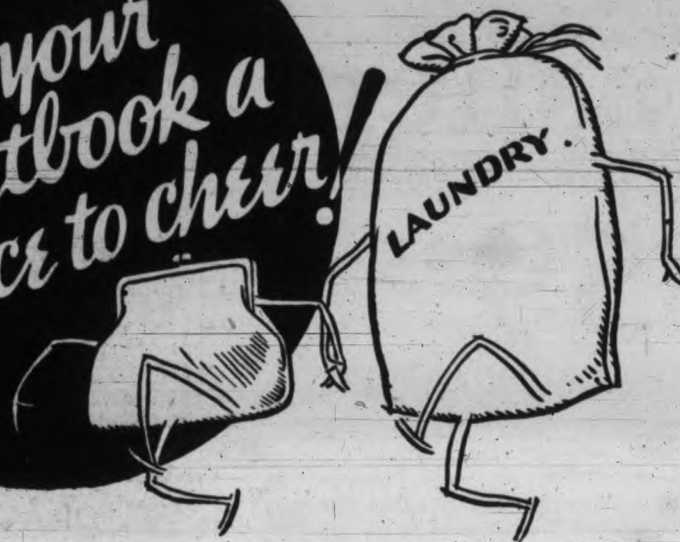

She sees almost nobody, reads a great deal, and never goes out. Years ago her friends used to urge her to write the story of her life.

"I might have done so," she says, "if it was a great tragedy. . . and a great romance. But you see, my dear, the tragedy was too painful to put down."

Sister MARY'S KITCHEN

By SISTER MARY

We seldom consider coconut in terms of food value and use it more as a garnish on delicate cakes and cookies. Nevertheless, its food value should not be overlooked.

One cup shredded coconut weighing about three ounces, contains twenty calories of protein, 414 of fat and 101 of carbohydrates, making a total of 535 calories. It is also a good source of vitamin B, but low in A.

Consequently, when we add a cup of fresh coconut or of canned coconut to a Washington cream pie or any other concoction, we add both nourishment and calories.

Southern cooks use coconut to make many of their famous delicacies.

WILL DANCE HERE WITH ITO

When Michio Ito appears here in recital at the Royal Victoria Theatre Monday evening he will have a group of talented dancers with him. Miss Mary Booth, shown above, will be featured with Ito.

They sprinkle an unsliced apple pie generously with shredded coconut before putting on the top crust. They add coconut to gingerbread. They combine sliced oranges, pineapple cubes and shredded coconut to make simple and delicious dessert.

From Florida comes the following recipe for coconut pudding.

COCONUT PUDDING
One and one-half cups shredded fresh coconut, 1 cup bread crumbs, 1 cup coconut milk, 3-4 cup sugar, 1-3 cup melted butter, 2 egg yolks, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Beat yolks of eggs until very light with sugar. Beat in butter and add bread crumbs, coconut, vanilla and milk of coconut. Pour into a buttered baking dish, place in a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven for one hour. Cover with meringue made with whites of eggs beaten until stiff with 4 tablespoons sugar. Bake eight minutes in a slow oven to puff and color the meringue.

COCONUT SALAD

Two cups grated raw carrots, 1 cup crushed pineapple, 1 cup shredded coconut, 4 tablespoons chopped salted almonds, mayonnaise.

Combine carrots and pineapple and chill. Add coconut when ready to serve. Arrange on leaves of head lettuce, mash with mayonnaise and sprinkle with nuts.

Another very good salad combines coconut with apple, celery and sweet green peppers. Either fresh or canned pineapple is used.

To-morrow's Menu

Breakfast—Grape juice with lemon juice, cereal, cream, country sausage, potatoes hashed in milk, crisp toast, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Cauliflower in cheese sauce, coconut and carrot salad, rice pudding, sweet cider.

Dinner—Swiss steak with brown gravy, mashed potatoes, creamed turnips, head lettuce and tomato salad, canned pears with coconut gingerbread, milk, coffee.

New permanent waving inventions make you want to go right out and buy a new fall wave.

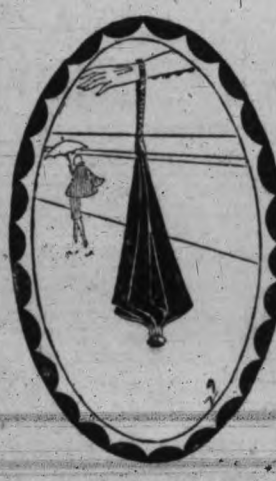

It used to take a great deal of time to find a reliable operator who really knew how to wind hair. All that is changed nowadays and almost all beauty shops have an automatic winder which painlessly winds the hair on rods and assures uniform curls.

The whole process of getting a permanent wave has become simple and painless. Go to only reliable people and insist on having an operator who will stay in the room with you during the "baking."

Many a good head of hair has been ruined because an operator left the room after turning on the electricity.

POOLEY STANDS ON HIS RECORD

Admits Extravagances By the Tolmie Government in Speech Before Electors at Langford

Langford, Oct. 28.—Hon. R. M. Pooley, addressing the electors of the district in the Langford schoolhouse last night, referred in his opening remarks to the grievous loss the province had sustained in the sudden death of his old chief, W. J. Bowser. He spoke of the late Mr. Bowser as a wonderful fighter, who died in harness.

Mr. Pooley gave his reasons for turning Unionist, explaining the province needed a united front. Referring to the fact that he had represented this constituency for twenty-two years, Mr. Pooley said none could point to scandal concerning his office. He had a clean record. Mr. Pooley advised all his hearers to vote for the "devil you know," rather than the "devil you don't."

In denouncing the C.C.F., Mr. Pooley was interrupted a number of times, and forced to answer questions. The speaker touched upon the relief question, admitting he would like to see conditions better, but with increased trade, particularly in lumber exports, new money was flowing into the province and less men were on relief.

Mr. Pooley's charges of extravagance were true to a certain extent, he admitted, but optimism was in the air in 1929, and he could not see if any government would not have had the same expenditure.

Questioned on his attitude toward the introduction of unemployment insurance, the speaker said he was personally in favor of it and did not see why the government of Canada did not operate them. He added, however, that the matter of their introduction rested in the hands of the federal government, and while sweepstakes were disallowed by the Criminal Code, he, as Attorney General, must enforce the law against them.

THREE ACRES AND A COW
Hon. Justice Hinchliffe outlined at length the land policy of the government.

As Minister of Lands he advocated that the government in selling land should charge no interest, as the aim was to get agricultural lands in such use that man could get living out of it.

He quoted three acres and a cow as being necessary for a man to live comfortably, aided by occasional work. The unemployment question was not entirely solved, but it would be relieved to some extent by such a policy.

D. B. F. Bullen was chairman.

Opponents of Nazi System Are Thrown Into Prison Camps

flame in their blood. They have been denied the rights of citizenship. About 2,000,000 others are Communists, and they are not saying the German prayer. They are living secret lives; those of them who are known to be Communists are filling the prisons and concentration camps; they are hiding their time. Between two and three million more are unrepentant Socialists and Liberals who, like the Nazis, had seen a vision, but a very different one. They are keeping their mouths shut or going into exile.

The rest of the 65,000,000 are all worshippers at the shrine of the new regime. At least three-quarters of the people are included in the great reverence which will lead the German nation where it will lead.

ALL IN LINE
So we come to Gleichschaltung, the process of bringing into line which will consolidate and perfect the totalitarian National Socialist state, which has borrowed its ideology from every revolution since the French Revolution of 1793.

"The German revolution," said the Nazi official, "is based on a scientific principle which can be scientifically demonstrated: the unique and distinctive qualities of the German race must be united as one man to fulfill its destiny. The reason why everybody must be brought into line. It is an inspiring ideal."

"One of these unique and distinctive qualities, according to the German official, I have just been reading, and which is published for the first time in the world."

Prefers Sea Breezes

WILLIAM M. H. TROUSSE

After thirty years' teaching on the coast, interrupted by five years in the war, and three years further study in Chicago, this well-known teacher has decided to spend his last years in a more temperate zone. Mr. Trouse, who is a graduate of the Chicago Musical College in Ypsilanti, and a graduate of the London College of Music in London, England, commenced his studies at an early age in Quebec, Canada. Coming to Chicago at the age of twelve he continued his musical studies, specializing in violin under Hans Kertschot of New York City. But who was then Conductor of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra. Former pupil of Mr. Trouse, he is now a resident in Lausanne, Ala., after his return from the war, and where he has the position of soloist and conductor in the United Church for 20 years, and his pupils, who came to him for a radius of 100 miles, have distinguished themselves in the field. Mr. Trouse has begun his teaching career at 2201 Graham Street.

SWASTIKA'S IN THE NAVY NOW

The German waved this aside as a facetious bagatelle, and went on to describe the process of Gleichschaltung.

CHANGES WERE SURPRISE

The whole world was surprised when the great and complex structure of the German trade unionism was suppressed last March without a word or a blow of protest. That was the first step in the gigantic process of Gleichschaltung, and since then there have been many others. The new regime is determined there shall be no divisions of loyalties or political creeds in the Third Reich. There must be no thinking for yourself, for when people think for themselves they inevitably form new parties, new minorities, "and minorities," in the words of Goebbels, "are loose cogs which spoil the perfect working of the machine." That is one doctrine they have taken from the late "Marxism."

The second step in the process of Gleichschaltung accompanied with one stroke what German statesmen had been trying to do since before the Thirty Years' War—out the separation of the complicated system of large and small provinces, states and smaller units which had always militated against German unity. The second step was to take the states themselves remained. To these people, their state came first and Germany second. They even had financial systems of their own. Hitler wiped them all out with a single decree.

NAZI DIRECTORS
Then the industries are forced into line—some of them. Nazis are placed at the head of many of the great industrial federations, to ensure that these industries shall conform to all new regulations. The great steel, coal and chemical industries, however, which supported Hitler financially because he was their last bulwark against Communism, manage to retain their independence at least for a time.

All the professions are forced into line. The Federation of German Doctors, which formerly elected its own secretary and executive, now has Nazi officials imposed on its organization. So with lawyers, teachers and other organizations of all kinds, from the most menial labor to the highest professions.

For the most important step in all the process of Gleichschaltung is the bringing into line of German thought and education. Here it is necessary to describe a point of Nazi ideology. For over 2,000 years the ideal of men of liberal thought has been that the state existed for the people. It is the first principle of National Socialism that the people exist for the state, and that the people must be all of pure German blood, otherwise the state will develop a degenerate culture.

At random and without stopping to think, mention a dozen examples—namely England and United States, not to mention Germany herself—to show that mixture of blood do not result in national degeneration. But Germany believes opposite. Only people of German blood can be citizens, and citizens shall exist for the welfare of the state, not the state for the people. To the perfection of this strange doctrine all the resources of German thought and education are being directed.

IN THE SCHOOLS
Do German teachers tell their pupils Germany was partly responsible for the world war? If so, they are thrown into prison.

Does a professor dare to say that the Germans, like all other western peoples to-day, are not pure-blooded, but a mixture of Nordic and Teutonic and Slav? He loses his job and goes to a concentration camp.

Does a father protest against his ten-year-old son being taught Wehrsport (war sport) in the schools, or at his sixteen-year-old son being taught to throw hand-grenades at dummies in trenches (which many of them do)? He is told to be quiet, or he will be charged with high treason.

"The German people," says Hitler, "can survive only if they co-operate." So all shades of thought must be brought into line. One professor announces to his students: "I never want to hear the word pacifism again! And that is the way of the Reich as a whole. All concepts not in accord with the ideology of the new regime, all ideas of internationalism, all belief in humanitarianism, all phases of liberalism of any kind—these must disappear from the face of the German earth. In Russia it is the same—with a different purpose. In Russia the ideal of all men are formed and regulated toward the eventual creation of a people's Utopia in which the very idea of the state shall wither away and die. In Germany the ideal results which all life is being directed is that of the superstate which shall dominate the earth."

JOBS AND UNIFORMS
Talking to a Canadian, who is the representative in Berlin of a great United States bank, I asked if it was really possible men's minds could be so regimented back to pre-war and reactionary creeds. "What has happened to all the German workers? To all the Social-Democrats, to all the liberal teachers and thinkers?" I asked.

"They have all conformed," he said. "And most of them are now much happier than they have been since the war. The Germans don't care much for freedom and liberty, and the other ideas which mean so much to Anglo-Saxons and French. Give them a job and a uniform and a band, and they will play Follow the Leader."

ANOTHER WAR?
"Even into another war?" I demanded.

"Watch them," he said. "But what if they don't get the jobs?" "That is what we are all waiting to see," he replied.

"But a people which has done such splendid things!" I protested. "I thought of this whole country, which is like a great rich garden, covered with hundreds of the finest and cleanest cities and towns in the world; a country where there are less slums than there are in Canada; the country of Goethe, Schiller, Heine; the country where the people are not logicians, like the French, nor sentimentalists, like the Anglo-Saxons, but genuine romantics. Why this people allowing itself to be overwhelmed by such gross and crude stupidities? Were they really reviving the Aryan myth, and dwelling on the schools, and teaching children to throw bombs?"

"Well, they are, and it is no mere nightmare. Six months ago I wouldn't have believed it," said the banker. "God knows where Germany is heading."

The best article deals with Hitler's "men of attack" against depression, based on self-denial on the part of every German citizen. It will appear in Monday's issue of the Times.

The album playing record is held by the Victor record company. It is a record of an unusual piece since their divorce several months ago. They were at Director Sidney Franklin's party.

SWASTIKA'S IN THE NAVY NOW

The Nazi swastika now goes down to the sea on ships, as this photo shows. Here is a close-up of the bow of the German cruiser Karlsruhe, showing the familiar emblem which is now borne by all ships of the German navy. The swastika is surmounted by an eagle with wings outspread, a concession to once-imperial Germany.

ADDITIONS TO WAR RELICS

Amputation Association Display Attracts Wide Interest

A German bomber's armor weighing eighteen and one-half pounds and a German S.O.S. pistol loaned by Lieut. Col. de Salis to the Amputations Association of the Great War for their exhibition of war relics at 603 Fort Street are attracting large crowds daily.

Many other curios are on view, and the windows are constantly being changed. A pair of wire cutters that fit on the end of a Lee Enfield rifle, and were used in the war by Harry R. McDonald, is another very interesting exhibit, while a broad German cutter picked up at the Canal du Nord by Detective H. F. Jarvis, causes a lot of comment. A member of the Amputations Association of the Great War for their exhibition of war relics at 603 Fort Street are attracting large crowds daily.

ROMAN MEAL IS PROVING POPULAR

Drake's Bakeries Report Very Heavy Increase in Demand For Products

Since Dr. Robert Jackson's recent visit to Victoria and his enlightening lectures on "How to Keep Well" there has been a very noticeable increase in the sale of Roman Meal products all over the city.

Mrs. Drake's Bakeries, manufacturers of Roman Meal products on Vancouver Island, reports that the seventy-five dealers now handling Roman Meal brand are all receiving increased calls daily for the products. To-day, in response to the demand, three new lines have been placed on the market. Dr. Jackson's Roman Meal muffins, Roman Meal breakfast rolls and Roman Meal loaf. These lines will all embody the vital health-giving qualities of the other Jackson products. All Roman Meal lines are alkali free.

SEPARATED?

You could never think these two were on the outs, would you? Yet they are, at least officially. They are Carole Lombard and William Powell, caught in an unusual pose since their divorce several months ago. They were at Director Sidney Franklin's party.

DEAD ONES ON VOTERS' LIST

Believed Total on New Westminster Provincial Roll Is About 400

New Westminster, B.C., Oct. 28.—Estimated as high as 400, the names of dead persons have been found on the provincial election list for this city. The registration, believed to be based on the list prepared in 1920, with the customary revisions to add new names, was not cancelled when new lists were prepared in Vancouver and Victoria.

The names discovered are assumed to be those of persons who died since the 1920 election.

Returning Officer D. E. MacKenzie said he intended to give every assistance to prevent impersonation.

WALLA WALLA CONVICT KILLED

Guards at Washington Prison Critically Wound Another Man Trying to Escape

Associated Press
Walla Walla, Wash., Oct. 28.—Four dangerous convicts making a break from the Washington State Penitentiary here yesterday evening were blocked by a rain of bullets, one man being killed and one critically wounded and two recaptured.

Donald F. Collins, twenty-one, serving ten years from Callam County for assault, was slain.

James Penning, thirty-seven, apparently the leader of the plot, was critically wounded in the head. Penning is serving twenty to thirty years for robbery in King County.

James Penning, thirty-seven, apparently the leader of the plot, was critically wounded in the head. Penning is serving twenty to thirty years for robbery in King County.

The convicts, working in the prison commissary department, cut the bars in the window of the vegetable cellar and escaped into the yard. With an improvised ladder about twenty feet long, they had started scaling the outer wall when the guards fired.

The attempted break was quickly over, though by that time the great siren was wailing its warning through Walla Walla. Members of the Washington National Guard belted on sidearms, grabbed rifles and headed for the prison, as it was first feared a general riot had started, but the soldiers were not needed.

SUBWAY WAIF DIES; TWIN ILL

New York Mother Tells Tragic Story of Desertion

Associated Press
New York, Oct. 28.—Marie Del Rosso, the subway waif—is dead and her twin is seriously ill.

The mother, who is under bond on a charge of deserting her two-week-old twins, told the story to-day.

"Marie died Tuesday," said Mrs. Marie Del Rosso, "a few minutes before I made my daily call at the foundling home."

"Roberta, the other twin, is very sick. There was a blood transfusion yesterday."

Mrs. Del Rosso left Marie in a subway and Roberta near a church altar the day she was dismissed from the hospital.

Her husband makes $10 a week as a bellhop "and the children needed lots of things I couldn't buy."

She told her husband the twins had died, and then left them. Her tears gave her away, however, for she wept when officers asked what had happened to her babies.

They were taken to a foundling hospital. Mrs. Del Rosso called daily. Marie contracted pneumonia. Roberta, wasting away because of prolonged malnutrition, is a "very sick" baby.

A person who asked to remain anonymous furnished ball for the mother, who was allowed to see the twins every day.

Mrs. Del Rosso's face was strained with grief to-day.

"I got crank letters," she said, "saying I was crazy and that I should be put in jail for the rest of my life. I don't think they should pin any medals on me, but I'm having a hard enough time."

FIND BODY OF MISSING GIRL

Body of Her Sister Still Missing in Gulf of St. Lawrence

Canadian Press
Quebec, Oct. 28.—The body of Maude Asch, fifteen, who with her cousin, Marguerite Asch, seventeen, disappeared from their home at Peninsule, Que., August 30, has been found floating in the bay at Gaspe, according to word received at the Attorney-General's office here.

A week ago fishermen found a girl's foot wedged in the rocks on the Gaspé coast. It had been tentatively identified as that of Maude Asch.

No trace has been discovered of the older girl. A country-wide police search has been prosecuted since the girls vanished nearly two months ago.

Grim Time Ahead, Gloomy Dean Warns

Reuter's Special to The Victoria Times
London, Oct. 28.—The law of sowing and reaping has been fully exemplified in the world crisis through which we are now passing," he said. "All injustice eventually comes home to roost."

"If we delved through into the cause of German militarism we should find that the roots sprang from the Moscow campaign of 1812, when hosts of Germans were forcibly enlisted in Napoleon's army."

"I had hoped that a great outburst of intellectual and spiritual activity would follow the Great War such as marked the aftermath of the defeat of the Spanish Armada and the overthrow of Napoleon."

"Nothing of the kind has yet happened and the next generation will probably be a time of sowing rather than of reaping. A grim time still lies ahead of us which will test our character as much as the Great War did."

"We have greatly neglected our spiritual and intellectual heritage and it is imperative that we work out reforms in education to place the greatest treasures of civilization within the reach of all who appreciate them."

"In the future almost everyone will have increased leisure at their command, the training for leisure will be to be regarded as of equal importance with training for work."

"The next thirty years will be a time for recuperation and we must keep our eyes fixed not only on the immediate future, but on the generations that follow us."

The annual tax sale is set for November 6, which is the first Monday in November. There are a large number of properties listed for sale at the present time, but it is expected many will be removed by payments before the sale starts. An increase in the collection of current tax accounts is also anticipated. Barring the usual three days of next week before the imposition of the second one per cent penalty on unpaid bills. The second penalty becomes effective November 2 and will bring the total to two per cent on all unpaid current accounts.

"CADDY" VISITS OCEAN BEACH

Mrs. Thomas Milburn Reports She Saw Him Shortly Before Noon Yesterday

Traveled Fast and Had Only Head Out of Water; Case For Sea Serpents

Further evidence that Cadborosaurus made his return to Victoria yesterday from the entrance to the Strait of Juan de Fuca was given this morning by Mrs. Thomas Milburn of Ocean Beach, who stated she saw "Caddy" about 10:35 o'clock yesterday morning very close to the shore near her home.

Mrs. Milburn watched "Caddy" for several minutes but at the time was unable to see much more than his head. He was traveling at a terrible speed, she said, and when she last saw him was headed for the Esquimalt light-house and Victoria.

When Mrs. Milburn first saw "Caddy" she ran upstairs to get a better view of him. He traveled so fast, she said, that it was rather difficult to get an accurate description of it.

Mrs. Milburn's report coincides with that of Mrs. G. G. Claydon and Mrs. G. G. Kemp, 118 Beechwood Avenue, who saw it yesterday morning.

There is an abundance of evidence of the widespread interest being shown in "Caddy" by the community that are being made in newspapers of other countries. Several readers have sent to the Times clippings from some of the papers in the United States and Canada. The Boston Herald notes that it is unusual for serpents to inhabit the Pacific Coast, and that the reports of them being sighted, coming from the Atlantic seaboard. In part, an editorial says: "Now with some chagrin it must be recorded that the reports of these creatures come from the Pacific side. Two officials of the government of British Columbia (Major H. W. Langley and Mr. Kemp) in the past have written accounts of a monster with coils like a snake, its head ten feet out of the water and clearly seen at different times."

Lieut.-Commander R. T. Gould, a naval officer of note in England, argues the case for the sea serpent and firmly believes in their existence. He presents his argument in a recent publication, "The Sea Serpent," in which he deals at length with reasons for his belief. In an English newspaper the following comment is made on this book: "The author states that when the case for the sea serpent's existence is examined in detail, one can scarcely fail to be struck with the consistency and weighty character of the evidence and the almost puerile nature of many of the numerous (and inconsistent) attempts to discredit and belittle it by 'broadly speaking,' says the author, 'it may be said that those who do not know the facts of the case, regard the sea serpent as an exploded myth—those who do, don't.'"

"One of the most interesting cases recorded was that of the strange creature seen from the steamer Umfula, of the Natal Line, in 1893, on her way from this country to the Cape. The author writes on the starboard side of the ship, and about 400 yards away, there rose into sight a large creature with a serpentine head and neck, moving rapidly through the water on an opposite course to the Umfula's. The body, which exhibited three distinct humps, is described as looking like a 100-ton gun partially submerged."

This monster was observed by several of the crew and passengers, and its appearance was described in the log. According to the ship's mate, it travelled at the rate of fifteen knots. "Some kind of sea monster was sighted off Hoy, in the Orkneys, in 1890. The last of several years in which the fisherman saw it annually."

CHILD SHOWS NEW MACHINE

Eleven-year-old Girl Astonishes Crowds By Operating New Beatty Ironer

Crowds congregated around the Beatty Washer store at 1009 Douglas Street to-day to witness one of the greatest novelties in mass demonstration ever displayed. In the window was a little girl operating the new Beatty Ironer—ironing shirts, ruffled curtains and any piece of laundry that was handed to her. In the doorway the old method of ironing with the hand iron was very graphically demonstrated by Mr. Russell, the local manager. He outlined to the crowd attracted by the demonstration the labor saved by using up-to-date methods. It was also clearly shown that clothes could be ironed as easily and in the same time as they could be washed in an electric washer. The little girl in the window was only eleven years old, yet she easily ironed anything placed before her—and in one-third of the time it takes to do the same things by hand.

GORGE BRIDGE OPENS MONDAY

New Steel Span Expected to Give Many Years of Service; Is Modern Type

Much Needed Connecting Link Between Saanich and Esquimalt Closed For Six Months

The new Gorge Bridge, financed jointly by Saanich, Esquimalt and the provincial government, and constructed by the Dominion Bridge Company, will be opened to public motor and pedestrian traffic on Monday. The new span, constructed entirely of steel is one of the most modern of bridges near Victoria and is expected to be of service for several generations.

The bridge is 127 feet long, with a traffic driveway of sixteen feet, eight inches, and two five-foot sidewalks. It has a sixty-five foot arch with a clearance above the high water mark of seventeen feet, eleven inches. The level of the driveway is higher than formerly owing to the higher arch which has been installed.

The span is of the braced spandrel type, with a network of steel webbing, replacing the former solid span. The bridge rests on the original foundation points with graded approaches. It has new concrete abutments on either side and the alignment of the approaches has been improved.

Hand rails have been built on each side for the protection of pedestrians. The bridge was constructed chiefly with relief labor, skilled workmen being employed where necessary. Unemployed from both municipalities were used on the job.

It is six months since the bridge was first condemned for public travel and its reopening will be a boon to residents of Ward Seven, Saanich, and to residents of the south side of the Gorge in Esquimalt. There will be no official opening ceremonies.

HEIRS WIN PROMIS BLOCK

Judgment Delivered By Mr. Justice Fisher Disposing of Government St. Property

A. G. Col of Oakland, Cal., Josephine Andler and the administrators of the estate and heirs of Oscar Promis, under the 8,000-word judgment delivered to-day by Mr. Justice Fisher, in the Supreme Court here, won possession of the Promis Block, Victoria, an office and store building with two stories on Government Street and three stories on Langley Street.

The judgment was given against G. E. Duke, Margaret Duke and the Standard Realty Company, all of Oakland.

The case has been before the California and the Canadian courts for years. To-day's judgment confirms the judgment of the California courts, which had been upheld by the courts here, but was ruled out as of no effect in Canada when it was taken to the Supreme Court of Canada at Ottawa. To-day's judgment allows the heirs here of the case on its merits. The trial which took place here, several weeks ago was fought with Alfred B. D. C. of Vancouver, as counsel for the Col and the Promis heirs, while A. D. Cress and Marsh Gordon of Victoria conducted the defence for the Duke.

Besides the possession of the property, there also goes to the winner the rents from the building, which have been accumulating with compound interest since the series of actions started, and now amount to a large sum.

STRONG MEN ARE NEEDED

Rev. Michael Billester Tells Large Audience Communism Is Counterfeit

British People Have Best Form of Government in the World, He Says

"There have always been times like the present when men of great character at the risk sometimes of their own lives have arisen and taken over the reins of government to save their country, and I pray God that Canada will find such men to take her out of her present troubled times," said Rev. Michael Billester, Russian missionary, in speaking to a large audience at the Shrine Auditorium yesterday evening. Police were stationed at points throughout the hall in case disturbances should take place.

Mr. Billester again said that he was not a politician and that he did not intend to mix in political matters. "I want to tell you that when it comes to government," he said, "the form of government we have as British people is the most perfect form of government in the world. Our troubles arise from the corruption that goes on through the men who get into power."

BEAUTIFUL IN THEORY
"The Communistic angle of the B.C. elections was touched upon by the speaker. 'In theory Communism is beautiful, that is why some of you here in Canada want it, because you know it in theory only. I know it is as it is in practice and it is a counterfeit. It is nothing but promises that are never carried out.'"

If there are any candidates in this election who are present to-night, I appeal to you, no matter what you adhere to, that if you are elected, you will not forget God. His wisdom is greater than yours."

A number of lantern slides depicting conditions in Russia and showing a number of the anti-religious posters used by the Soviet Government were presented by the speaker. These posters had been made as blasphemous as possible in their attempt to kill any kind of religious thought in the people's minds, the speaker said.

Animals Played Major Role in Track Career of Late Steve Farrell

Britain Will Not Take Part in First European Athletic Meet

Colorful Howie Morens Starts Eleventh Major Hockey Campaign

STEVE FARRELL has gone to join his departed mate of the cinder path, Mike Murphy, the old Pennsylvania track coach, Johnny Mack, former Yale track coach, and Bill Donovan, Harvard coach. There must have been a grand reunion in Valhalla when the colorful Steve checked into the hotel, always a professional, ran the middle distances in the famous old Caledonian games, covering a circuit including New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Chicago and Buffalo for several years. He made a standing back jump of eleven feet. He went to England, raced in the Sheffield handicap and won a $15,000 purse against a field of 150.

A horse helped Farrell to international fame, and a dog ended his track career. Barnum and Bailey's circus was at the Hippodrome in New York and one of the badly-hooded events was a race between a horse and a man. A handicap was offered the man, but Farrell agreed to the race without any handicap. Ten thousand people saw him beat the horse. After that Steve was put on the circus payroll and raced the horse daily. In 1928, while training for a race, Farrell tripped over a Newfoundland dog and broke an ankle. He coached thereafter at the universities of Yale, Maine, Ohio State and Michigan, developing such famous athletes as Carl Johnson, DeHart Hubbard and Egbert Schell. Farrell was a great runner, a great teacher and a great fellow. His love of activity kept him going until the last.

Great Britain will not send a team to Italy to compete in the first European athletic championships which the International Amateur Athletic Federation has just decided should be held in Rome next year.

That decision was confirmed at a meeting of the International Board of the A.A.A. Scottish A.A.A. and Northern Ireland A.A.A., in London. The grounds for the decision were that there was no evidence of a general desire for such championships among the European nations, that they were not in the best interests of international athletics, which were better served by matches between two countries, and that the expense of participation was prohibitive.

The international programme for 1934, 1935, and 1936, was discussed at the meeting, and it was announced that the ninth annual European Games would take place on July 30 in Paris, to be followed by the Empire Games at the White City on August 3 and 6.

Negotiations for the proceeding for a match against Finland at the White City will probably be held at the new Olympic Stadium in Berlin, which will then be ready for the match between the British Empire and the U.S.A. at the White City Stadium after the Olympic Games.

"As Morens goes, so go the Canadians" was the catch cry around of the National Hockey League circuit several years ago. Howie, then in his prime, was the biggest promotion agent for hockey in the United States, where it was making an invasion that had all other sports topped for popularity. Howie was the ambassador of the game, whose speed was the discussion in every rink across the border as well as at home. Still one of the most spectacular figures in the game, he is now getting into shape for his eleventh season, ready to refute, as usual, another old slogan "that Morens is burned up."

Howie has melted a lot of ice with his blinding speed since that declaration first became popular. Particularly in rival camps, while he didn't show quite as much zip last year, he was right up among the top line talent. Howie, still in his early thirties, should have a lot of smart hockey still stored up in his tireless system. This is the start of his eleventh season and he expects it to be one of his best.

Frank Patrick has completed his staff of referees for the National Hockey League, which brings fresh faces into the setup. Patrick will introduce Harry Cameron along with Ken Paul, two westerners whom he saw in action on the Pacific Coast. By Benson returns to the fold after a year of managerial worry. Cooper Benson has retired again, this time probably for keeps. Patrick intends to see that his staff lines up to the rigid requirements he has set for their guidance. He will keep an observant eye on their movements, and is confident he can solve the problems that have bothered the league in former seasons.

Merolomas Better Team This Season

Calgary, Oct. 28.—Vancouver Merolomas rugby team is a better balanced squad than the one defeated by Calgary Almonds at Vancouver last year, according to Jack Shepherd, captain of the Vancouver team, here on a tour of the prairie. He witnessed games in which the two Saskatoon teams, Moose Jaw Millers, Regina Roughriders, and Winnipeg played during the visit. Shepherd, declared the football rugby fans, "will have the pleasure of seeing a wide-open game of rugby when the Merolomas come here to play Almonds this year."

Coach George Boucher Bands Together Good-Looking Aggregation For Campaign

Are Determined To Leave Cellar

Scotty Bowman, Former Amateur Star, and Leduc Bolster Weak Defence

Ottawa, Oct. 28.—"Hockey players," said George Boucher, "are developed by playing hockey." In those seven words, the new coach of Ottawa Senators explained to-day why he has had a squad of twenty-two men playing hockey two hours a day for nearly two weeks, preparing for the opening of the National Hockey League season, November 11. Twice a day the squad spends an hour on skates, not skating round the ice, but playing strenuous hockey. Determined to lift the Senators from the cellar position in the league, Frank Ahearn, club president, ordered a new deal early this fall. The first move was to secure Boucher as coach. In his playing days, "Buck" he is a member of the famous Ottawa family that has contributed four brothers to major league hockey, the greatest defence players in the game. He came here from Boston after piloting the Cubs to a title in the Canadian-American league. In his long hockey career he played for Ottawa, Montreal Maroons and Chicago Black Hawks.

PLAYER DEALS

The second move was to secure some new players. After the close of last season, Hec Kilrea, one of the fastest men in the league, was traded to Toronto Maple Leafs for Bob Gracie and a bundle of cash. Boucher ordered Gracie to Boston, securing Perk Galbraith, getting along in years now but still a great defensive left winger. Bud Cook, younger brother of Bun and Bill of New York Rangers, and Ted Sweeney, right wingman, the last two stood third and fourth in Canadian-American scoring figures last year, playing with Boston Cubs. Just when snow was disappearing last year, Nick Wawzenko, left wing, was bought outright from the Canadiens.

Two of the best amateur prospects in Ontario, Scotty Bowman, defence player, and Jerry Shannon, left winger, were added to the squad. Both played with Niagara Falls seniors last winter, Shannon leading the O.H.A. in scoring. The latest deal brought Albert "Bats" Shipper, left wing, from the Canadiens to play a hole in the defence that lost the Senators many games last season.

In goal, Boucher will play Bill Beveridge, rated high among National League goalies last year. He is the veteran, Alex Connell, who will not don the pads unless some emergency arises.

Alan Shields and Bert McInenly, both with Ottawa last year, and Leduc, seen assured of steady jobs on the defence. Bowman may get the call for the fourth place but Boucher has called for the other three. Both played with Niagara Falls seniors last winter, Shannon leading the O.H.A. in scoring. The latest deal brought Albert "Bats" Shipper, left wing, from the Canadiens to play a hole in the defence that lost the Senators many games last season.

In goal, Boucher will play Bill Beveridge, rated high among National League goalies last year. He is the veteran, Alex Connell, who will not don the pads unless some emergency arises.

HAS "KID" LINE

Boucher has been working Bud Cook with Shannon and Saunders as they make the grade. As a third line, Boucher has Syd Howe at centre, flanked by Galbraith and Wawzenko, the type of line that may be depended upon when the going is rough. In fact last year, Boucher has still another line, Danny Cox at centre and Roche brothers, Deane and Earl.

Rounding out his big squad are Gus Forslund, right wing player with the Senators last year, and Eddie Finnigan, Frank's younger brother, who probably will not take the jump to pro ranks this year.

Pruning of the squad will not commence until next week. Boucher, free with words, has given no indication who will be sold or traded. An offer was made some days ago for Paul Runge of Philadelphia Arrows, leading scorer of the Canadian-American league last winter, and is understood still to be pending. Senator officials would not say when they proposed to trade for Runge but said they offered two seasoned forwards.

Andy Callahan In Win Over Garcia

San Francisco, Oct. 28.—Squat little Andy Callahan, Boston, nailed up another victory in his quest for a welterweight fight with Jimmy McLarnin as he scored an impressive ten-round victory over Cerefino Garcia, Filipino who holds the California state title, here yesterday evening.

ICE GOSSIP

Disatisfied and injured hockey players, invariably accompaniments of advanced training, have begun to crop out among teams practicing for the National Hockey League opening on November 9.

Out Heller's is the latest and most serious injury reported. New York Rangers' blond young defenceman broke a bone in his hand when he fell at Montreal yesterday. He probably will not start the season with the world champions.

Ken Doraty became the first casualty in the Toronto Maple Leaf camp when he suffered a knee injury that will keep him off the ice for a week. The diminutive Doraty collided with Harold Cotton, crashed into the boards and wound up in a heap.

Ottawa claimed, but not proudly, two players whose ideas on salaries clash with their employers. Allan Shields, Senators' husky defenceman, and Cooney Weiland, their star centre, both have decided their puck-chasing efforts are worth more than they are offered.

While many players are taking cuts Shields is reported to have turned down a contract for the same sum he received last year. Cooney could not see a $500 cut.

Weiland has left the Ottawa camp for parts unknown, but probably will turn up in Montreal with an appeal to President Frank Calder for an increase in his pay cheque. Shields will remain in the capital to continue negotiations.

Lorne Carr is being groomed to take Babe Siebert's left wing post if the latter persists in holding out on Lester Patrick of the Rangers for more cash. Siebert continues to practice with the champions but has refused so far to accept Patrick's figures.

Lorne Carr's switch to Montreal Canadiens from the Leafs doesn't seem to have done the fall net custodian any harm. Playing for the Yanks against the regulars at Kingston yesterday evening he turned in a spectacular performance as his team won 4 to 2.

MANY MAJOR ICE TRADES

Unusual Number of Trades, Purchases and Transfers in N.H.L.

Leading Players Will Be Seen This Season Under New Colors

Montreal, Oct. 28.—The opening of the 1933-34 National Hockey League season, November 9, has been preceded by an unusual number of trades, purchases and transfers. Many familiar faces will be seen in the coming campaign in new surroundings.

Some of the most important deals follow:

Goalie Lorne Chabot of the Toronto Maple Leafs, Canadian, in exchange for Chicago Black Hawks in exchange for Lorne Carr, a straight trade.

Léon Conacher, the "Big Train" of Montreal Maroons, left defence star, to Chicago Black Hawks in exchange for Teddy Graham. A straight trade.

Gracie traded to Boston Bruins in exchange for the veteran left winger, Perk Galbraith, Aleck "Bud" Cook and Ted Saunders, the two latter from Bruin Cubs.

Gordon Pettinger, New York Rangers wingman, bought by Detroit Red Wings.

Nick Wawzenko, hard-hitting right wing, loaned to Americans last season by Chicago Black Hawks, in exchange for defence player Harold Starr and Leo Bourque. The latter two finished last season with Canadiens, while Wawzenko played out the season with Americans.

Will Starr, young left winger of New York Americans, sold for cash to Detroit Red Wings.

Real Action As Horse Clears Water Hazard

Winooka Shows Form Under Big Handicap

Australian Horse Finishes Third at Laurel After Getting Bad Ride

Invader Reels Off Great Turn of Speed; Trevallion, Stablemate, Victor

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 28.—Poorly ridden by the apprentice jockey, Edgar Britt, the champion thoroughbred of Australia, Winooka, turned in an impressive performance yesterday as he finished third in the six furlongs of the Westover Handicap at the Laurel race course near here. A ride by an experienced jockey of the Don Meade or Sonny Workman type might have given the big son of Windbag victory.

S. W. Talbot's Springsteel, the favorite, was first home, a head in front of C. T. Grayson's Hope to Do. Winooka, a badly beaten last in a field of five two days ago, was only a length back. Behind the Australian trailed such good sprinters as the Wheatley Stables' De Valera, Grayson's Band Wagon, Mrs. Payne Whitney's Curacao and J. W. Y. Martin's Dark Hope.

HAS HEAVY IMPOST

In contrast with his eastern debut, when he carried level weights with his rivals, Winooka yesterday packed the top weight of 126 pounds, conceding a mile to Springsteel and eighteen to Hope to Do.

The Labrot four-year-old raced the distance in 1.11 3-5, one and one-fifth seconds faster than the time made by Mule in winning against the visitor on Wednesday.

Far in the track in the early stages, Winooka looked a burst of speed to rock his way to the front at the head of the stretch and was only a head away from Hope to Do, pacemaker at that stage. Winooka was run into close quarters a furlong from home.

Trainer, and Britt apparently did not know what to do, easing back his mount. Springsteel quickly sprang to the front and just managed to beat Hope to Do.

TREVALLION VICTOR

Maybe Michael Folson, Australian trainer, got his horses mixed up when he started the two members of his stable, Winooka, the star, failed his trainer for the second straight time, but Trevallion, a player brought along by the son of Windbag, galloped off with the easiest kind of victory in a claiming race, winning by four lengths, to pay $24.40 for a $2 straight ticket.

Trevallion won by four lengths, easing up. Charlie K was second and High Stocks third. Edgar Britt rode Norm Hill, which received a big hand from the crowd. Trevallion was a rank outsider.

COLWOOD, B. & K. WIN BASKETBALL

Colwood and B. & K. were the winners of games in the Spanish and French Basketball League, played yesterday evening in the J.E.A.A. gym, the former taking the measure of J.E.A.A. 43 to 30, while B. & K. handed Fountain Service a 28 to 16 defeat.

The hockey team owner signed McCusker yesterday evening, he announced.

After getting his start in Regina, McCusker went to the Tulsa team of the American League. Last year he had twenty-five less goals scored against him than Earl Robertson, net minder for the champion Edmonton Eskimos. According to Turner, "Red" ranks with "any goalkeeper in the National League."

RAPSCALLION DROPS DEAD

Investigation Following Death of Race Horse Yesterday at Laurel Track

Acted Like Crazy Horse at Barrier; Autopsy Being Performed To-day

Laurel, Md., Oct. 28.—Federal and state authorities and officials of the Laurel Park track late yesterday started investigations into the death of J. L. McKnight's Rapsallion in the seventh race here yesterday.

Rapsallion, a three-year-old once highly regarded member of the C. V. Whitney Stable and now racing for McKnight, dropped dead on the track after running five furlongs of the one and one-sixteenth mile seventh race. Jockey Burill escaped unharmed. Rapsallion acted like a crazy horse at the barrier, and a veterinarian representative of the government, sent by a narrow margin and held Woods even in the fifth and ninth.

Hockey Broadcasts Will Start Nov. 11

First of the General Motors hockey broadcasts on a national network is announced for November 11, when New York Rangers meet the Toronto Maple Leafs in a National Hockey League game at the Maple Leaf Gardens, Toronto. From that date until the close of the regular season on March 17, there will be a similar broadcast carried each Saturday night from coast to coast. It is announced that, from time to time, one of the Montreal Maroons' home games will be carried by the national net work instead of a game from the Maple Leaf Gardens. Stations, more than twenty in number, that are to carry these broadcasts, are to be definitely listed within a few days.

Foster Hewitt, who pleased a vast audience of armchair hockey fans last year, will again be announcer on network broadcasts from Toronto and will be assisted by Gordon Castle.

For the national broadcasts from the Forum in Montreal, the announcers are to be Charles Harwood, former hockey player and well-known Montreal announcer, and Elmer Ferguson, veteran Montreal sports writer, with summaries of the play.

LEITHAM WINS OVER LORENZO

Canadian Welterweight Champ Whips Philadelphia in Fast Battle

Syracuse, N.Y., Oct. 28.—With a display of flashing speed, Bobby Leitham, Canadian welterweight champion, outpointed Pedro Lorenzo, Philadelphia, in ten interesting rounds here yesterday evening.

The little Montrealese beat his opponent to the punch from start to finish.

Frankie Martin, the champion's fellow townsman, scored a technical knockout over Matty Metheson, Buffalo, in a rousing battle on the same card, but another Montrealese, Frankie Poiré, was layed in a single round by Norm Cordaro, Batavia.

Alexander (2), Bull (2), Clarke and Moses (2).

Gridder Breaks His Neck Twice

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 28.—For the second time in two years, Bill Tichenor, 200-pound tackle on University of Kentucky football squad, has a broken neck, and for the second time it appears he will recover without any ill effects.

Tichenor, injured in the Washington and Lee game last Saturday, practiced right through this week until Friday he decided to have an X-ray made to be sure his neck was not broken. It was not.

Last year Tichenor suffered a fracture of a vertebra in his neck that ended his football for the season.

GOLF CONTEST IS LAUNCHED

Gorge Vale Members Make Arrangements For Scheme to Aid Unemployed

Members of the Gorge Vale Golf Club met in the clubhouse yesterday evening to discuss plans for the new "time golf" contest, which has been arranged as a relief project by the club, in which the public is asked to assist.

The contest centres upon the time taken by two twelve handicap players to play Gorge Vale's eighteen holes, and the contestants are required to submit their estimates in hours, minutes and seconds. The actual score has no bearing whatsoever.

The proceeds of the contest will be devoted to the completion of the golf course, which will provide work for a number of unemployed during the winter months.

Dr. D. M. Baillie presided at the meeting. C. F. Banfield outlined the scheme, and the members enthusiastically endorsed the project, which is being launched at once. Particulars of the scheme may be obtained from any member of the club or from the secretary, telephone E 6451.

The members also discussed several suggestions for gatherings of a social nature. The ladies' committee was congratulated for the great success of its recent bridge party, and tentative plans are under way to hold another.

MLARNN IS U.S. CITIZEN

Vancouver Welterweight Champion Takes Out Naturalization Papers

Los Angeles, Oct. 28.—James McLarnin, welterweight champion, and his manager, Charles "Pop" Foster, yesterday became naturalized citizens of the United States.

The pair were inducted into American citizenship by United States District Judge Harry Holtzer.

McLarnin and Foster called Vancouver, B.C., their home during recent years as Jimmy's father and mother reside there, and Jimmy was brought up in that city.

"They have spent most of their time in the United States, however, and when Jimmy wasn't fighting or fishing, he usually could be found at Oakland, Cal., where his sister lives, and where he owns property, or in southern California."

It was shortly after his sensational one-round victory over Tony Corbett to capture the title, that McLarnin said he intended making southern California his home. That was last summer, B.C. their home during recent years as Jimmy's father and mother reside there, and Jimmy was brought up in that city.

McLarnin was born in Belfast, Ireland, December 19, 1907, while Foster is a native of Leeds, England, where he was born in 1880.

Earnshaw Going To Boston Red Sox In Latest Trade Rumor

Philadelphia Athletics to Dispose of Star Pitcher Along With Max Bishop

Mack Says He Has No Deals Arranged

Refuses to Be Placed on Spot; Sunday Baseball Question Is Important

Philadelphia, Oct. 28.—Old man rumor is again selling the star performers of the Philadelphia Athletics, but Connie Mack says the buyers and traders have not taken him in on the deals. Latest reports have it the A's are selling Robert Moses Grove, left-handed pitching ace, for $200,000, second baseman Max Bishop and possibly another pitcher. The Philadelphia Inquirer said yesterday evening, however, it had learned from a "source at Shibe Park" George Earnshaw, big right-hand pitcher of the A's, and not Bob Grove, "would go to Boston, along with Bishop."

The paper added: "In the last few days both Eddie Collins, general manager of the Red Sox, and George Earnshaw have been in conference with Connie Mack," and after the conference Collins "hurried back to Boston," WAS RETIRED.

Earnshaw was retired by Mack during the last month of the 1932 campaign, and at that time rumors were rife Earnshaw was slated for sale or trade.

All during the last playing season Connie Mack denied reports of the impending sale of this or that player. They included such other stars as catcher Mickey Cochrane and Jimmy Fox, major home run king and American League batting champion.

"There's nothing to the report about Grove," said Mack. "Tomorrow it will be somebody else. We'll have our whole club sold before the season starts. I hope they get plenty of money for us in these trades. We need it."

Recently Mickey Cochrane appeared in Detroit and reports floated into Mack's office, in Shibe Park, Tower street, that he was about to be made manager of the Tigers.

"I won't be put on the spot," said Mack yesterday, commenting on all the reports. "I won't be put on the spot. I will not do this or that in the future for I do not know what the future holds for us. But right now there has been too much talk of trade for any member of my team."

Whether Mack has any deals in mind will probably be held in abeyance until after November 7, when Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and other Pennsylvania municipalities vote on the question of Sunday sport.

If Sunday baseball wins, it is believed Mack would not be willing to sell stars because he would look forward to a prosperous season next year. Sunday baseball would also have an effect on salaries to be paid to some players.

"You know, I shouldn't do this," he said, "I have heart trouble," he said and then collapsed.

MASSIVE MITTS CARRY MANY ATHLETES TO WORLD HONORS

HENRI COCHET GIVES INSIDE STORY ON HIS TURNING PROFESSIONAL

Famous French Player Believes Star Players Should Have a Share in the Gate Money; Sport Has Now Become a Specialty; Strongly in Favor of Open Tournaments

London, Oct. 28.—It is well known that lawn tennis amateurs to-day are receiving large payments to play in tournaments.

Henri Cochet, the famous French star, challenged the world with this statement in giving his reasons for his decision to turn professional.

"I believe everything should be open and above board," he said, "and when star players are asked to play in tournaments they should have a share in the gate money, for they draw the crowds."

"That will surely come."

"I have always held, in disagreement with my colleagues, that there should be tennis tournaments open to both amateurs and professionals as there are in golf, football and other sports."

It is likely that other leading French players will follow Cochet into the ranks of the professionals.

CHANGES ARE COMING

Cochet announced his decision to turn professional to a gathering of journalists in a Paris cafe.

He admitted that his decision was taken only twenty-four hours before. Up to that time he had hoped that he might be permitted to play in the Franco-American professional match as an amateur, since it was in aid of charity. But the French Lawn Tennis Federation forbade open tournaments even with such an aim.

"I am unable to change the rules, so I have to submit," he said. "As I am unable to play as an amateur, I shall be a professional."

"Times have changed," Cochet continued. "Eleven years ago I paid all my expenses up to Paris. Now expenses are allowed, and the time will come when all players will have a percentage of the profits. Some day there will be no amateurs and no professionals."

Cochet twice won the singles championship at Wimbledon, and was twice a doubles champion. His most famous match was when he beat W. T. Tilden in the semi-final at Wimbledon in 1927. Tilden played super tennis for almost three sets, winning the first two easily and leading 5-2 in the third. Cochet gradually made up the lead and won. He gained the championship that year, and again in 1929.

His successes since have decreased in number, but always, until Perry beat him in the challenge round of the Davis Cup last July, he has been one of the bulwarks of the French team in their successful fight to retain the Davis Cup.

Cochet is the first of France's great players to join the professional ranks. Lacoste retired from active participation in the game through ill-health, and Borotra and Brugnon have given up singles play.

"I think that lawn tennis has reached a turning point. It is possible that my decision will be a landmark in the evolution of the sport."

CHANGES ARE COMING

"Amateur tennis and professionalism can very well go side by side as they do in so many other sports. I am convinced that not only is professional lawn tennis going to boom on a large scale, but also that it will change the whole future of tennis."

"Open lawn tennis championships will be founded, and side by side with such events as the Wimbledon and the Davis Cup matches they will attract great crowds and count as major events in the tennis year."

"It is a change which nobody can prevent."

"I think that in everybody's interest it is far better that I should take the leap and join the great body of sportsmen who frankly derive a recognized profit from their efforts and their skill."

"I am certain that my standpoint will be understood in Britain, the country of sportsmen. They were among the first to realize in other branches of sport the use and necessity of professionalism, and I have always been delighted at the kind reception which has been given me when I have been in England."

VICTORIA TO MEET V.A.C.

Local Canadian Rugby Squad in Good Shape For Battle Next Saturday

Manager Ken Scafe Announces Numerous Entertainments For Game Here

LEAGUE STANDING

Victoria	1	1	50
U. B. C.	1	1	50
New Westminster	0	2	0

Victoria's entry in the Big Four Canadian Rugby League will make its second home appearance on November 4 next Saturday, at the Athletic Park, when it will battle the league leading V.A.C. squad from Vancouver in an effort to jump into first place. The Vancouver Athletic Club now holds a single game lead over the locals and a win for Victoria will place them in a tie for the top notch.

Manager Ken Scafe reports the team in first class condition, and the appearance of four new members. They are Alan Wright, Jack MacCallum, Seymour Nichol and Bernie Kinsman, all of whom have performed here under the English code, but who are playing their first Canadian game of the year.

Extensive entertainment and novelty arrangements have been made by Manager Scafe, who promises that the fans will not have a dull moment while the game is in progress.

A Victoria band will be in attendance with 150 students from Victoria College with their cheer leaders, who will act as a rosters' section for Victoria. The first 1,000 children to arrive at the park will receive free candy.

A novelty entertainment is also planned for half time, details of which will be announced later, Manager Scafe said. The loudspeaker system will be utilized with an experienced announcer from Vancouver at the "mike" to describe the plays.

The Victoria manager has also got a squad of fishermen out looking for Caddisbros. Victoria's famous mascot, and he has intimated that "Caddy" may possibly be on hand.

Babe Ruth Has Average Of .301

Chicago, Oct. 28.—Babe Ruth escaped falling out of the 300 hitting class last season in the American League by two points, final official averages revealed yesterday. His final average was .301, lowest since his off-year in 1925.

The Babe batted 458 times and got 138 hits. The slump halted his lifetime hitting average for the major leagues down to .346.

SOCCER TANGLE STILL REMAINS

Dominion Body Refuses to Take Action Until B.C. Factions Get Together

Vancouver, October 28.—Hopes for a solution to the local soccer impasse faded yesterday with receipt of word from Secretary Sam Davidson of the Dominion Football Association, that the controlling body in Canada will not appoint a commission to rule football in British Columbia until all parties agree to that form of control.

Opinion had been expressed in local soccer circles that the D.F.A. would step in and wield the "big stick" of authority.

Officials of both the British Columbia Football Association and the Coast League have been in communication with Secretary Davidson for some time, urging definite action. The council of the B.C.F.A. met a week ago to review the situation. The senior league, however, was favorable to a question whether they would approve and support a commission having full powers of control. The Coast League made no direct response.

At this juncture, application was made to the D.F.A. for a commission.

HIGHWAY OF LIFE TOPIC

Dr. Henry Takes Both Services To-morrow at Fairfield United

At the 11 o'clock morning service in Fairfield United Church to-morrow morning Dr. E. A. Henry will speak on the subject, "The Highway of Life." He will try to show that for life's journey there is provided a safe highway whose characteristics are well worthy of study. At the evening service at 7:30 o'clock he will discuss the question, "Did You Get Too Much Church and Religion When You Were Young?" and will show that the reason often given for present indifference is a mere excuse. The special music for the day includes, in the morning, an anthem, "The Lord Is My Shepherd" (Macfarren), by the choir, and a solo, "To the Saviour I Call" (Carrie Jacobs Bond), by Miss Constance Barlow. In the evening a solo by Miss M. Piercy and an anthem, "Glorious Day, My God, This Night" (Gounod), by Mrs. H. Bennett, Mr. L. Abbott and choir.

SOCIAL LEADERS WILL OFFICIATE

Major and Mrs. Fullerton, the Victoria social officers, will lead the meetings all day to-morrow at the Salvation Army Citadel, Broad Street, commencing as follows: Kneedril 7 a.m., Holiness meeting 11 a.m., Oldtimers' meeting 1:15 p.m., and a grand social singing 7:30 p.m. Sunday school is held in the Citadel at 2 o'clock, and children not attending elsewhere are invited.

The local corps has sustained a loss in the passing of William Frewing, for many years a faithful adherent of the Salvation Army, here and elsewhere. Lieutenant Ronald Frewing, a grandson, formerly attached to Victoria corps, is now stationed at Vancouver Heights corps.

"FORGOTTEN MAN" DAVIES'S TOPIC

Overcoming of Inferiority Complex Also Subject For Temple Pastor

"How to Overcome Your Inferiority Complex and Secure Health and Happiness," will be the theme of Dr. Clem Davies's message on Sunday evening at the Victoria Temple Church. Davies, a long years of study in the field of clinical investigation with hundreds of persons who came seeking his counsel will be given in this address. This is expected to be one of Dr. Davies's most interesting addresses and will be of considerable help to those who are suffering from the strain of trying days in business and social life. At the morning devotional service Dr. Davies will have a psycho-religious message, entitled "The Forgotten Man." These thoughtful morning discourses upon deeply spiritual subjects are attracting wide attention and ever increasing congregations.

"PUNISHMENT" LESSON-SERMON

"Everlasting Punishment" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, October 29. Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Be sober, be vigilant; because your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about seeking whom he may devour" (1 Peter v. 8).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Resist evil—error of every sort—and it will flee from you. Let the slave of wrong desire learn the lessons of Christian Science, and he will get the better of that desire, and ascend a degree higher in the scale of happiness and existence" (p. 406, 407).

WILL TELL OF MISSION WORK

Five hundred and fifty miles on foot in Athabasca, and thousands by caravan, is the adventure to which Miss Eva Hasell will introduce those who attend the Memorial Hall on Monday next at 8 o'clock. The Dean of Columbia will preside over this meeting at which Miss Hasell will present slides of her recent travels in connection with the Sunday School Caravan Mission. This is a time of poverty and distress in the history of Alberta and the Peace River, where crops have been ruined by frost and hail, and Miss Hasell and her companion, Miss Sayle, will have much of real interest to tell and show.

Sunday school caravans connected with this mission to the children have been working in many parts of the Dominion this summer, as in past years, and Miss Hasell will no doubt tell also of this wider aspect of the work.

OXFORD GROUPEE AT LAKE HILL MISSION

At Lake Hill Mission a service of interest to which friends are invited will be held on Sunday, at 10:30 o'clock. Temperance and its relationship to the body will be carried out by the pupils. The special soloist will be Miss Church and the speaker will be Mrs. Sullivan, a gifted member of the Oxford Group team. There will be special singing by the school under the supervision of Miss Margaret Stewart.

British Scientist Writes Interesting Book on Discussion of Aspects of Light

German Youth, Native of Russia, Tells of Youth Movement in Soviet Russia

Sir William Henry Bragg, noted English physicist, has written a book entitled, "Universe of Light," which is the outstanding scientific treatise received this week by the Victoria Public Library.

"Youth in Soviet Russia" is an account of various aspects of life among the youth of Russia, written by a young German, born and raised in Russia, who revisits his homeland at least once a year. His book introduces the reader to a world which never swims into the ken of the tourist traveler. His description of its thoughts, its ideas and its literature give the book a special value.

"Spirit of France," by Paul Cohen-Portheim, is written by a European for Europeans. The argument involves a detailed analysis of the French contribution to European civilization from Louis XIV's time onwards. Herr Cohen-Portheim asks, "Will Paris now lead Europe out of the chaos of thought and feeling which she has herself done so much to bring about?" The author develops the view that Paris is not France, in many respects, indeed, the negation of France, but nevertheless derives her spirit and her strength from the France in which she is set. It is this quality which should enable her to inspire a French, and therefore a characteristically European mark on the foreigners who resort to her.

"Modern Composers," by Guido Pannal, contains studies of twelve modern composers: Richard Strauss, Igor Stravinsky, Manuel de Falla, Paul Hindemith, Zoltan Kodaly, Arnold Schoenberg, Karl Szymanowski, Maurice Ravel, Ralph Vaughan Williams, Ferruccio Busoni, Ernest Bloch and Arthur Honegger.

Written by an Italian musical critic and opens with a chapter on "Changing Values in Modern Music," and closes with a survey of American music. "Comics and the New Party," by Paul Howard Douglas, describes the breakdown of the old order and shows how fundamental must be the changes in our economic and political systems in order to represent equally the interests of wage earner, farmer, and consumer. He then analyzes the two existing parties and shows that there is little hope for securing liberal action from either. Finally he proposes the formation of a third party and the tactics it should adopt.

"Art of Selling," by Major-General Bamfield and S. E. Palmer, gives clear and useful information on handling at the Victoria and Seattle trade fairs.

"Tractarian at Work," by J. F. Briscoe and H. K. B. Macdonald, is a memoir of Dean Russell. The subject of this memoir was a disciple of the tractarians, who succeeded Archdeacon Manning as Rector of Lavington, and finally Dean of Winchester. His life, as it is told by two well-known Anglo-Catholic priests, not only forms an extremely interesting story, but sheds much valuable light on the spread of the Catholic revival in the English Church.

Dual Mandate, of British Tropical Africa," by Sir F. Lugard, is a discussion of the administration in British tropical Africa; the object in view was to put before those who are interested in the development of that part of the British Empire for which Great Britain is directly responsible, an outline of the author's views on the responsibilities which have originated and are being discharged, and some idea of the nature of the problems confronting the local administrator. In the second part, in discussing these problems, the author has made a few suggestions, as the result of experience, which he hopes that they may be found worthy of consideration by the "men on the spot."

"Christ of the Christian Faith," by William Douglas MacKenzie, is a study of Christ as the founder of Christianity and his consciousness of his relationship to God and man.

"Best Short Stories, 1933," edited by O'Brien, is an annual collection containing stories from the pens of Robert Cantwell, Walter D. Edmonds, Grace Flandrau, Katherine Anne Porter, Rex Stout, and others.

"The Ties that Bind," by Daniel Steele, is a minimum of the tediously flat experimental stories.

Other books added during the past week are:

"Review of the Last Fifty Years," by Sir George Arthur, "Service of Christ," by David Christie, "Prominent Men of Canada," by Hamilton Ross, "Annual Survey of English Law," "Medical Care for the American People," "First Book of Education," "Famous First Facts," "Catholic and Protestant," by Alamy Nicol, "Resurrection of the Dead," by Karl Barth, "Indexing of Books and Periodicals," by J. W. Walsh, "Modern Embroidery," by G. C. Holme, "Socialism and Sin," by S. Florence, "National Income, 1924-1931," by Colin Clark, "Instinct of Workmanship," by Veblen, "Chamber Music and Its Masters," by N. Kilburn, "The Music of Leipzig," by Mrs. R. L. Frankel, "John Marshall in Diplomacy and Law," by Baron Cragin, "Curious Cases of the Deaf and Dumb," by J. P. Day, and "Creative Discussion," by A. D. Sheffield.

Millions of lights flare out against the darkness when nightfall comes to New York. A panorama of beauty that leaves the observer gasping is out there. Rockefeller Centre, looking south, as in this striking photo. Ribbons of lights mark the bridges across East River to Brooklyn, upper left. Lights glow from towers that seem to pierce the sky, and rainbow-hued beams flash and vanish from tens of thousands of electric signs. The skyscraper in the centre with lighted shaft is the Empire State Building. Far in the distance, upper right, like a sentinel guarding metropolis, the Statue of Liberty sheds its beacon rays over the harbor.

Notes From University of British Columbia. Beard - growing Contest Starts; Students and the Election; Neglect in the Jails; Views on Russia; Where the U.B.C. Grads Go. Special to The Times. University of B.C., Point Grey, Oct. 28.—In yesterday's issue of The Ubysses, student publication, is contained an entry form for a beard-growing contest. The conception is so tender yet for an opinion to be given as to student response to the proposal, but rules have been announced. Beards will be judged on the following points: Texture, durability, area covered, fire resistance, color, shagginess, length and aesthetic appeal. Contestants are warned against the use of false whiskers, hair restorer or any artificial aid. First prize will be a razor.

As a result of an editorial in The Ubysses a recent issue, in which the lack of student interest in the forthcoming provincial election was justly or unjustly criticized, a straw vote is being taken in an attempt to determine student opinion on the question. U.B.C. voters are asked to vote for C.O.P. Independent, Liberal Union and United Front, in the order named. The straight Conservatives, apparently, have been overlooked. Some dopesters think the race will be between the Liberals and the C.O.P.

B.C. GETS BENEFIT. Figures indicating British Columbia gets the greatest benefit from U.B.C. grads have been issued. The belief that the majority go to the United States and other foreign places seems to be based on the fact that 175 in the United States, 22 in the British Isles, 2 in Australia, 1 in India, 3 in South Africa, 2 in France, 2 in South Africa, 5 in China, 8 in Japan and 6 in other countries. There are 34 dead and 238 whose addresses are unknown.

OPINION ON JAIL SYSTEM. "What people suffer from in jails is sheer neglect," stated Professor J. H. P. King, sociologist, in an address before the Student Christian Movement this week. Dr. King made a careful study of prisons in Canada and the United States, and has written a book on the subject, "The Prisoners of the U.S.A." He would make a big mistake if we upset the whole prison system," he said. The country jails should be abolished and the inmates either sent to work farms or to industrial training camps. Most important, there should be a periodical inspection of the prison and a vigorous supervision of the men after they were discharged.

SOCIALISM AND INDIA. "Will the near future see the sickle and the hammer replace the British flag in India?" was the question asked by N. Nemets in his paper: "Is the Flag of Socialism the Soviet Republic's Menace to the British Empire?" read before the Historical Society. Propaganda, which the speaker saw as the weapon of the Soviet Union, had never been more virile, more subtle and more menacing," in India, he said.

SYSTEM UPHOLD. By a vote of twelve to eleven, the U.B.C. Parliamentary Forum has decided that provincial legislatures, with all their faults, were better for Canada than the present system of federalism. Victor Dryer led the victorious governmental forces, while Frank Miller was largely responsible for the vote of confidence being a close one.

Views on Russia. First-hand impressions of Russia from people who have recently returned from the Soviet Republics have been given U.B.C. students. Robert J. Cromie, publisher of The Vancouver Sun, gave an address similar to the one given by the same speaker in Victoria, while Arnold Webster and Miss K. Portmouthe, both U.B.C. graduates, were heard at a meeting of the Victoria Young Men's Club at the home of Prof. F. H. Soward. "I was most impressed in Russia with the general spontaneous gaiety and the sense of humor," said Mr. Webster. "The impression of Russia is a happy expression on the faces of the people. I had never before seen the joy of their own ability to accomplish Communism in the U.S.S.R."

Notes From University of British Columbia

Beard - growing Contest Starts; Students and the Election; Neglect in the Jails; Views on Russia; Where the U.B.C. Grads Go

Special to The Times. University of B.C., Point Grey, Oct. 28.—In yesterday's issue of The Ubysses, student publication, is contained an entry form for a beard-growing contest. The conception is so tender yet for an opinion to be given as to student response to the proposal, but rules have been announced. Beards will be judged on the following points: Texture, durability, area covered, fire resistance, color, shagginess, length and aesthetic appeal. Contestants are warned against the use of false whiskers, hair restorer or any artificial aid. First prize will be a razor.

As a result of an editorial in The Ubysses a recent issue, in which the lack of student interest in the forthcoming provincial election was justly or unjustly criticized, a straw vote is being taken in an attempt to determine student opinion on the question. U.B.C. voters are asked to vote for C.O.P. Independent, Liberal Union and United Front, in the order named. The straight Conservatives, apparently, have been overlooked. Some dopesters think the race will be between the Liberals and the C.O.P.

B.C. GETS BENEFIT. Figures indicating British Columbia gets the greatest benefit from U.B.C. grads have been issued. The belief that the majority go to the United States and other foreign places seems to be based on the fact that 175 in the United States, 22 in the British Isles, 2 in Australia, 1 in India, 3 in South Africa, 2 in France, 2 in South Africa, 5 in China, 8 in Japan and 6 in other countries. There are 34 dead and 238 whose addresses are unknown.

OPINION ON JAIL SYSTEM. "What people suffer from in jails is sheer neglect," stated Professor J. H. P. King, sociologist, in an address before the Student Christian Movement this week. Dr. King made a careful study of prisons in Canada and the United States, and has written a book on the subject, "The Prisoners of the U.S.A." He would make a big mistake if we upset the whole prison system," he said. The country jails should be abolished and the inmates either sent to work farms or to industrial training camps. Most important, there should be a periodical inspection of the prison and a vigorous supervision of the men after they were discharged.

SOCIALISM AND INDIA. "Will the near future see the sickle and the hammer replace the British flag in India?" was the question asked by N. Nemets in his paper: "Is the Flag of Socialism the Soviet Republic's Menace to the British Empire?" read before the Historical Society. Propaganda, which the speaker saw as the weapon of the Soviet Union, had never been more virile, more subtle and more menacing," in India, he said.

SYSTEM UPHOLD. By a vote of twelve to eleven, the U.B.C. Parliamentary Forum has decided that provincial legislatures, with all their faults, were better for Canada than the present system of federalism. Victor Dryer led the victorious governmental forces, while Frank Miller was largely responsible for the vote of confidence being a close one.

Views on Russia. First-hand impressions of Russia from people who have recently returned from the Soviet Republics have been given U.B.C. students. Robert J. Cromie, publisher of The Vancouver Sun, gave an address similar to the one given by the same speaker in Victoria, while Arnold Webster and Miss K. Portmouthe, both U.B.C. graduates, were heard at a meeting of the Victoria Young Men's Club at the home of Prof. F. H. Soward. "I was most impressed in Russia with the general spontaneous gaiety and the sense of humor," said Mr. Webster. "The impression of Russia is a happy expression on the faces of the people. I had never before seen the joy of their own ability to accomplish Communism in the U.S.S.R."

WHAT THEY SAY. What people are saying, as quoted in The Ubysses: "The hot stuff of the sixteenth century would soon be Prof. G. C. Sedgwick. 'If I had a writer's pen I wouldn't be normal, and I'm damn normal,' from the same source. 'The tea dance last year was a great success. I had a great time. I was a Walker, Victoria student, president of the Women's Undergraduate Society. 'A precocious child of thirty-four,' Prof. F. G. Wood, speaking of Little Orphan Annie.

Beware of Marrying Man With a Mother Complex! Will Love Survive Two-year Engagement?—Lack of Chivalry Price Women Pay for Independence

DEAR MISS DIX—What can you do with a mamma's boy who is still tied to mamma's apron strings, regardless of being twenty-seven years old and engaged to marry me? He is a dear and I love him and he loves me, yet nothing has to be consulted about everything before he can take a step. We can't even go to a show without him saying, "I'll have to call up mother first and find out if we can go." And when we are with mother it's "Sonny dear" and "Honey boy" until it turns my stomach. I begged him to tell her that he is not a child any more, but a man, and to stop babying him, but he will never do it. As I said, I love this man, but I am afraid of our marriage. Will it be always mother first? I am not jealous, but I want to marry a man, not a toddling infant whose mother has to do all his thinking for him. What to do?

Answer: Well I should say that unless you want to run a poor second to mother you had better give him up and marry some chap who has not such a bad case of mother fixation. Because it is incurable. As long as mother lives he will always be her little boy and she will always decide every question for him, and he will always run to her when he gets his nose bumped and wants to be comforted and petted.

And if there is anything more aggravating to a wife, or more calculated to put her back up than that, I do not know what it is. Because when a woman marries a man she naturally feels that she should be first with him. She feels that he should confide in her, consult with her, that he should turn to her for sympathy and advice, and it certainly does rile her when he treats her as if she were a stranger and had not part in their mutual life and goes to mother with all his problems.

There is an old saying that a good son makes a good husband, but this is not true if the son is too good. No other man in the world makes a worse husband than the overly devoted son who is so much in love with his mother that he really has not much affection to give to any other woman.

Such a man virtually enslaves his wife to his mother. He lets mother rule his house instead of his wife. And he thinks his wife should be an echo of mother's opinions and let mother pick out her clothes and tell her how to raise her babies and decide how much bridge she should play, etc. And he is always throwing mother in his wife's teeth and telling how economical mother is and how she virtually runs her house on air and that mother never has but one new dress a season and mother's bread is never heavy, and so on and so forth, until the poor wife feels like taking the carving knife to him or buying a ticket to Reno.

Many men who have the mother complex never marry. Mother will not cut the apron string that binds them to her and they have not the nerve to do it, so they dangle around her, fetching and carrying for her and dragging her around to places of amusement until they are stifled old bachelors. This is well, because they save some innocent women a lot of grief by not marrying them. For Sonny Boy is not good husband material.

Marriage is for adults, not for little boys whose mamma's would not let them grow up. And when one of these petted darlings, whom mother has protected from every harsh wind, gets married he simply can not stand the gaff. He expects his wife to wait on him hand and foot as mother has done, and when he finds out that his wife expects him to realize his responsibilities and give and take and generally act like a grown-up man, he just runs back to mother and tells her how mean Mary or Sally or Jane treats him and that he will not play any more.

No woman can do her son a worse injury than to bring him up with a mother fixation. She not only wrecks his love life but she handicaps his whole life by teaching him to be dependent upon her. The very best she can do about rearing their children than many women have. For they push their young out of the nest and make them use their own wings.

DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR MISS DIX—What do you think of two young men who took their girl friends out with them and then left them to go home alone at 12 o'clock at night because they said it would take them out of their way? Upon being reproached for this, these boys said: "It is the twentieth century and you are fifteen years behind the times. Everybody expects girls to take care of themselves now."

THE TWO GIRLS.

Answer: Being a gentleman never goes out of style, and it seems to me these lads were extremely rude to you and that you will do well to refuse their further invitations. However, you can not have your cake and eat it, too, and when girls went into the world to compete in business with boys they naturally could not expect to be regarded as clinging vines any longer.

We have to pay a price for all we get, and we paid for independence with the loss of chivalry. But it was worth it.

A Little Saturday Talk

While I was writing the stories about "Great Men of Science," I thought about this statement:

"Lester saved more lives than were taken away by all the wars of the nineteenth century."

That, I think, is an extreme thing to say. Hundreds of thousands of men were killed during the wars of Napoleon; and hundreds of thousands died during the American Civil war and other conflicts which took place between 1800 and 1900.

It is true, however, that Lester saved a great number of lives by his system of treating wounds with liquid which would kill germs. If we should give him full credit for all the saving of lives which will take place through the use of "antiseptics" in time to come, the statement I have quoted will stand as true.

Pastor and other scientists deserve part of the credit for the work Lester did. It is always so in the case of any great advance in science or invention—the work of one man depends on what has been done by others who have worked before him.

Slowly, painfully through the ages, scientists have labored to learn new things, and they have told others what they have learned. This building up of knowledge has given the human race great gifts.

During the long period of human history, another force has been at work, tearing down. War—the mad killing of "enemies"—has taken from the human race men who might have done much to help the world. A reader, Mr. D. J. Gerdes, has sent me a poem which is composed on this subject.

Here are a few lines from his verses: "This is not a civilized age, when nations in warfare engage."

"By war-tax this folly must be met; the people have to pay the debt."

"Then there are the crippled boys, who are deprived of earthly joys. Those lines tell the viewpoint of 'the man on the street.' People in general do not like the idea of war. I cannot agree entirely with Mr. Gerdes that this is 'not a civilized age.' We are, in part, civilized. Strong efforts have been made, and are being made, to prevent war in the future, and there is no use letting ourselves be too deeply downhearted about it. It is for us to rise up and be the builders of a new and greater age, when we may rejoice that scientists and inventors are doing so much for us;

London, Oct. 28.—The Imperial War Museum, which is one of London's most popular resorts, has just acquired a number of new exhibits which will be of interest to many who served on a variety of fronts in the Great War.

The buttons from the tunic worn by Joffre at the Battle of the Marne, the first flag hoisted over the headquarters of the 13th Army Corps at Doullens in 1915, and the base of an incendiary bomb dropped by a Zeppelin outside the main gate of Woolwich Arsenal are among these acquisitions.

Relics of the battle of Jutland include a portion of an eleven-inch shell which hit the turret of H.M.S. Tiger and a piece of the bottom of H.M.S. Marlborough, which was torpedoed in that engagement.

A German flag taken from enemy headquarters in Southwest Africa is among the enemy relics.

War Clouds Mass In Far East, Hitler Adds To Fear In Europe

Deepening Shadows Threaten Ruin For Disarmament Moves

Special Dispatch to The Victoria Daily Times

GENEVA, Oct. 28.—Over the world disarmament conference, in session here, hang two ever-deepening shadows.

One is the shadow of a Germany where the war spirit is spreading like a raging fever, a Germany that again feels powerful enough to hurl the gage of battle.

The other is the shadow, darkening also the entire Far East, of a Russo-Japanese war.

Statesmen talk frankly of new conflicts. Charges and counter-charges, increasing in bitterness, emanate from council rooms. Out of Paris comes the allegation that Hitler plans to invade France through Switzerland. Out of Berlin comes a demand to arm on a weapon for weapon basis with France. Moscow charges a Chinese Eastern railway plot by Japan. Tokio replies in ominous terms.

FRANCE GETS INTO ACTION

France calls for Great Britain, Italy, and the United States to present a united front against Germany's demands. She sounds out the Soviet on its stand in event of a Hitler coup. She threatens disclosure of treaty violations by Germany.

All the great European powers are in a turmoil. Russia will do her utmost to avoid war, but will fight. Back in the wings stands Japan, her face a mask black of which no Occidental can see.

The whole disarmament structure is reeling. Japan announced her withdrawal from the League of Nations and it is felt certain that she will refuse any proposal affecting her armaments. Russia, in that case, assuredly would follow suit. If the Soviet took this course, then Poland and her neighbors also would balk at arms reduction. And so on, down the list.

HITLER MENACE GROWS

Until the Japanese-Russian crisis suddenly arose, the one great menace to world peace was acknowledged to be Adolf Hitler.

His menace has grown like the giant in the bottle. It towers above Mont Blanc. It is so black and ugly that virtually everyone in Geneva is ready to admit—privately, at least—that the French probably were right.

The French and German viewpoints are diametrically opposed on the way to start disarmament. France calls for a four-year test period, with no reduction, and no increases for Germany under an international supervision system. Germany says, "Disarm now or grant us armament equality."

Control of armaments, it is admitted, must be automatic, effective, and permanent. But if that control reveals that some nation has been hammering its ploughshares into long-range guns and tossing away its pruning hooks to take up the manufacture of lethal gas, what then?

VIEWERS DIFFER WIDELY

France says, "We should be able to walk right in and conquer those weapons." Other nations rather doubt this course. And the break between the French and the British views comes in the different ways in which they look at crime.

France looks at crime through the structure of Roman law. The accused is guilty until he proves his innocence. The British look out from the back ground of common law and hold that the man is innocent until he is proved guilty. Hence the possible split.

There is much talk of secret German armaments. There also is talk of various violations of the Treaty of Versailles and the Locarno Pact by Germany, which offer the other powers legal right to take penalizing steps. But everyone waits—and lights not matches near the powder magazine.

The black shadow of Germany is not all shadow—there is substance, too, left opening for Germany.

It develops that when the Allies made their stringent restrictions on German armaments and German military training that they left the way wide open for organization of a superb "army of career." Instead of the less efficient army of conscription.

The reichswehr, instead of being a cluster of local cops, has become about the slickest fighting machine yet evolved. And behind it is an irresistible swing toward ultra-militarism.

The subterranean activities of the last ten years in the conquered nation are just coming to light, say officials in high places. They disclose these alarming theories and facts, hatched in the land where Hitler now rules.

The next war will be a "shock" war, not a war of "mass." A highly-trained force of arifian-soldiers. Technically expert in their trades, would be rushed in to prevent huge enemy armies from assembling, working so rapidly and efficiently that they would eliminate the dreary stalemate of trench fighting.

NO WARNING OF WAR

There would be no warning, no mobilization. Hit first, and explain afterward would be the method. Such is the pet principle of General von Seeckt, author of Germany's new and ominous plan of warfare.

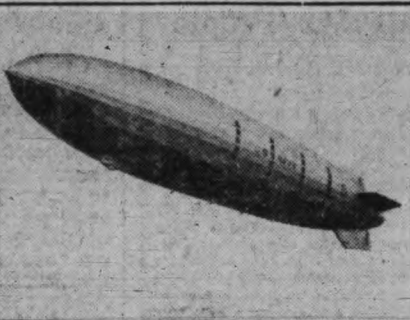

Close contact between industries and army, with methodical peace-time preparations for conflict, would go far toward eliminating the inequality between countries now permitted to

Royal Aunt Tells How Royalty Makes Love

By THE HON. MRS. FRANCIS LASCELLES,
Aunt of the Princess Royal and the Earl of Harewood (Exclusive Dispatch)
(Copyright, 1933)

LONDON.

WHEN considering the question of royal engagements, one realizes how much the world has changed during the last two or three decades. Democracy has entered into the very being of all classes of society, and no longer is royalty the exclusive and closed corporation it once was. The royal marriage is still hedged about with legalities that are necessary for the preservation of the peace and welfare of a great nation, but those legalities are viewed in a different light from that of former days.

HON. FRANCIS LASCELLES

Europe has grown democratic and in many cases has dispensed with royal houses. Britain, too, has grown democratic, but its royal house is as beloved as ever. Royalty, however, is less isolated and apart than it was in former times. The law about royal marriages is quite definite, but its application is tempered to meet modern times. While any adult citizen in Britain may legally marry without his or her parents' consent, such a thing is forbidden to the royal family, and princes and princesses alike must obtain the consent of the Sovereign. To be sure, if the Sovereign seemed unreasonably obdurate, appeal could be made to Parliament, but if permission was denied by that body, then the marriage, should it take place, would be deemed null and void.

ENGAGEMENT SERIOUS MATTER

Times change, but that act still holds good, so no wonder a royal engagement is a serious matter for all concerned. When Princess Louise and the Marquis of Lorne desired to become engaged the consent of Queen Victoria had to be obtained, and in those far-off days everyone thought the young couple manufacture war supplies without limit and Germany, forbidden so to do. This would mean that stored-up armaments would not be so important as believed in the past.

GERMANY "MAKES HAY"

So Germany is not laboring under such insurmountable handicaps as the world has believed. She has had more than a decade to prepare, and that time has not been wasted, in the view of experts here.

The shadows of Germany and the crisis in the Far East hang heaviest over the conference, but they are not the only clouds.

As delegates prepare to settle down at the council table, there comes the full orchestral accompaniment of high explosives bursting, machine guns chattering, bombs hurtling from the air, and machinery humming on overtime work in the world's armament factories.

This music can be heard from the northwest corner of India, where British planes fly out from Peshawar to drop bombs on turbulent Afghans. It can be heard from Iraq, where very revolutionary to suggest that royalty should marry a subject. Experience proved, however, that such a marriage could be happy not only for those immediately concerned, but also as a bond of union between the people and the throne. The bridegroom, in all the glory of kilt, must have been a proud man when he married his bride in the Chapel of St. George's, Windsor. An old Scottish cottager, too, felt her country had done well for the royal family in giving it the young idol of Scotland for a son, and remarked, "Well, the Queen must feel a proud woman the noo!"

Match-making is no uncommon amusement for ordinary people, but though less now than in the days when social restrictions made possible engagements so few, it must still prove an almost irresistible temptation to royal parents. Queen Victoria was not at all averse from helping to clear the way for a sprig of flowers from her bouquet and giving it to the Prince. With native gallantry he proved himself equal to the situation. Seizing a pen-knife, he made a slit in his uniform over his heart, and secured the flowers there. In those days lovers were not afraid of betraying their feelings, and the story has a quaint old-fashioned ring of truth about it.

HOW THEY FELL IN LOVE

It is said that King Edward, then, of course, Prince of Wales, first saw his future bride when in a foreign cathedral, and no one can wonder that he promptly fell in love with the lovely young princess. King George fell in love at home, and is credited with having proposed at Sheen Lodge. Both he and Queen Victoria were married at the Chapel Royal of St. James, but King Edward was married at St. George's Chapel, Windsor, which has often acted as the Cathedral of the Court.

Before the war continental courtships were often very ceremonious affairs, and in many cases the future husband and wife had hardly met each other before marriage. Such was the case with the first marriage of the ex-Kaiser, for the courtship took place at the Imperial Palace in Berlin, and never for a single moment was the heir to the Imperial throne permitted to see alone the lady who was to be his bride.

At first it seemed as if ex-King Alfonso's courtship might be as formal, for the authorities selected six ladies of royal birth whom they considered suitable as the possible future queen of Spain. Four the young king had met, and straightway refused to consider. But the photograph of a very beautiful Austrian princess made its appeal, and she was invited to the Spanish court. Unfortunately when the young princess was seated in the royal drawing-room two nights after her arrival, a lady of the court accidentally trod on the lace train of her gown and made a rent in it. The distressed lady began to apologize, but the princess rose up in a towering rage, abused her, and rushed from the room in a passion. King Alfonso felt he had had a lucky escape, and next day the princess left the palace. It was six months later, when at his own request the young king came to England, to see the young Princess Ena, that the love match was made and a very popular one it proved to be with both the countries concerned.

Meanwhile, the conferees confer. And nobody notices—or, at least, seems to notice—that each of the comfortable chairs in which delegates sit is rigged with a highly modern and interesting device—a charge of TNT.

THOMAS TALKS TO CRICKETERS

Cricket Pitch, With Imitation Grass, Set Up For Luncheon in London.

Reuter's Special to The Victoria Times. London, Oct. 28.—The belief that life is a sideline of cricket is widespread in some classes of society. But it never received "official recognition" or even "semi-official recognition."

Not until the Dominions Secretary, Hon. J. H. Thomas, made a speech at a cricketers' lunch, then he said: "No politics ever introduced in the British Empire caused me so much trouble as this d—d body-line bowling!"

The lunch was one given by Sir Julian Cahn, the sportsman philanthropist, before he left with a cricket team for Canada, the United States and Bermuda.

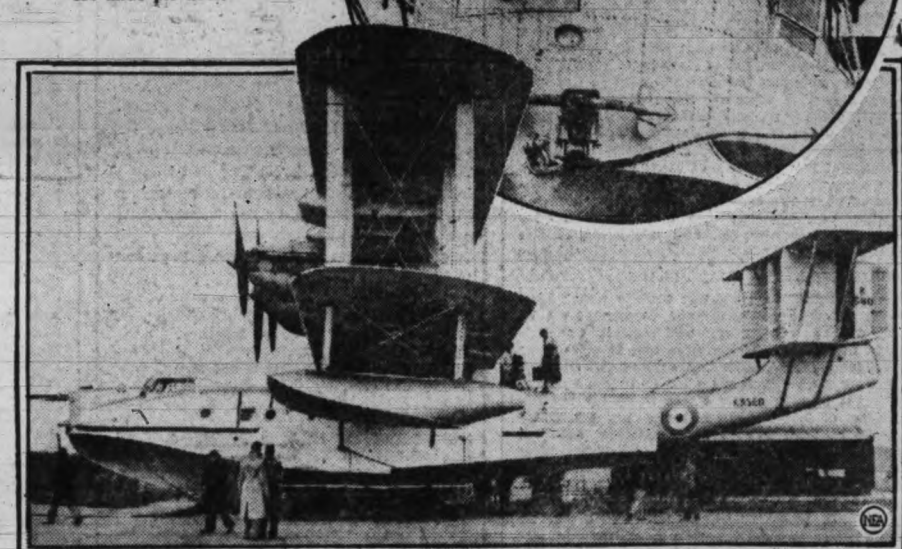

It was at Claridge's Hotel, after imitation grass covered the floor, down the centre of which was a pitch, complete with stumps. The tables were named after, and set out at the fielding positions. The guests were announced by a "wicket keeper," who, like the waiters, was in cricket attire; and at either end of the pitch stood an umpire in blue suit, white coat and bowler hat.

The menu card was in the style of a score card and described the luncheon as "a two-hour match—the guests vs. Sir Julian Cahn's eleven."

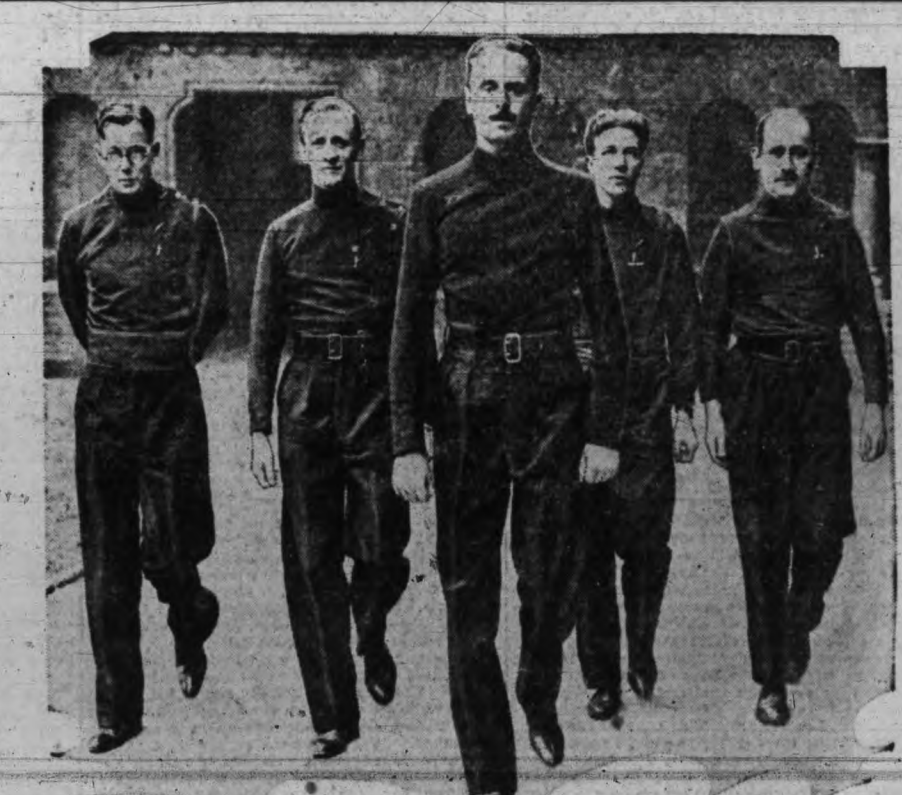

PARTING ADVICE

The Dominions Secretary was in his most jocular mood. "It was just twelve months since I was in Canada," he said, "and like you, I found myself part of a team. I am not sure even at this stage which of us won."

BRITAIN'S MIGHTY DREAD-NOUGHT OF THE SKIES—Britain, ruler of the waves, began a move to rule the airways, too, by launching at Brough, Yorkshire, England, the world's first flying battleship for her Royal Air Force. Standing nearly twenty-six feet high, with a wing span of ninety-seven feet, the giant ship (pictured below in side view) is the first plane to carry a gun capable of firing shells. Captain Pynches is shown above at the ship's bow, manning the formidable gun which can deal 100 rounds of one-and-a-half-pound shells a minute. The aerial dreadnought has a speed of 132 miles per hour.

Scare Up Fun With These Hallowe'en Ideas!

Pumpkin House Stores Fruit and Favors

EVERYONE loves a Hallowe'en party . . . and the thing to do is to get into the "spirit" of the occasion. Spooky parties are the most fun. You can darken the house, place a ghost here and there and arrange to have strange colored beams of light coming out of the most unexpected places.

Try and think of some kind of a really new game for your party. One called "Detective" is appropriate for Hallowe'en. The person who is "it" thinks of a plot. He gives meagre details, such as where the body was found, how many people were in the house, what relation one or two of them bore to the murdered person, and maybe one or two sinister details about the body. He must have a clear plot in his own mind and be sure himself that it can be worked out by the simple process of answering yes and no to questions asked by the rest of the members of the party.

PLANNING REFRESHMENTS

Your refreshments should be carefully planned. Don't forget that cider, doughnuts and apples are synonymous with Hallowe'en. And no matter how many times you've seen them served, it is a good idea to have them again anyway.

Most parties work themselves out all right. If your house is decorated in true Hallowe'en style, your refreshments amusing and appetizing and your guests congenial, you won't have to worry about a thing. It is well to have one good game to play early in the evening just in case conversation lags.

A buffet supper party is one very nice way of entertaining Hallowe'en guests. Try to think of some pretty way to trim the long table on which the food is placed. Have one decorative centerpiece with a few black cats and Jack-o'-lanterns scattered here and there on the orange crepe paper tablecloth.

Place your food on one end of the table, plates and silver on the other, and let each guest help himself. Have one main hot dish and plenty of sandwiches.

An owl and a moon perched up on a few sticks of wood decorate this Hallowe'en dinner party table pumpkin pie, all sorts of relishes, jugs of cider and hot coffee.

MAKE A PUMPKIN HOUSE

One amusing centerpiece for a Hallowe'en supper table is a pumpkin house. Cut a circle of cardboard about twenty-two inches in diameter. Cover it with crushed, dark green paper. Put a fluting of orange crepe paper around the edge of the circle.

On top of the covered circle place a pumpkin-shaped wire frame and cover it to within about four inches of the top with crushed orange crepe paper. For the top use another smaller circular piece of cardboard or mat stock with a hole in the centre, into which insert a five-inch long roll of mat stock. Cut the end in three or four places, bend back and paste under circular piece. Then shape the circle to fit the top opening and cover both circle and stem with crushed orange crepe paper. Cut the openings for doors and windows. Use green mat stock for steps, door, shingles, blinds and window frames. Clear cellophane will make the window panes, and paper fasteners can be used for the nails.

Tie several four-inch strips of green crepe paper around the stem and cut ends in the shape of leaves. A tiny electric bulb may be lighted on the inside of the centerpiece, or the pumpkin house may be filled with favors of fruit and nuts.

A moon and owl centerpiece is something a little different. It is easy to make if you cover a circular piece of cardboard with yellow transparent paper and then cut out two owls and paste one on each side of the circle. Cover sticks of wood with crushed grey crepe paper, arrange them in the centre of your table, and perch the owl and moon on them.

Black and orange candles are an appropriate note, and so are nut cups held by little black cats.

FOR WITCHES' EVE THIS PARTY GIVE

FORTUNATE indeed is the lucky person invited to a fortune party on Hallowe'en! For who of us does not enjoy a glimpse or two into the future! All sorts of surprises await the guests and the fun begins with the invitations. These are written in the form of an acrostic:

Hail, my good friend!
And how would you Like by way of diversion to Lend a few hours
Of your life to the learning of Wonders that only the Eerie folk tell truly?
Even so, come to my house on the Night of October 31, 9 o'clock sharp.

All of the games played deal in some way or other with the good or ill that the fates have in store.

Start the fun with a fortune hunt:

FORTUNE HUNTING

Hide in different part of the room a ring, money, a thimble, a toy automobile and other similar objects, one for each guest. The player who finds the ring first will be happily married; the one who discovers the thimble will be a spinster, etc. When one thing has been found the search must stop so that each one may find something. It may be well to place some identifying mark on the various trinkets. After everyone has found something the hostess asks, for instance, who has the automobile, and then tells what it means. The different things may be chosen appropriate to the particular group of people you are entertaining.

FORTUNES WITH CARDS

Fortune cards can be purchased with the fortunes written on them so that each guest may read her own future. Or, if preferred, one who is skilled in the gipsy art of reading cards, may take each guest in turn and interpret the hidden meanings.

DECORATIONS AND FAVORS

The tables at which the fortunes are told should be decorated for the occasion in orange and black, the chosen colors for Hallowe'en. Cover each table with a large square of light orange crepe paper. Around the edge of this cover pass a Hallowe'en border of witches and cats. To number the table, make a little pumpkin man of wire and cutouts. The wire is first wrapped with narrow strips of orange crepe paper. Then cut and bend into arms and legs. One leg should be made sufficiently long to permit bending it into a spiral-shaped base.

A realistic witch made of a Hallowe'en cutout and fringed crepe paper is tacked behind a partly opened door. The effect is startling when first you behold her joining the party.

The favors are ruffs of orange crepe paper gathered onto a narrow ribbon. Tied to one end of the ribbon is a large pumpkin cutout bearing the number of the table at which the wearer is to sit.

There are always innumerable ways to use fortune verses. Here is a set that may be written on slips of paper and concealed in favors or Jack Horner just and then read aloud at the table or in any other way that may fit into your particular scheme of things:

FORTUNES

1. Lucky one!—as I unravel
Your life's web, I see you travel;
Travel, travel everywhere,
Land and sea and through the air.
2. Round the corner you will meet
One for whom you've waited Long in secret; hurry, then,
Lest you be belated!
3. Work, hard work,
Struggling and contending;

But wealth, joy and love,
Is the happy ending.

4. Riches would evade you Staying where you are;
But you'll make your fortune
As a Movie Star.

5. Once, twice, thrice,
You will be married;
Last time to the altar,

You will be carried!

6. You will plod and prosper
Without fear or harm,
And you'll end your peaceful days
On a poultry farm.

7. Old cats, young kittens,
Need no longer roam;
For you will find, for their delight,
A lux-u-ri-ous home.

MATCHING PARTNERS

UNUSUAL stunts for matching partners are always welcome. Here is one that is a bit "different." The hostess should give out the numbered verses, the "heads" to the boys, and the "tails" to the girls. Similar numbers should match.

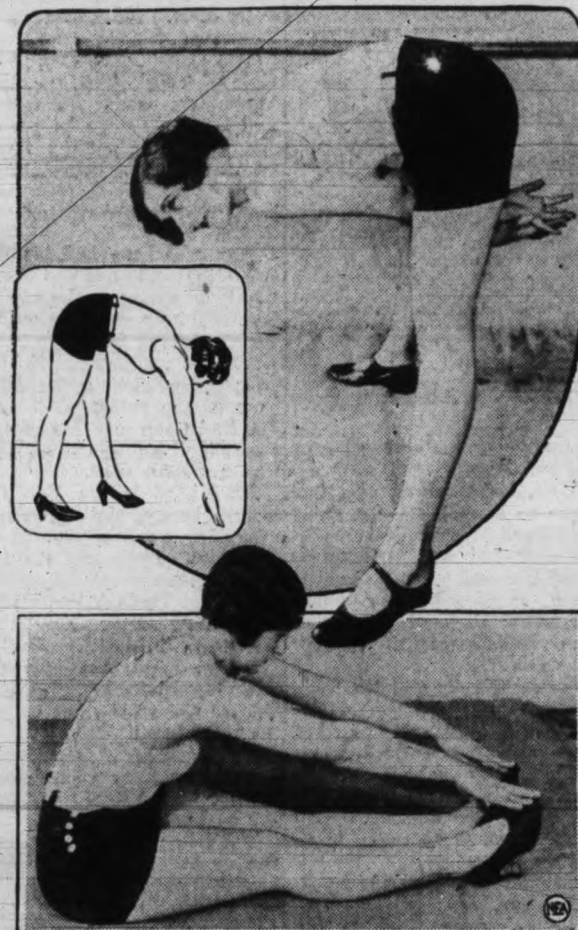

If you will read your card aright
You'll surely get ahead to-night;
If you're a-head, you will not fail
To find an interesting Tail.

Verse for the Hostess:

1. Is she tall or short? What folly!
Here's the main thing, is she jolly?
1. A "talent" partner? Perish the thought!
Let's talk, though the weather be cold or hot.
2. All alone? Make no moan;
Use your wits and you will find
A companion to your mind.
2. He is coming! Watch awhile
Coming soon to make you smile!
3. "Single, blessedness" is a joke!
Sure, a partner you should take.
3. Hard to judge by a single glance—
Think, you'd better take a chance!
4. You might go farther and do worse,
(Ponder well this little verse!)
4. The man you wait for is a prize,
(Just a whisper to the wise.)
5. Don't wish for a partner; it's much better.
To stop your wishing and just go-getter!
5. "All things come to those who wait,"
And he'll come, too, although he's late.
6. Don't "lose your head" whatever you do.
Look 'round, good man, there's a girl for you!
6. No use crying for the moon.
Man, or any other boon—
Something's bound to happen soon!

DIET AND EXERCISE CURE "BARREL" FIGURE

Large Abdomens Can Be Reduced By Following This Advice of Marjorie Dork

Three of the exercises for reducing over-large abdomens, which Marjorie Dork describes in the accompanying article

EDITOR'S NOTE — Over-large abdomens are a common cause of bodily disfigurement. How they may be reduced to normal proportions by proper diet and exercise is told by Marjorie Dork, health and beauty expert.

By MARJORIE DORK
Health and Beauty Expert

ONE of the most common and least attractive types of figure is the barrel type, in which the abdomen has become entirely out of proportion to the arms and legs.

A woman with such a figure can reduce only by stretching muscles on this particular part of the body. You can walk or dance for hours without improving the figure.

Lie flat upon the floor and bring up the legs at right angles with the body, with the knees stiff. Then let them down slowly, keeping the knees stiff, to the count of six. It is the slow pull that does the work, so do not hurry.

Do this five times at first and increase to ten or twenty times as you grow more accustomed to it.

This one also is excellent:

Lie flat on the floor with the arms stretched above the head. Then rise forward, touching the toes with the finger tips. At first your fingers and toes may not meet, but bring them as close to each other as you can. Start with five times and increase to twenty or even more.

You will find this one a bit less strenuous:

NOT AS STRENUOUS

Lie down flat and bring both knees up to your chest, then lower to the first position. Do this ten times, both together and then ten times with each leg alternately.

Those three are all done on the floor. Here are three more to be done standing. Take the standing ones last as they are easier.

Stand with the feet wide apart

IT IS GOOD TASTE TO SERVE CHEESES AT YOUR HALLOWE'EN DINNER

Jack O'Lantern Carved From Edam Attractive On Dessert Tray

A TRAY OF dessert cheeses is the perfect ending for your Hallowe'en buffet supper. Nearly everyone likes like a Jack-o'-Lantern. Make the eyes, nose and mouth with the point of a sharp knife and scoop out the centre with a spoon. Arrange oyster crackers around the Edam and put the pieces of cheese which came out of it on them.

Canada is becoming more and more conscious of the fact that cheese is an excellent dessert after a rather heavy and filling meal. The Continentals long ago discovered the secret and almost all European homes serve cheese followed by fruit for dessert.

Decorate a tray with autumn leaves and right in the centre place a round, red Edam which has been cut to look like a Jack-o'-Lantern. Intersperse the cheese with rye bread, all kinds of crackers and, if the tray is large enough, with grapes or other fresh fruits.

The Liederkranz has a tawny color which will blend in with your Hallowe'en decorations. The Roquefort offers a pleasing contrasting tone.

Place the tray on one end of the buffet table, somewhere near the pot of coffee and the jug of cider, and let each guest help himself.

shoulders up, arms above the head. Bend at the waistline and bring the hands back between the legs. This is excellent for your back and your arms as well as your abdomen. Ten times is a mere start. Increase later to thirty.

Then in the same position, with fingertips above the head, reach over and touch first the right foot, and then, after straightening up with hands again above the head, the left foot. Ten times at first and then more, regularly, will certainly have a slenderizing effect.

Next, put your knees together and extend your arms outward as far as they will go on either side of the body. Swing the body as far to the right and then as far to the left as you can, moving only at the waistline.

There are many other exercises which I will give in later articles that will help the barrel-typed woman, but I don't wish to overwhelm her at the start. Rather at this time I wish to stress the matter of diet, for the large abdomen proclaims that the food habits are wrong.

First of all, eat only when you are hungry. Eat slowly, masticate every morsel. Then you won't want so much food. Begin each meal with an appetizer or fruit juice to excite the salivary glands.

SIP THEM SLOWLY

Fruit juices, milk, and buttermilk should all be sipped slowly. They are foods in themselves, with the advantage over solid foods that they are much more easily digested. There is no diet more helpful to reducing than a liquid diet. You could even go on one for three days a week without injury to your health, but usually one day a week is sufficient.

For one day's liquid diet, I suggest the following: At 8 in the morning, two glasses of hot water. This flushes out the stomach. For breakfast, one cup of tea or coffee without cream or sugar, and one glass of unsugared fruit juice; orange juice is excellent. At 10 o'clock, two glasses of water. At 11 o'clock, one glass of water.

For luncheon, you can have a glass of any fruit juice or two glasses of buttermilk or sweet milk. At 2 o'clock, a glass of water, and another at 3, and at 5 a cup of tea with no cream or sugar.

For dinner you may have the juice of six tomatoes, and before you go to bed you can have a glass of water or any desired fruit juice.

ONE LIQUID DAY A WEEK

If you will prescribe for yourself one day each week living entirely on a liquid diet, you will be surprised at what you will lose in weight, and how easily it is accomplished.

Milk is almost a perfect food, and if you want to live only on milk for a day, you will find that it is very helpful to reducing.

Babe Getting Bigger Cramps Betty's Style—Willie Laughs

Hallowe'en Coming Up on Tuesday and Plans Are Being Made; Willie's New Friend Has a New Trick of Filling Paper Bags With Water and Dropping Them Off the Roof; My What a "Splish!"

By WILLIE WINKLE

One of the big nights of the year comes next Tuesday for us kids, but it's a school night, so we got to tuck our heads in bed earlier than usual, I suppose. I know what it will be around our place. Something like this: "Now don't you be late coming home, young man," and "Don't you be up to too much mischief," and don't do this and don't do that. It makes you sick, so much don't.

But just the same, we've got to celebrate Hallowe'en, even if we have to stay in after school next day for not knowing our lessons. I'm having my style cramped more than ever with these sisters of mine. Betty, she thinks that if I can stay out till 9 o'clock she ought to be able to stay out and she ought to be able to go with me, but who wants a sister to look after on Hallowe'en?

"Betty shouldn't want to go out with boys 'cause she'd be in the way," I tell my mother.

"Aw, you go on, you mean thing," comes back Betty. "Why should I be in the way. I can run faster than you, and I ain't a crybaby like you, and I'll bet Rosy Carter would make all your gang look like thirty cents. I think I'll get a girls' gang and we'll show you up."

"Now this won't do," says Mother.

"But if I don't go with Willie I'll have to stay home with sister," says Betty. "She's getting so now she wants to go with me and she wants her own way and is always spoiling our fun."

"Now you know how you've been spoiling my fun for years," I says to Betty. "You take Babe along with you this Hallowe'en and then you'll be sure to be in off the streets when all nice little girls should be home."

MAY PULL SOMETHING

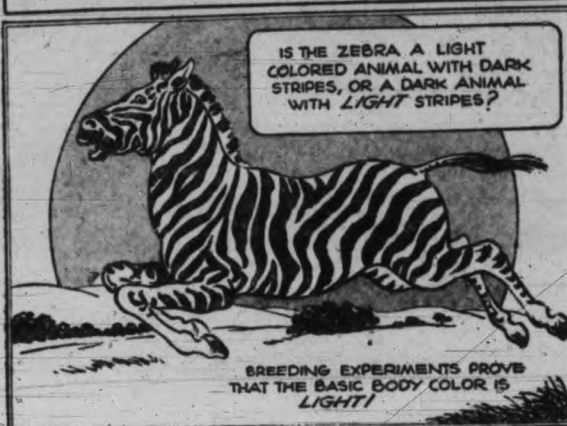

Betty stuck her tongue out at me, but I'll bet she'll go and get Rosy Carter and pull something on Hallowe'en. She's just that sort of kid; won't be beaten.

On other Hallowe'ens we kids have always had to keep an eye on Grannie Brown's place, but we won't have to this year unless Spike needs some help. You remember last summer how Spike took care of Grannie and she's just about adopted him and I wouldn't want to be the kid who tried to take Grannie's gate off or steal her apples or pears. Boy, Spike would just about hang him on a pitchfork.

Billy, one of my new friends, says he thinks he'll stay home this Hallowe'en and have more fun. He's got a new gag. He says he's going to get paper bags and fill them with water and then drop them on the kids when they come up on his veranda. In Billy's new place they have sort of a story and a half house and you can get out the upstairs window and onto the roof and sit just over where anyone has to come up the steps, and what a picnic it would be to drop bags full of water.

You see you take a bucket of water out on the roof and when you see some kids coming with their costumes and painted faces you put the water in the bag and

WHAT MIGHT HAPPEN

But perhaps Billy's mother will have something to say about that. She might be going out that night and begin to think that one of those bags might slip and make a mess of her. Or what if one happened to drop on his father when he was going out to a political meeting. It looks kind of dangerous. I don't think I'll like that paper bag game. Boy, if we ever

BEDTIME STORY

Uncle Wiggily's Red Hat

(By HOWARD R. GARIS)

Mr. Twistytail, the fat pig gentleman, called at Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow one day and said:

"Come on, let's take a walk, Wiggy."

"All right, Twisty," answered the bunny gentleman, "that will be fine. But what have you on your head?" he asked as he looked at his pig chum.

"Oh, that's a new red hat I bought to go walking in," grunted the pig.

"Say, it's red all right!" laughed Mr. Longears.

"I got the reddest one I could find," said the pig.

"And it's sporty and spiffy!" went on Uncle Wiggily.

"I'm glad you like it!" grunted Mr. Twistytail.

"I think I'll get one," said Uncle Wiggily.

"No, I think it would be very jolly," agreed the fat animal.

"Come on down to the sports shop and buy yourself a red hat. I'll lend you the money if you have none."

"Oh, thank you, I have money," said Uncle Wiggily.

It did not take him long to buy a sporty red hat with a feather on one side. Having done this, Mr. Longears went walking in the woods with Mr. Twistytail, the fat pig gentleman.

Now, although Uncle Wiggily did not know it, when he came out of the sports shop with his red hat he was seen by the Bob Cat, who was hiding around the corner.

"Ah, ha!" mewed the Bad Chap to himself. "I can easily find Uncle Wiggily in the woods by that red hat. I'll follow after him and when he goes to sleep, as he will, very likely, I'll sneak up and pounce on him. He has no tin can false face now."

Uncle Wiggily and Mr. Twistytail hopped and ambled on through the woods together, wearing their bright red, sporty hats. They talked of the weather and how it would soon be Hallowe'en and how they must watch so no tricks would be played on them. After a while Mr. Twistytail, the fat pig gentleman, said:

"I'm getting tired, Wiggy. Let's sit down on this log and take a rest. Maybe we can sleep."

"Oh, I don't want to do that," said Uncle Wiggily. "I'm not tired or sleepy. I want to hop along until I find an adventure."

"All right," agreed the pig. "You hop along and I'll sit here and have a rest and a sleep. I'll see you later."

As Uncle Wiggily was about to hop away he heard a rustling in the bushes.

"What's that?" asked the pig, opening one of his two eyes which he had already closed.

"Oh, the wind, I guess," said Uncle Wiggily.

But it wasn't the wind. It was the Bob Cat sneaking in the bushes.

"Ha! Ha!" snickered the Bad Chap. "You can't lose me! I can follow that red hat of yours, Mr. Longears."

So Uncle Wiggily hopped on and on and on, looking for an adventure, and after a while, he also felt tired and sleepy.

Twisty will have had his rest and sleep and he will come waddling along; wake me up and we'll keep on our way with our sporty red hats."

All this while the Bob Cat was sneaking along in the bushes back of the rabbit gentleman. The Bad Chap kept his eyes on the spot of red which he knew was the rabbit's hat.

After a while the Bob Cat looked ahead of him and he saw, near a log, a spot of red. It did not move or stir and the Bob Cat said:

"There! Uncle Wiggily must have fallen asleep. Now is my time to catch him!"

Softly, softly the Bob Cat crept toward the log. He could not see the rabbit, but he saw the spot of red.

"Uncle Wiggily is down behind the log, I guess," whispered the Bob Cat. "Here I go, jumping on him!"

The Bob Cat leaped through the air and came down on the log. But instead of landing on the rabbit gentleman the Bad Chap landed near a great big Red Headed Woodpecker bird who was digging worms and bugs out of another log, some distance away from where Uncle Wiggily slept.

"Bizz! Bizz! Bizz!" cried the Red Headed Woodpecker and he picked, with his sharp beak, the Bob Cat's nose, making it bleed.

"Oh, wow! Let me go!" howled the Bad Chap as the Red Headed Woodpecker kept on pecking him. "I thought you were Uncle Wiggily in a red hat. Oh, what a mistake I made!" Then the Bob Cat ran away and Uncle Wiggily, awakening from his sleep, laughed "Ha! Ha! Ha!" Then he and Mr. Twistytail finished their walk.

And if the kitchen sink will put some water in the rubber boots so the umbrella can go for a swim, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's blue coat.

The Tinies grew impatient. One said, "Gee, when will our fish be done? It's been in that big oven for a half an hour, or more."

"Don't let it burn. It would be said to spoil the biggest fish we've had. I'm hungry and I'm anxious for the treat that is in store."

"Don't worry," said the fisherman. "I'll serve as quickly as I can. I want the fish cooked nice and brown. It tastes the best that way."

"The two girls can stay here with me. I'll keep them busy as can be, just filling up your plates. The rest of you can run and play."

He waited for a while, and then called all the Tinies back again. "We're ready for you," Dotty cried. "Sit right down on the ground."

"I'll hand you each your plate of fish." "Oh, gee, lads, what more could we wish!" said Duncy. Then he got his plate and cried, "It's nicely browned!"

The fisherman soon joined the rest. Said he, "I like the stuffy best. I'm glad that Goldy had the hunch to bake the fish this way."

"Eat slowly, Tinymites. Then you will feel all right when you are through. I s'pose you all will take a nap, to finish out the day."

"You're right," said Duncy. "Eating makes me sleepy, but it brings no aches. I'm through right now, and so a little snooze appeals to me."

Just then wee Dotty jumped and cried, "Oh, look! A great big squirrel I've spied. It's dressed in funny clothes and pecking out from yonder tree."

The fisherman said, "That squirrel's tame." He called to it, and out it came. "I'll bet it's hungry," Dotty cried, "although it looks quite fat."

She held some bread out on a plate. The squirrel didn't hesitate to show appreciation. It bowed down and tipped its hat.

Auntie May's Corner

THE WORLD'S LARGEST APARTMENT HOUSE

The largest apartment house in the world stands up from the sea on the Baie des Chaleurs, in the Gaspé Peninsula, in the Province of Quebec. It is in the oldest part of Canada, having been discovered by Jacques on his first trip in 1534.

This apartment covers many thousand square feet of land. It rises a few hundred feet above sea level and has many notable features. To begin with, it is built entirely of solid rock. Not an inch of compressed steel entered into its construction. Architects might say that this scheme of building is not in keeping with modern fashion, but those who have seen the place pronounce it one of the most impressive in existence with its hundred stories of red conglomerate supported by massive arches of blue and yellow limestone. At sunset the whole place is a riot of color, and can be seen from miles off.

If the place is unique from an architectural view, its tenants are also in a class by themselves. They form a sort of standardized colony, the equivalent of which is unknown in the rest of the world. For example, they are all divided in families of three. Never four or more. For one acquainted with the customs of the province of Quebec, where families usually run into large figures, to gather on one spot over 3,500 of these minimum families certainly constitutes a record by itself.

Each family occupies a small apartment, scantily furnished, but enjoying a wonderful view of the sea. In summer it is never hot, as the sea breeze circulates all through the place, but otherwise it lacks many of the usual comforts. Fridgidares, electric light, dummy servants, and janitor service are unknown. Even elevators are not tolerated and as for garages—to mention them would be to provoke only merriment. The tenants are all believers in the simple life. They despise so-called progress; they refuse to be slaves to automobiles, or radio, or electric washing machines. They have gone one step further and solved the domestic problem by the simple process of ignoring it. Not a valet, a maid, a chauffeur or a butler can be found on the whole premises. When one wishes for something he goes out and gets it, and the neighbors offer no comment. They all seem to take it for granted that it is not anybody's business to pry into somebody else's affairs.

Backward as they seem, the tenants of this apartment house certainly have their good points. For one, they are peaceful. Their children meet every day, on the long and narrow veranda which fronts every story, and spend many hours together without having any argument over a borrowed doll or a coveted scooter. They cry, as all children will, because it is good for their lungs, but never because they have been slapped or spoiled. This main cause of trouble being absent, and the mothers too busy with their own to become jealous of their neighbor's children, the adults never quarrel or exchange remarks about their ancestors, or the shape of each other's faces. On the contrary, the closest harmony reigns among them. The fathers go fishing together by groups of ten or twelve, and by mutual understanding each catches a fish in turn until the party has its need. Then they all return home together.

If one watches them on those daily returns—an easy thing to do, for there are no portieres or curtains in any of the apartments—he will note with surprise that each fisherman is greeted with the utmost and apparently sincere joy by his wife, who never nags him for being late, and looks genuinely convinced that his catch does not come from the local market. But, seeing that reception, he does not wonder that the fisherman may kiss his wife many times before putting his fish down, and telling of the big ones that got away. Those model wives have model husbands. Each apartment is truly a love nest.

From what precedes, one would gather that very little individuality is shown by the tenants of the Bonaventure Island Apartment House. All seem to lead the same frugal life, thrive on the same fish and vegetable diet, and partake of the same virtues; they even dress alike, or almost. In summer, the adults wear white, with black and yellow trimmings, and the children a sort of grey uniform. They have the same habits and the same tastes, and a casual observer would say that they all looked alike, but the fact that they have all the same blue, dreamy eyes of the sea inhabitants does not prove their likeness. As a matter of fact a closer scrutiny will show many differences in look and shape.

Are they happy? Why, yes. They have every reason to be. They have all the sunshine, all the food, all the shelter they need. Their mates are true, and their children well behaved. Being perfect citizens, the laws of the land do not bother them, and self-preservation is the only general law that they have to account for. Financially they are independent and although none of the tenants has a bank account, every autumn they all leave for the south, where they spend the winter in the same simple and comfortable way. In short, they are as happy as can be, having attained the highest human ideal; to live without the services of a lawyer, and to die without those of a doctor.

Alas! the earthly paradise of Bonaventure Island will never open its gates to us. The model and simple life of its inhabitants we can try to emulate, but never share. Unless we believe in megalomania, we cannot hope to join the colony of gannets of Bonaventure Island. Gannets are sea fowl.

How Medical Hero of Public Health Service Tracked Down Mysterious Disease, Tularemia

By RODNEY DUTCHER

EVERY evening at 6 o'clock a red-checked, bald, medium-sized, jerky bachelor of sixty-one years tramps energetically out from the United States Public Health Service in Washington and around the five-mile speedway.

He proceeds to a certain cafeteria, then to a movie, and then to bed soon after 9 o'clock. At 6.30 a.m. he is back at the United States Public Health Service.

This is the day of Dr. Edward Francis, one of to-day's greatest scientists and greatest heroes.

Braving death he has contracted tularemia, parrot fever, undulant fever and dengue fever in a lifetime of close-up research into the more mysterious diseases of mankind.

It was Francis who spotted tularemia and became the world's authority on the only "100 per cent American disease." The American Medical Association gave him one of its annual gold medals for that.

"TRY EVERYTHING"

Francis always displayed qualities of quick perception and indefatigability in microbe-pursuit which made him a marked man.

"Don't reason too much—work with your hands," he advises younger men. "Don't imagine anything. Try everything."

Working with his hands was what brought Francis all those diseases.

He was in the Hygienic Laboratory in 1919 when the state health officer of Utah urged an investigation of what was then known as "deer-fly fever." Several persons had died. But the malady was primarily a disabling disease, which often laid people out for a year or more.

Francis gathered up his experimental animals—rabbits, mice, rats and guinea pigs and started for the desert.

He found but one living, still suffering victim. That was gave him his blood when he learned that it might be helpful.

Francis injected that blood into guinea pigs; the pigs died in five days. Their spleens were swollen and their livers dotted with white spots. And Francis realized that he was up against a new disease.

STUDIED PLAGUE

That was about all he knew, except for local tradition that the ailment was caused by deer-fly bites.

He began years of remarkable detective work in which he was usually isolated, methodically searching dissecting and testing.

First he wired to Washington for literature on the plagues of animals. Then he became ill. But he studied the promptly shipped data and found that Dr. George McCoy of P.H.S. had years before found a similar disease in ground squirrels of Tulare County, Cal. No one supposed it could be transmitted to humans.

Francis, seriously ill, crated his infected animals and started for Washington. He spent two months in a hospital, where he and other physicians supposed he had malaria.

IDENTIFIES "TULAREMIA"

McCoy, meanwhile, worked on the guinea pigs and identified "deer-fly fever" with what he had discovered in those ground squirrels.

Francis, recovered, dashed back to Utah, leaving the animals here for further experiment.

He employed four crack-shot squirrel hunters and followed them into the woods, cutting the squirrels open as fast as they were killed. He found no white-spotted livers.

By accident he came across a dead rabbit and by force of habit—or perhaps his insistence of "trying everything"—cut that open, too.

The jack-rabbit had died of what Francis had now named "tularemia," after the California county where Mc-Coy had found it. The juice of its spleen quickly killed guinea pigs.

TEST DEER-FLY BITE

So the hunters went out and killed hundreds of jack-rabbits. Francis now knew where that disease was coming from.

But he would test the accepted theory that the deer-fly's bite transmitted it from rabbit to man. Dr. Bruce Mayne of P.H.S. came to help him catch deer-flies and they tethered an old mare as bait. They had to learn that the flies lit only on moving animals before they returned to their shack with a can of them. They made deer-flies bite sick rabbits and then well rabbits—and the healthy rabbits became sick and died.

Mayne came down with fever. Francis went back to Washington and found Dr. Gregory Lake, who had been in charge of the tularemic guinea pigs here, in the hospital—a supposed typhoid case.

DISEASE SPREADS

By the time Lake was up and around, Francis was comparing the blood of tularemia victims with that of persons who had never had the disease. The two men happened to contribute their own blood to those experiments. It was only then that by the different test results they realized they had tularemia themselves.

But how come? Neither had ever been bitten by a deer-fly. So they plunged into hundreds of new experiments to find out how they had contracted it.

Soon six laboratory helpers, who had had to do with infected rabbits, were in the hospital with tularemia. Thereupon Francis poured a drop of tularemia on a guinea pig's shaved back and soon that pig joined thousands of previous martyrs to science.

WIDESPREAD STUDY

The Lister Institute of London sent for some sample germs to play with. Soon British scientists began to catch tularemia. Those experiments ceased.

Next, about the time Francis was finding out that lice and bugs could carry the disease, a Washington physician who had read of his experiments reported a local butcher who had felt a painful lump under his arm and who described his ailment as "rabbit fever." The complaint was commonly known and dreaded by men in the market who cut up rabbits. This butcher said:

Spurred on to his final big discovery, Francis collected 1,000 rabbit livers and found ten of them spotted with tularemia. For the first time he realized how widespread an affair tularemia must be.

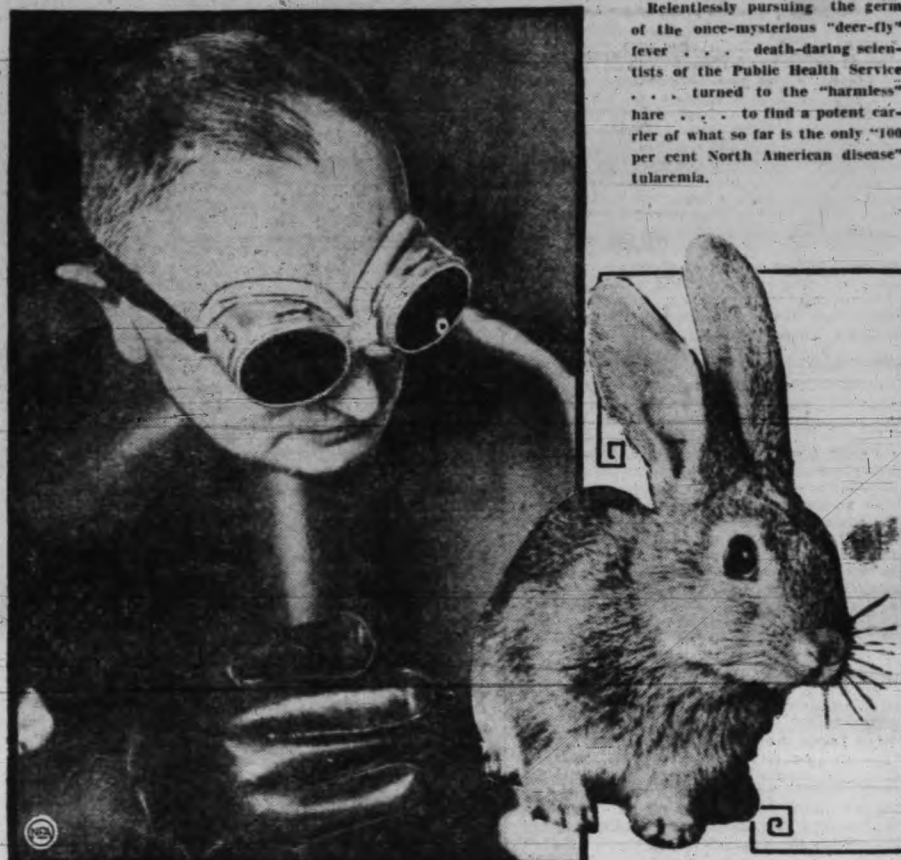

Livers and tubes of blood from suspected victims were ordered from many states. Tularemia has since been found in all states outside New England.

Three members of a western Virginia family died after eating underdone rabbit meat and the mother was suspected of a poison plot. Francis proved they had died of tularemia.

After a study of six years, Francis was able to report that tularemia could be avoided by use of rubber gloves in handling rabbits. Proper cooking destroys the germs. Hunters were advised to shoot only healthy, active hares.

AUTHORITY ON DISEASE

Francis is the "grand old man" of Relentlessly pursuing the germ of the once-mysterious "deer-fly" fever . . . death-daring scientists of the Public Health Service . . . turned to the "harmless" hare . . . to find a potent carrier of what so far is the only "100 per cent North American disease" tularemia.

P.H.S. and is frequently consulted on broad questions of policy. His judgment is usually quick and sure.

Tularemia offers the single instance in which North American investigators alone have discovered a disease of man, isolating its causative agent, determining its sources of infection and modes of transmission, describing its pathology and elucidating a complete knowledge of the disease.

Tularemia has been produced by Edward Francis.

Right "Alice" Is Found For Famous "Wonderland" Character

Noted Screen Stars Selected To Play Supporting Roles With Her; One Director Lists Ten Best Movie Voices With Leslie Howard and Helen Hayes Heading the List

By DAN THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD—After spending the last four or five months searching through all English-speaking countries for a girl to play the title role in "Alice in Wonderland," Paramount executives finally found her—and right in their own back yard, so to speak.

Charlotte Henry, former Brooklyn girl who has been playing very minor roles in pictures for the past four years, is the one chosen to portray this mythical character.

The extensive search for Alice should teach Hollywood something—but it probably won't. No matter what it is the movie moguls desire, they always go about looking for it in the most difficult manner possible. If an actor, director or writer is desired, they always start looking in the far-off corners of the earth, never right here in Hollywood.

"Need for new talent" is the excuse they use. Yet there is more new talent in Hollywood to-day than the studios possibly could absorb during the next two or three years.

BIG NAMES GO WITH HER

Now that the main character has been secured, "Alice in Wonderland" will get under way in a really pretentious fashion. Among those already assigned to various roles are Gary Cooper as the White Knight, Bing Crosby as the Mock Turtle, Jack Oakie as Tweedledee, Charlie Ruggles as the White Rabbit, Louise Fazenda as the White Queen, Ford Sterling as the Walrus King, Allison Skipworth as the Duchess, Leon Errol as Uncle Gilbert, Pat O'Byrne as Alice's Aunt, Billy Barty as the White Pawn, and Harvey Clark as Father William. Quite a supporting cast for a heretofore unknown actress, if you ask me.

KEN NEARLY LOST KAY

The other day while discussing Hollywood's brilliant premieres, Kenneth MacKenna revealed how he almost lost his wife, Kay Francis, before he had just signed his contract with Fox, so he and Kay set out for the opening. "I realize now that the gown she wore had been bought especially to be shown off as she walked through the lobby, but I didn't know it then," he says. "As we neared the theatre I saw the little mob which always is gathered outside. Then I spotted a studio cameraman and asked him if he could get us into the theatre without running the gauntlet."

With his help, we entered the theatre through a side door without anyone seeing us. I thought we were being very clever. Then I discovered that I was anything but a social success. In fact Kay was very busy every time I phoned her for several months afterwards.

Kay's persistence won out, however, and he and Kay were happily married couples.

GOSSIP OF HOLLYWOOD

News flashes from studio listening posts: Maurice Chevalier will return from France in January to make the sound version of "The Merry Widow," one of the most successful of the old silent films.

Mary Mason, still a comparative newcomer in pictures, was signed for the lead in "Eight Girls in a Boat" and had her name changed to Ann Sothern all in the same day.

Helen Twelvetrees is so dissatisfied with the way she has been handled at Paramount that she has asked for a release from her contract.

Mary Pickford is still up in the air as to whether she will make another picture or do a stage play in New York this winter.

Dorothy Arzner has replaced George Fitzmaurice and will handle the direction of "Nana," the Anna Sten film which was stopped after $250,000 had been spent on it.

BEST VOICES

It really doesn't pay to give a motion picture director too much time to himself—because when that happens it invariably makes work for someone else.

The other day Wesley Ruggles had a couple of hours to himself. So what did he do—play tennis, take a swim, go for a drive along the ocean? Not None of the usual methods of whiling away leisure hours appealed to him. He had to accomplish something. So he got busy and figured out the five actors and five actresses in the movie business who possess the best speaking voices.

The five actors he picked are Leslie Howard, William Powell, Ronald Colman, Robert Montgomery and Clark Gable. Any in the feminine division are Helen Hayes, Irene Dunne, Ann Harding, Helen Vinson and Aline MacMahon.

TOM MANY INITIALS

When he got to the party it was quite warm so he took off his coat, only to discover that the initials of the woman's almost ex-husband were neatly embroidered on the shirt.

RAIDING BROADWAY

If Hollywood's current raid on Broadway players continues, there won't be any theatrical season in New York this fall—at least in the Broadway producers play turnabout and import movie names for their casts.

The new raid, led by Twentieth Century Pictures, is the greatest since talkies first were introduced and stage players were imported by the trainload.

Among those who have been brought to the film capital during the past few weeks are Russ Columbo, Blossom Seeley, Paul Kelly, Hugh O'Connell, Eddie Foy Jr., Frances Williams, Helen Westley, Andrew Toombs, Judith Anderson, Etienne Girardot and Janet Beecher.

Most of these persons are strangers to screen audiences, but they are well known on Broadway and will be in the picture world within six months.

about how she is going to spend her time for the next few months. Most of it can be devoted to making tiny dresses, sweaters, etc. The big event takes place in February.

STARRING BIRDS

Bird lovers will find ten minutes of most interesting entertainment in "Fine Feathers," the new Pete Smith short, in which some rare specimens of bird life have been photographed in Technicolor for the first time. Among the birds included in this film are the Vulturine Guinea Fowl, Red-crested Cardinal from South America, Saint Helena Waxbills, Java Rice Bird, Spoon Bills, Blue-eared Manchurian Pheas-

EIGHT WEEKS' CONTRACT

This is the story of a girl who some day may be a motion picture star—although the odds are about 500 to one that she won't.

A few weeks ago Marjorie Timm, twenty-two-year-old Oakland, Cal., girl, was lugging suitcases of dress samples from town to town. Her job was to sell them to store managers, doing the modeling and handling out the sales talk herself. It was hard work and her pay scarcely took care of her traveling expenses.

Then an advertisement was placed in San Francisco newspapers by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer officials. Despite the thousands of chorus girls already in Hollywood, they felt that they needed brand new material for the dance sequences of Joan Crawford's new film, "Dancing Lady."

Marjorie and about a thousand other girls answered the ad. She was one of three selected as suitable. She was offered an eight-weeks' contract plus her expenses to Hollywood. The dress selling job was forgotten. Here was a chance to work in the movies and she grabbed it. She is happy now—in the movies and earning a good salary.

But the eight weeks will soon be over. Then what? Will Marjorie have shown sufficient possibilities that she will be given a chance to play small parts? Maybe. More probably she will join the thousands of chorus girls now unemployed. And her job is gone.

This isn't exactly a story of Marjorie Timm alone. It is the story of scores of girls who give up other jobs for a crack at the movies, work a few weeks, then wonder where and when another job is to be found.

A few days ago Joe E. Brown was elected president of the Masquers, club of film actors. The next day at the club house he received from his wife the following telegram: "All hail to the new president. Good-by husband. Come and see me some time."

Looks like a new dividend for owners of telephone stocks. A short time ago "Bette Davis" husband was called to New York on business.

Every night since, he and Bette have talked to each other on the telephone—and for such long periods that neither will have any money left by the time they are reunited.

Cities devoid of wintry blast and summer heat. Men and women living to be 130 years old. Selective breeding of humans as well as animals. Libraries of talking books in every home. Those are a few of the things which will be incorporated in "Fifty Years From Now," a story of the future.

THE BIG CAGE

By CLYDE BEATTY—with EDWARD ANTHONY

The Victoria Daily Times continues publication of "The Big Cage," Clyde Beatty's own story of wild animal training, one of the most talked of and thrilling books of the year in Europe and America. The Times has bought the rights to the book and will present it complete in Saturday instalments. Beatty is the supreme animal trainer of the day.

CHAPTER XXV

Rex, a Royal Bengal tiger, was the most dependable cat I have ever trained. He went to greater lengths to avoid a fight than any other lion or tiger I have known. When the issue was forced upon him and there was no escape from a battle, he fought like a demon and usually won. His first move when another beast attacked him was to jump to a high pedestal and remain perched there. Three or four times lions ganged up on such occasions and dragged him down from his roost—and always lived to regret it. For Rex was at his best when the odds were against him.

Of all the great cats I have handled for any length of time, Rex is the only one I have never known to start a fight. But, like many another true lover of peace, when attacked he fought with an outraged fury that his assailants could not match.

I once worked myself into a cold sweat keeping Rex from killing Theba. Rex, in a playful mood, tried to play with Theba, whose response was to lash out and start a fight. A terrific tussle followed. The animals were locked together, each determinedly trying to rip the other's throat. Only by dashing ammonia on them could I stop them. When I finally got them separated they were so exhausted they could hardly move. Theba rolled over in a heap and was groggy for a full minute. Rex moved around uncertainly and obviously too had had enough; but he had more resistance than his attacker.

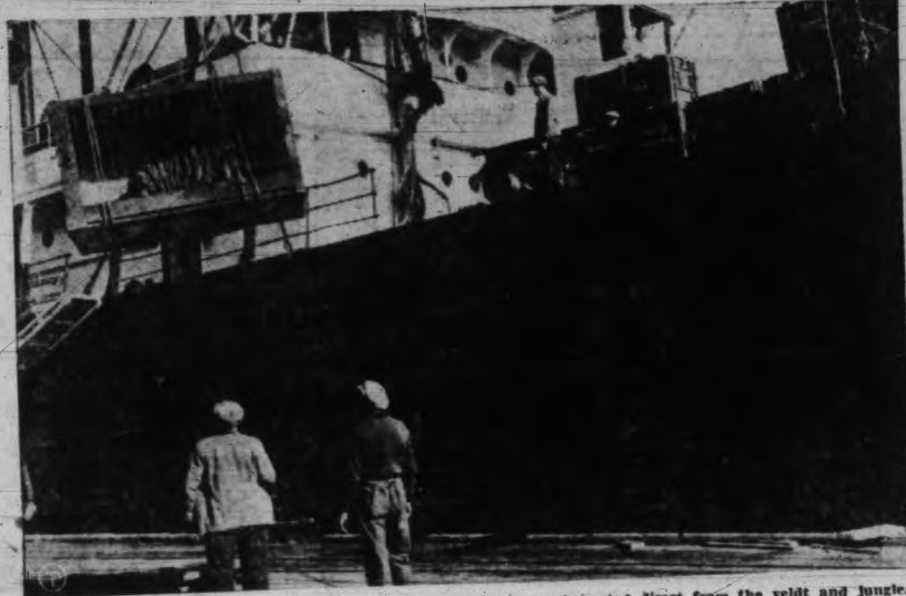

As previously pointed out, the cages in which my animals are exhibited before the show starts are divided off by bars through which the inmates can take passes at each other. This menagerie, in other words, is not a series of separate cages but one long cage partitioned off into separate cages by bars that form the side walls. I once saw Rex purring contentedly in one of these cages while a lion in the next cage lunged desperately to get at him. Rex could have got back at the maned foe, who lingered at the bars longer than was good for him, by doing some fast work with his claws. But he was a peace-loving beast.

There was no necessity for a scrap and he wouldn't go in for one.

Rex died in the spring of 1932 at the age of eleven, the victim of an ailment I never could diagnose. Cynical animal experts of my acquaintance tell me that if he had lived long enough he would have ruined his record for dependability and made real trouble for me sooner or later. As a five-year-old, Rex once quite unexpectedly came tearing at me with what looked like homicidal intent. I fought him off and from then until his death he gave me no trouble.

The sneakiest cat I have ever handled is my big lion Prince. While I have my eye on him he is the soul of good behavior. He sits quietly on his pedestal, a positively benign look on his face. But the second I turn my back on him to devote myself to an animal in another part of the arena, this maned angel hauls off and swats the performer next him. If I turn around suddenly, Prince, who seldom takes his eye off me for long, composes himself at once and does his best to look innocent, like a child in school who has done something behind the teacher's back and is trying to cover up.

Prince has many tricks in his repertoire. One of his specialties is making a quick rush for the tunnel door at the conclusion of the act, and after getting deep into the tunnel, lying in wait for the next animal, which finds itself pounced upon for no reason at all. Another trick of his is to let another animal pass him in the tunnel and then warily follow

Swinging a cageful of tiger over the side. Most circus animals are imported direct from the wild and jungle. Training the big cats would be much less expensive if lions and tigers born in captivity were more dependable. With few exceptions, such beasts do not make good performers and it is necessary to comb Africa and Asia for my raw material.

until that other is about to enter its cage. At this point Prince, striving to keep his reputation as my sneakiest animal, makes a leap for the hind quarters of his victim and starts dragging him back into the tunnel.

Prince's brother Caesar is almost as bad an actor—but I have told about him elsewhere.

The sneakiest female among my cats is Empress II, a tigress. Well behaved when I am facing her, she is an entirely different animal when I turn my back on her. Once in winter quarters she jumped at me from behind and knocked me down. I "blacked" her from the floor before she could do any damage, cautiously getting to my feet as she debated the wisdom of attacking again. She decided to let me off without another assault.

Another time I was saved by the frantic yells of a vigilant assistant. Empress was coming at me from behind and I ducked under a pedestal as the boy outside the cage shrieked his warning. The tigress would have had an easier job this time, for I had a bad blister on one foot as a result of countless hours in the training ring with new animals; and my foot would not have been nimble enough if I had given her a chance to get "on top" of me—to poison herself, in other words, for an effective spring. Once I faced her, Empress was less confident, for her specialty was attacking from behind.

I must admit that in escaping from under that pedestal to the safety-cage, I was playing poker with my assailant. My blistered foot slowed me up considerably, and had Empress launched a real attack, I should have been in serious trouble. But I out-nerved her, blazing away with my blank-cartridge pistol with all the assurance in the world and brandishing my chair with the air of a man who was in doubt whether to bring it down on the head of his striped antagonist and brain her or let her live. I reached the safety-cage with Empress following me only half determinedly, when, if she had only been in possession of the facts, this was her chance to down me, for that was her ambition in life.

The experience gave me a sort of contempt for Empress and her sneaking sort. Even though they have endangered my life time and again, I have never been able to convince myself fully that animals like her are not cowards that, in the final analysis, I can always control. Which attitude I must confess is a bit dangerous. For, after all, cowards have done more than their share of killing. Sometimes they do it to prove to themselves that they aren't cowards.

Because I considered Empress a craven, "in face a tiger but in heart a deer," I was silly enough to give her further opportunities to attack me from behind. My foolhardiness was part and parcel of being an insufficiently experienced and hard-boiled trainer. I knew my business and could have given older trainers cards and spades in teaching animals tricks, but they could have given me cards and spades, in this early period of my career, in the philosophy of the steel arena, a cardinal principle of which is to take no unnecessary risks. The normal risks are bad enough. There was no reason, after all the experience

This photograph illustrates a situation I do not like. For a whole minute—which is a long time in the big cage—the tiger refuses to face me, circling around me instead. It is up to me to keep moving with the animal, to prevent him from getting set for a heavy spring.

I had had with her, why I should ever lines and taggers (authenticity of pronunciation guaranteed) sure looks purty sitting all around that big cage." After the above had been written, the performance she would have a chance to be behind my back. But: extreme youth and a confidence which at this writing seems closely related to recklessness, made me enjoy turning my back on the cowardly lady.

Empress, it developed, had not given up her idea of getting me from behind. At a regular performance, I had just pyramided my lions and tigers, and, having done so, was taking my bow. It is customary for me to acknowledge the plaudits of the crowd at this point—one reason being crowds all over the United States have decided the matter for me. For without exception, regardless of where I am playing, the second I get all my forty lions and tigers up on pedestals of different heights, to form the pyramid, the audience breaks into applause. It's a difficult feat; I immodestly admit, but I perform more difficult ones that do not arouse half so much enthusiasm. Perhaps the explanation lies in the reaction of an ancient relative of mine, a lovable old lady, who says, "Them

But let's go back to Empress II. I'm keenly aware that I've got away from her, but I thought you might be interested in these meanderings. Also it isn't a bad idea to get one's audience all worked up (my collaborator keeps telling me I'll be accused of going in for literary showmanship) and then go off at a tangent for a minute or so. It is on this principle that most circus thrills are built....

I was taking my bow, as I said, at the conclusion of the pyramid. There was a good healthy round of applause and I was happy. But as I mechanically stared ahead I noticed a look of horror on the face of a boy in a seat close to the arena. He jumped to his feet and was obviously trying to communicate something to me with frantic gestures. Instinctively I dropped to the floor of the arena—and Empress went sailing over my head!

Ousted Ruler Receives In Death Honors He Never Knew In Life

This is the fourth of six stories on the wave of revolutions in Latin America during the past three years.

By ROBERT TALLEY

FOR FOURTEEN years he had ruled Argentina as a sort of a beloved despot, a strange old man whose private life was veiled by mystery and who had become a hero to the common people by overturning the long rule of the rich and powerful aristocrats.

And then, with surprising suddenness, a revolution swept him from the Presidency and he fled to the barracks of friendly soldiers to escape the fury of a mob.

But when he died three years later he was given the greatest funeral in Argentina's history. Two hundred thousand persons accompanied his casket as it was borne through the streets of Buenos Aires on the shoulders of admirers while others tossed flowers from balconies as the strange cortege passed.

Call it "Latin temperament" or what you will, but such, in brief, is the story of Dr. Hipolito Irigoyen, late President of Argentina.

UNREST FLAMES INTO REVOLT
PORTLY, putty-faced Dr. Irigoyen, who had devoted most of his eighty years to politics, was another of those South American presidents who were tossed overboard by revolution when the depression closed in. In this case, it was the slump in the world market for cattle and wheat that brought on a political crisis.

ning for re-election without an intervening term, he dictated the election of his successor, Marcelo de Alvear. In 1928 he chose to resume the Presidency and was elected easily.

A queer old man who lived in seclusion, shunned demonstrations of every kind and accepted no man's counsel, Irigoyen made his home in a tiny flat over a tobacco shop near Buenos Ayres's great railway station. When times were good the very mystery about him caused him to be regarded as a man with super-human attributes, but this feeling exploded when the depression swept Argentina and the country found, as did Irigoyen, that he could do nothing about it.

Discontent increased as distress spread and then came the action of the police in firing into the crowd in the Plaza de Mayo and Irigoyen was swept aside in the wild uproar that followed.

The revolution was engineered by General Jose Uriburu who captured the government house after a brief, but bloody battle with loyalist troops and took charge as provisional President. The army, navy and a large part of the populace went over to Uriburu and his triumph was complete.

IRIGOYEN MADE PRISONER
AT LA PLATA barracks, where the fleeing Irigoyen sought safety, he arrived in the dead of night, accompanied only by his personal physician, Dr. Meabe.

Irigoyen was made prisoner and transferred to a warship in La Plata

River. There he was confined for some time and then taken to a land prison. Preparations to place him on trial for alleged maladministration of the Presidency were begun.

When Provisional President Uriburu delayed calling an election to choose a constitutional President, new riots broke out, but Uriburu put them down with a stern hand. Finally—in November, 1931—an election was held and General Augustin P. Justo was elected overwhelmingly.

REVOLT PLOT BALKED
AMONG President Justo's first acts were decrees permitting the return of political exiles, the lifting of martial law that had prevailed for nearly two years, restoration of the freedom of a muzzled press and a pardon for ex-President Irigoyen.

But Irigoyen, though overthrown, was not through. In December, 1932, he was arrested, with others, on charges of planning a counter revolution. The government alleged that they plotted to seize power by the means of a series of terroristic bombings. Buenos Ayres police claimed to have found 400 bombs at the conspirators' headquarters. For some reason, little seems to have been done about the charge.

In July, 1933, death came to Irigoyen—and with it, apparently, came a return of the old hero's popularity in the eyes of Argentina's masses. Never before, or since, has South America seen a funeral like that accorded him.

COFFIN SEIZED BY MOB
A MOB of thousands of Irigoyen's admirers took the funeral out of the hands of the government and hoisted, jeered and drove away the government cavalry that had been sent as an escort of honor.

When the pallbearers—including former President de Alvear and former U.S. Ambassador Pueyrredon—carried the coffin downstairs from the tiny apartment, the mob swept aside the police and refused to permit the coffin to be placed in the hearse. They insisted that it be carried on their shoulders.

Thus, with the dead ex-President's casket borne by a dozen men, the strange march to the cemetery was begun. Ahead marched 100,000 Radical Party delegates from all parts of the country; behind came an unorganized crowd of 100,000.

GREATEST IN DEATH
SO GREAT was the jam at the cemetery gates that the men carrying the coffin, jostled by the swirling mob, dropped their burden into the street.

Fifteen orators extolled President Irigoyen's virtues at his grave.

And so, this strange man who for fourteen years had ruled Argentina as a dictator—who lived alone in a tiny flat above a tobacco shop and always shunned formality and demonstrations of every kind—came to be honored in death in a manner he had never known in life and by the same people from whose fury he once fled for his safety.

Queer indeed are the ways of politics in temperamental Latin America.

Next Saturday—Chile.

The picture above shows crowds in Buenos Ayres's Plaza de Mayo wildly celebrating the overthrow and imprisonment of President Irigoyen, right, during the revolution of 1930, while the sketch below shows admirers in the same city according him the greatest funeral in South America's history two years later. . . . Strange indeed are the ways of politics in temperamental Latin America.

SCIENCE AND INVENTION

BENT ON DISTANT STARS, TELESCOPE MIGHT MIRROR HISTORY OF LOST AGES

By ISRAEL KLEIN

THOSE mysterious ages of which we know little might be revealed to us some day through an ingenious system, as yet in the imagination of one of the world's foremost scientists.

Evolution would then become an open book, and the difference between science and fundamentalism would be cleared up. Archeological research would be needless. And the hallowed tombs of our ancestors would be safe against prying shovels.

AUTHORITY ON LIGHT

The Jules Verne who sees this phenomenon opening up before us is Matthew Luckiesh, leading authority on color and light, and author of many books on astronomy and science.

This is his idea:

By use of a super-telescope, employing electric magnification, the surfaces of distant stars could be so clearly visible that we could see what has been happening on them. The farther a star from us the more distant the event that we might see.

By reflecting the rays of our telescope from some mirror-like surface on a star or its planet, such as the facet of a crystal or a disc of molten material, we could look back upon some distant event in the earth's history—the dark medieval ages, the glacial and even more remote periods—as though these were actually happening to-day! Thus would the unknown gaps of history be disclosed.

HOW HE TELLS IT

Let Dr. Luckiesh explain:
"To most of us light seems to travel instantly because its speed, 186,000 miles a second, is so great. Yet, viewed in terms of stellar distances, light travels relatively slowly.
"It takes eight minutes for light to come from the sun to us. In other words, with our super-telescope we could see events on the sun eight minutes after they have occurred.

"It takes light 466 years to reach us from Rigel. If we could sit on Rigel with our telescope we would have to wait thirty-one years before we could see Columbus discovering America!

"If we could find a minute natural mirror, properly placed, on some celestial body many light years away from us, we could see events on our earth that have happened back twice the number of years it takes light to travel from that body to us.

BEYOND THE STONE AGE

"From a mirror as far away as the small Magellan cloud we could see far into and perhaps beyond the Stone Age.

"Recent measurements show some celestial bodies to be a million light-years away. Through a mirror on one of these we could see earth events that took place 2,000,000 years ago!"

The super-telescope is the key to this phenomenon. This Luckiesh believes just as possible an achievement as the radio vacuum tube and other instruments that employ electric magnification.

"There is no limit to the magnification we might employ in our super-telescope," Luckiesh adds. "Therefore I believe this super-telescope is not theoretically impossible, and that the idea of looking back into our past is not at all improbable."

STREAMLINED, REAR-ENGINE CAR MAY MAKE DEBUT SOON TO GIVE EASIER RIDING AND EFFICIENCY

ALTHOUGH automobile engineers are slow to accept the theory, the car of the future will be a unit with the engine in the rear.

It is not that engineers want to install the engine in the rear of the car, but, due to the increase in demands for streamlining, this will have to come about, according to foreign experts.

At present, dies and tools have been designed for constructing cars with engines in the front. To change this would require much expense and re-designing, but the benefit is claimed to be so great that, in the long run, the switch would be beneficial and pay for itself.

In the first place, such a switch, according to engineers, would transmit the power from the engine to the rear axle with little of the lost motion that is found in transmission from the front of the car to the rear through the drive shaft.

SAVE IN POWER AND MONEY

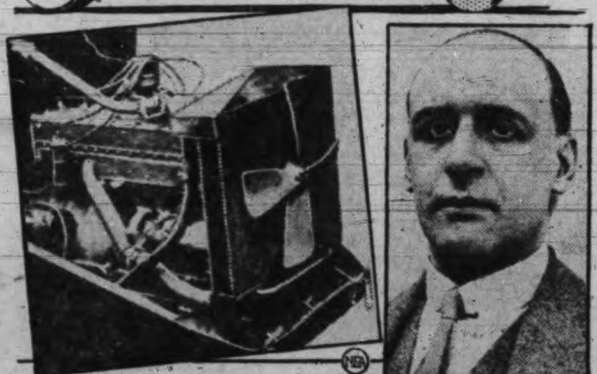

Such an arrangement would eliminate considerable expense in cutting down the amount of material, machining and construction work needed to assemble the transmission.

Other favorable points in this type of construction cited by engineers are:

1. Elimination of tail-swing, thereby increasing comfort by reducing pitching in acceleration and braking.
2. The over-all weight distribution approaches the ideal for maximum braking efficiency.
3. The equal distribution of weight over the car will increase road adhesion and prevent skidding.
4. Owing to the elimination of a propeller shaft, the centre of gravity is lowered, helping the car hold the road.
5. The engine, located in a compartment at the rear, is more accessible.
6. The noise, heat and gases of the engine are removed entirely from passengers, being swept away from the car instead of through it as in the front-engine machine.

BUILT LIKE A FISH

With the engine at the rear, engineers can plan for streamlining more efficiently, it is thought, as in the case of a fish, where the power is in the rear and the body tapers from the front to the rear.

"For efficiency's sake," one engineer says, "sooner or later the motor car must follow along these lines. In order to facilitate streamlining, the engine ultimately will be located in the rear of the car."

Sir Dennistoun Burney, noted pioneer in the design of the rear-engined car, has constructed several of this type and has come to the conclusion that it is the car of the future.

"My contention is that a weight distribution of twice the amount on the rear end as on the front end is correct and that the present weight distribution of the orthodox car of even weight on the two axes is incorrect," he says.

"There are many advantages to the rear-engined car but, if it be true that the orthodox car is dynamically unsound, why go on building it longer than is absolutely necessary, as sooner or later the change will have to be made? The sooner it is made, the sooner can the manufacturer settle down to a type of car that will remain substantially unaltered in design."

"I venture to think that, just as twenty-five years ago the general state and condition of the world's roads, and the weight per horsepower of the internal combustion engine, imposed upon automobile engineers conditions that led them, quite rightly, to the development of what we now accept as the orthodox car, so will these new conditions of weight distribution and streamlining result in complete reorganization of design."

Tyrant Dinosaurs Are Sea-Serpents' Ancestors

By PERCY W. COBB, B.S., M.D.

For some 10,000,000 years reptiles dominated the world. They grew from small lizard-like creatures to the greatest and most terrible monsters that ever roamed the earth.

Some of them lived on the meat of their animal enemies, others on the plants of the time and still others on insects. Some went back to a watery existence, although they never gave up their reptilian form.

Those that remained on land evolved into various forms until they reached their peak in the dinosaur. Many forms of the dinosaur existed then, all of them monsters in size and strength, with long necks, large heavy bodies and legs and long powerful tails.

The greatest of these were the tyrant dinosaurs, moving about on their hind limbs and using their similar forelegs to capture and tear apart their animal enemies. In speed, size, power and ferocity these were the most destructive forms of life that ever existed.

But they suddenly died out, some 3,000,000 years ago, and to-day only the remains of their bones in pre-historic rocks show proof that they ever existed.

New One For Politicians! Inventor Turns Laboratory Tests Into Vote-Getters

PARIS (By Mail).—"Vote for science, and vote for prosperity." This was the slogan of M. Georges Claude, inventor of liquid air, in his campaign for election to the Chamber of Deputies.

Always a man of original ideas, he stirred up votes in the district of Fontainebleau, which he hopes to represent, with scientific demonstrations.

No hand-shaking for M. Georges Claude. He is not strong on kissing babies or patting old ladies on the back. He is no soap-box orator; when he runs, he would rather not talk at all. He wants voters to know him for what he can do, and to show them what he can do he moves among them by means of a motor van in which he carries mysterious scientific apparatus and illustrates the marvels of modern science. He has been hailed as the most practical and popular campaigner who ever has gone out after votes.

The announcement by which M. Georges Claude attracted his audience reads:

"Public and free conference with experiments by M. Georges Claude. Liquid air and its surprise. The marvels of oxygen. The battle of grain. Why it is necessary for agriculturists to interest themselves in science."

M. Claude is known to the world of science not only for his dissolved acetylene and his synthetic ammonia. He has put his discoveries to the service of industry and they are known throughout the world.

This novel campaigner tells his audiences that he is going to talk only about that with which he is familiar. He knows his science, and so he talks science.

"I wish to replace the politics of parties, of which the world has had enough, with the politics of practice, useful for France," he says. "Prosperity cannot be had without a strong appeal to scientific progress and the organization of work. In Parliament I wish to be the defender of science."

This is the campaign talk of M. Claude. He then swings into scientific terms and does his tricks. He astounds his public with his magic. He ignores such questions as disarmament, bi-lateral treaties, the foreign debt, and problems of the League of Nations. He just waves his scientific wand and gathers in the votes.

During the war M. Claude devoted his capable energies to bombs, gases and chemicals with which the allied armies were able to meet the enemy.

NOTED WOMAN SCIENTIST SEES HOPE FOR CANCER ERADICATION; HER 100,000 MICE PROVE IT

By ALLENE SUMNER

WE WOULD now like the attention of the woman, if any, who squeals and runs for a chair when she sees a mouse.

We would like Miss Mouse Squealer to meet Dr. Maud Slye, famed as associate professor of pathology in the University of Chicago, known also as "The Mouse Lady."

Dr. Maud Slye has been godmother, governess, cook, bottle washer, masseuse, doctor, nurse, and everything else that a well-cared-for mouse needs, to nearly 100,000 mice during the past twenty-three years.

"Afraid of them? Find them repulsive?" Dr. Slye was disgusted at the very question. And I've never seen a woman who was. The only people who seem annoyed or repelled by my mice are men, and lots of them cringe every time they come in here."

THEY HAVE PERSONALITY

What is more, those mice aren't just so many numbers to Dr. Slye, whose "Rat House," as they will insist on calling it, is one of the show places of the Chicago University campus.

"Mice have as much personality as people," says Dr. Slye. "I know hundreds of my mice in almost as personal a way as a mother knows her children. I know their likes and dislikes, their dispositions, their tendencies."

"I know the ones that like sugar and the ones that don't like to take their milk. I have affectionate ones and hard ones—pretty little girl mice and bad little boy mice."

Dr. Slye began her mouse house nearly twenty-five years ago, when, just out of college, she got a research job in the university pathological department.

"There's a good big job in cancer heredity waiting for somebody who will devote the rest of her life to raising and looking after thousands of mice," a senior professor said one day.

Dr. Slye spoke for the job. "I've liked mice ever since I was a baby," she said.

It was slow sledding at first. Only ten mice and a little box in some dark laboratory.

But to-day the university's "cancer laboratory," filled with Dr. Maud Slye's precious mice, is the pride of the campus, and has probably done more to bring fame to the university than any other feature.

For Dr. Slye's mice have given hope to humanity. They have definitely shown that proper mating can utterly eradicate cancer—that every human being is born with a tendency either to have cancer or is exempt from it—that the cancer tendency is transmitted according to the mendelian law, so that when a person with the cancer tendency is married to one who hasn't it, the children will be utterly free from the tendency.

Dr. Slye's mice have never been encouraged to have cancer. Artificial growths have never been fostered upon them. They live the most sanitary, hygienic life possible, for Dr. Slye explains that cancer is a disease of the well-cared for.

Her 66,000 mice are susceptible to cancer in about the same proportion that human beings are, and their rate of mortality, one to every nine, is about the same.

Dr. Maud Slye in the "nursery" where thousands of mice live in long rows of cages. The inset shows her lifting one of her charges out for a closer inspection.

No new families of mice have come to the cancer laboratory in sixteen years. Every mouse is a direct descendant of the few hundred with which the laboratory began.

Their life history is an open book to the doctor. She is their matchmaker, not only encouraging their romances in the direction she wishes, but even insisting on their matrimony. If one falls sick and dies, a complete autopsy is performed and its record carefully tabulated. Thousands upon thousands of autopsies have been performed.

The 12,000 mice now in the laboratory eat thirty-five loaves of bread a day, nineteen quarts of double pasteurized milk, and a ton of seed and two bales of hay are purchased for them every third week.

KEEPING THE MICE WELL

They are watched like babies with every change of temperature. Their cages are covered with paper and cardboard in various thicknesses which can be removed or put on according to weather. Their cages are "carpeted" with thick paper which is removed and cleaned daily. Their drinking water is sterilized.

Dr. Slye's mice have convinced her that cancer is not a germ disease; that no cure will ever be found until the cause is known, and that the cause, as her mice point out, is largely an inherited tendency to susceptibility to the disease.

"My mice conclusively prove," she says, "that if people know their family record and avoid irritation of organs which the family history shows are susceptible to cancer, they may escape it entirely."

She mates her mice so scientifically that she can produce cancer or eradicate it completely from a certain family at will.

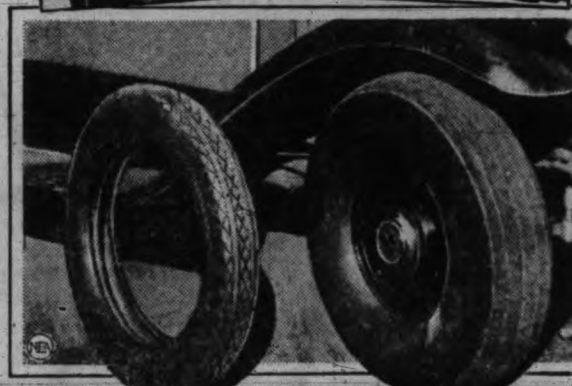

"If such a thing as romance did not exist in the human world cancer could be utterly eliminated by scientific mating," she says.

NEW ERA IN TRANSPORTATION BRINGS AIR SPEEDS TO EARTH

Hide-bound conservatives may stick to their conviction that air travel has its hazards, but with engineers now adopting the streamline principle of airplane design to boats, railroad trains and motor cars, there is little room for doubt that people soon will be seeing the country at a speed of nearly two miles a minute from a transcontinental air liner or the cushions of modern earth-bound speedsters. Ordinary citizens, statesmen, baby chicks, grocery orders and spare parts will go whisking along the surface of the earth with almost the speed of the night air mail. Above, left, a new tear-drop, three-wheeled automobile capable of a speed of 120 miles an hour. Right, a new air transport, hailed as the latest achievement of streamlining in airplanes, on its initial flight. It is used on one of the transcontinental air lines. Lower right, modern streamlined train now under construction at Philadelphia for a transcontinental railroad. It is expected to travel at a speed of 120 miles per hour. Lower left, blocks of wood used in actual wind tunnel tests, illustrating how streamlining lessens air resistance, greatly increasing speed, through elimination of back drafts and unnecessary air turbulence.

DOUGHNUT TIRES NEXT
